Wickersham and Root Trying to Draft Bill, but Fresh Puzzles Keep Arising.

CORPORATION LOBBY LARGE

Strong Objection to be Made to Publicity of Their Affairs—Congress May Sit Till September.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Although President Taft is openly optimistic as to both the enactment and success of his plan for a 2 per cent. tax on the net earnings of corporations, each day increases the obstacles put in its path. The more the opponents of the scheme think it over the louder becomes their outcry against it. Just now it is hard to turn around in Washington without meeting a man who has some new insuperable obstacle to suggest.

The stream of objections being registered at the White House is giving the framers of the proposed amendment a lot of thinking to do. Attorney General Wickersham was in conference with President Taft soon after his return from New York this morning for an hour and a half, discussing the draft that he has in preparation. He went to the Capitol this afternoon and had a talk with Senator Root, who has become the special legal adviser of the Senate Finance Committee on the tax measure. Mr. Root and Secretary Knox have been working with Attorney General Wickersham on the draft which is to be the basis of the Finance Committee's amendment, and it is understood that they conferred with the President about it this evening.

There was also a long conference at the Capitol to-day between members of the Finance Committee and Attorney General Wickersham, and it was decided that the Republicans on the committee should have another consultation with the President to-morrow evening.

Burden on Common Stockholders.

The trouble with getting out the draft of the amendment is that every few minutes some one brings up a new objection or question which has to be met or answered. A number of Senators who oppose the plan have carried their fears and their troubles to the White House and exhibited them for the President's inspection.

Thus Senator Elkins spent the best part of an hour there this morning, and from what he said when he left the President's offices it is evident that he gave Mr. Taft a full list of reasons why the proposed tax should not be enacted. One of them was that the tax would fall wholly upon the holders of common stock and not at all on holders of preferred stock, thus making it equivalent to double taxation of the common holders. President Taft agreed that this would be the effect unless a way was found to prevent extra large issues of preferred stock.

Another reason urged against the plan was that corporations would evade it in all sorts of ways. If they were little fellows, owned largely in one family, it would be easy to elect the stockholders to office and pay out in untaxable salaries what would otherwise go to taxable dividends.

It was also pointed out that the bill must distinguish between capital and capital stock, as some corporations raised all their capital by bond issues and had very little stock. It was asked what would be the effect of the bill upon corporations that have issued no bonds as compared with those which merely float bonds. The one set would be taxed upon all their earnings, whereas the other set would get away with little or no tax.

To Get at the Bond Issues.

The President, however, believes a way has been found to get at overissues of bonds. He would do it by providing that there shall be exempted from tax only such part of the earnings of a corporation as will pay the interest on an amount of bonds equal to its capital stock, and no more.

Thus, taking an illustration used at the White House to-day, suppose a corporation to have out $100,000 in stock and $200,000 in 5 per cent. bonds. Suppose it to earn $30,000 gross, and its operating expenses to be only $10,000. The interest on the whole bond issue would be $10,000, but under this plan only $5,000 would be exempted from taxation. That would leave $15,000 taxable of the $20,000 remaining after operating expenses had been paid. Of course, the bondholders would get their full interest, and the whole tax of 2 per cent. on $15,000, or $300, would be deducted from the $10,000 remaining after the interest on the bonds had been paid.

President Taft has already answered the objection as to the undue conversion of stock into bonds by showing that resort to court proceedings under existing law can prevent that. The President and his advisers are also considering the feasibility of including in the law a provision which would affect bonds issued after its enactment.

Subordinate at Issue with Taft.

On the matter of the evasion of the tax, Herbert Knox Smith, the Commissioner of Corporations, disagrees with the President. Mr. Taft believes no special machinery of collection is necessary, as the internal revenue machinery, with perhaps a little expansion, would be sufficient. He would depend on the Bureau of Corporations, with its special machinery for supervision of corporations to furnish the internal revenue collectors with information as to the corporations which would prevent any successful evasion of the tax on a large scale.

In this respect Mr. Smith says the plan is practically impossible. He declared this afternoon that to keep the corporations in line and prevent their evasion of the tax would require a force of special agents and examiners as large as the standing army of the United States. The popularity of Mr. Smith among the objectors to the bill rose perceptibly upon receipt of news of his views in this regard.

The President, however, does not agree with Mr. Smith as to the determined efforts that corporations will make to evade the tax. His optimism covers that point fully, in the belief that, inasmuch as the tax is a little one, the corporations will not object too strenuously, if they do at all.

So far as the amount of revenue from the tax is concerned, it develops that there are no reliable figures obtainable in Washington on which to base anything like an accurate estimate of what

HARRIMAN NOT ILL.

Recently Emperor's Guest in Vienna—Stocks Affected by Rumors.

VIENNA, June 21.—There is no truth whatever in the reports, which seem to have been current in many parts of the world, that E. H. Harriman is seriously ill. Mr. Harriman's health, on the whole, is considered satisfactory. Certainly there have been no serious complications of any kind since his arrival here. He has been driving daily, and has shown a lively interest in all Viennese social events. On Saturday Mr. Harriman was among the guests of the Emperor at the Neue Handel's Akedemia, and on Saturday afternoon he witnessed the trotting races and took a drive through the principal streets.

Mr. Harriman, accompanied by his family, will leave here to-morrow for Semmering, in the Eastern Alps of Austria-Hungary, where he intends to stay for several weeks.

Innumerable telegrams were received here to-day from all parts of the world, making inquiries as to Mr. Harriman's condition, and it is believed by his representative that the unfavorable rumors regarding his health have their explanation in manoeuvres which have been going on in certain Bourses and Stock Exchanges.

Rumors that serious illness had overtaken E. H. Harriman, who reached Vienna two days ago, where he went to consult medical specialists, were used by the bears in the stock market yesterday to bring about a sharp decline in prices, not only in the Harriman stocks, but in most of the other active issues as well. The reports went in some cases to the extent of saying that Mr. Harriman was dead.

At the Union Pacific offices it was said that a cable message on a business matter had been received from Mr. Harriman during the day, and that a personal message had also been received from him which contained no suggestion of any decline in his health.

Robert S. Lovett, Vice President of the Union Pacific, said that he was sure the reports regarding Mr. Harriman were unfounded. Almost every day since Mr. Harriman sailed, Judge Lovett said, he has been called upon to deny unfounded reports regarding Mr. Harriman's health.

While not generally credited even before they were denied, the reports regarding Mr. Harriman were made much of in the stock market, and the selling that was induced by these reports was still in practically full swing when the market closed. Union Pacific showed a net loss of 3¼ points, Southern Pacific 2, Reading 3½, New York Central 2⅜, Wabash preferred 3⅞, Amalgamated Copper 3¼, Smelting 2⅞, United States Steel 2½, and Steel preferred 2¾.

Only about 170,000 shares had been traded in up to noon, when the market was fairly firm, but on the decline in the afternoon nearly 675,000 shares were sold, making total sales for the day of 843,000 shares.

BRIDGE TURNSTILES TESTED.

Rush Crowd Well Handled Where the New Device Was Used.

The first real test of the new turnstiles on the second floor of the Park Row terminal of the Brooklyn Bridge was given last night in the rush hours between 5 and 7 o'clock. The twelve turnstiles, two to each ticket box, were first put in service Sunday evening.

The Brooklyn Rapid Transit officials and the bridge police under Capt. Murtha were unanimous in agreeing that the new device for facilitating the rapid movement of passengers through the terminal worked well. The entrances in which the turnstiles were placed served only part of the elevated train traffic over the bridge, other lines and the trolleys on the first floor not being concerned. The lines affected, however, included some of the busiest ones, the Bath Beach, Brighton Beach, Fifth Avenue, and Bay Ridge lines in particular.

Between 5 and 6 o'clock, according to the company, 11,552 persons passed through the twelve turnstiles. The busiest one, in the centre, passed 1,400; the least busy, on one end, 485. The employes remarked that many persons darted for the centre turnstiles, although they were most crowded, when some of the end ones were free and clear.

From his observation of the working of the turnstiles Capt. Murtha suggested an additional device, which the company officials will probably put into effect. This will be to construct iron-railed passageways, about ten feet long, out from each turnstile, so that even lines may be formed, and crowding by the "bridge hog" may be suppressed.

CRIPPLE LEAPS TO DEATH.

Plunges Off High Elevated Station as Other Passengers Look On.

While the uptown elevated railroad platform at 110th Street and Columbus Avenue was crowded with waiting passengers at 6 o'clock last night a young man, who was a cripple, was seen to lay his crutch on the platform and plunge down to Manhattan Avenue. The distance was about 110 feet from the railroad track, and the man scarcely moved after he struck the roadway beside the car tracks.

The man had jumped so quickly that only the screams of women made the fact known that some accident had happened.

The ticket chopper said that the cripple had been hanging about the station since noon, and a guard of a Sixth Avenue train that pulled in just after the jump said he had seen him at other stations on the line during the afternoon.

When an ambulance surgeon arrived on the scene from the J. Hood Wright Hospital he found that the man was dead, and after Coroner Harburger had been notified the body was taken to the West 125th Street Police Station to await identification. The suicide had on a well-cut gray suit and a boy's peak cap. His right leg was bandaged. Receipted flower bills, a medicine vial, and a card issued at St. Luke's Hospital last October in favor of Thomas King were found in the coat pockets. It was said that he had sold flowers at Twenty-ninth Street and Sixth Avenue some years ago, but no one remembered the name of the cripple. At a late hour the body had not been identified.

TAFT BEATEN AGAIN AT GOLF.

Sherman and Bourne Win from the President on the Chevy Chase Links.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—President Taft and his partner, Gen. Edwards, again went down to defeat on the Chevy Chase golf links to-day in a foursome with Vice President Sherman and Senator Bourne of Oregon, the latter winning by 2 up.

The President played a good game, his driving being the best feature of his play. The Vice President was also in unusually good form. The weather was very warm.

JULIAN STORY TO WED MRS. BOHLEN ABROAD

ARTIST IS ON THE OCEAN

Mrs. Bohlen a Daughter of Victor Sartori—She Divorced Philadelphia Society Man for Cruelty.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 21.—For several days one of the chief subjects of gossip at meetings of the socially prominent has been the rumored approaching marriage of Mrs. Elaine Bohlen and Julian Story, the artist, which, it is said, will take place some time soon in London.

Mrs. Bohlen recently obtained a divorce from D. Murray Bohlen of Chestnut Hill. It is understood that the grounds for the suit were in the nature of brutal incompatibility, but the exact legal wording of the petition is not generally known.

Mrs. Bohlen, who is the daughter of Victor Sartori, formerly Consul at Leghorn, is a strikingly handsome woman of the dark type, and as clever as she is beautiful. Her mother was an Englishwoman. She and Mr. Bohlen were married thirteen years ago, and until recently lived at Ingleside, a beautiful home on the Bethlehem Pike, Chestnut Hill. They have no children. It is said that a separation was decided upon last Summer, when Mr. and Mrs. Bohlen were traveling in Italy. Mr. Bohlen returned to this country in September and made his home with his mother, Mrs. John Bohlen, while Mrs. Bohlen remained abroad with her sister, Mrs. Terrin, only returning to America to obtain the decree of divorce.

The Bohlen family is socially prominent in this city, and is connected with the von Bohlen family of Germany. A cousin of Mr. Bohlen's is Dr. Gustave von Bohlen Und Halbach, who married Miss Bertha Krupp, the richest girl in the world. Mr. Bohlen was graduated from Trinity College in 1882. He is an expert cricketer and a member of the Philadelphia Racquet, Philadelphia Cricket, and State-in-Schuylkill Clubs.

Ever since the divorce was granted to Mme. Emma Eames from Mr. Story, rumor has been busy with both their names. The suit instituted by Mrs. Elsa de Gogorza against Mme. Eames for alienation of the affections of her husband, Emilio de Gogorza, the baritone, has attracted wide attention. There has also been much speculation about Mr. Story's future.

It is said that the Story-Bohlen marriage will take place immediately on the arrival of Mr. Story, who sailed for Europe recently, in London, where Mrs. Bohlen is staying. After the wedding, it is said, they will go to Paris and later to Italy.

Mr. Story is the son of William Wentworth Story and a grandson of Joseph Story, both prominent men. His grandfather was a Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States when only 32 years old, and his father was not only a writer of note, but also a distinguished sculptor. Julian Story was educated at Eton and Oxford and studied art with Frank Duveneck and Boulanger in Paris. He is an unflagging worker and a deep thinker, and is extremely fond of reading. He has painted the portraits of many distinguished persons in this country and abroad. One of his last portraits is that of King Edward VII. Besides his studio in this city, where he makes his home, he has studios in Paris and Italy.

TRAIN KILLS A MOTORIST.

Companion Jumps Out of the Machine Just in Time.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 21.—Glenn H. Dobbs of Lincoln Avenue, Collingwood, N. J., was killed to-day when an automobile which he was driving was struck and demolished by an express train on the West Jersey & Seashore Railroad at Ferry Avenue and City Line, Camden.

William Wyand of 28 Washington Avenue, Collingswood, escaped by jumping from the machine an instant before the collision occurred.

The motor car, which was owned by Samuel T. Miller, had been in the shop for repairs. Dobbs was a brick-machine manufacturer and Wyand is a machinist. Dobbs was driving the car. Wyand says he knew nothing of the approach of the train until the motor car had got on the tracks, and then he looked up and saw the locomotive almost upon them. He yelled to Dobbs to jump as he hurled himself from the machine.

Dobbs either believed he could get across the track in time to avoid collision or the steering apparatus in front of him prevented him from jumping. The automobile was hurled 100 yards down the track and torn to pieces.

TWO GIRLS DISAPPEAR.

Mother of One, 16 Years Old, Thinks She Eloped with a Subway Guard.

Augusta Peters, 16 years old, of 119 Manhattan Street, has been missing from her home since last Saturday, and her mother, Mrs. Josephine Peters, told the police last night that she feared the girl had eloped with a Subway guard with whom she was friendly. The guard is employed on the Lenox Avenue Branch of the Subway.

Coincident with the disappearance of the girl on Saturday was the departure from home of Nellie Jenks, who lives at 121 Manhattan Street, next door to the Peterses. She and Augusta Peters were friendly. Miss Jenks lives with her mother and step-brother. The two girls went away attired in their best raiment.

Mrs. Peters told the police that her daughter had much regard for the Subway employe. She gave the name and address of the man in confidence to the police.

CHAUFFEUR GETS ONE YEAR.

Scheers Guilty of Involuntary Manslaughter in Causing Man's Death.

NORRISTOWN, Penn., June 21.—Charles Scheers, a chauffeur, who a year ago, while speeding along the Old York Road late at night, ran down two men, one of whom, Patrick McLaughlin, died from his injuries, was sentenced in court here to-day to one year's imprisonment and $50 fine.

Scheers had been found guilty of involuntary manslaughter at the session of Criminal Court during the first week of the present month.

HOT WAVE KILLS THREE.

Four Others Prostrated as the Mercury Mounts Up to 90 Degrees.

Three persons died yesterday as a result of the heat, and four others were taken to hospitals, prostrated by the heat. It was a day when the mercury climbed steadily skyward, bringing discomfort to all and causing an exodus from town to places swept by sea or mountain breezes. The sun shone down out of a cloudless sky, but its effect was tempered by a slight breeze, which freshened up as night came.

Yesterday was the hottest day of the year. The mercury, which began an upward movement early in the day, continued to climb until at 4 P. M. 90 degrees were registered. This was the maximum temperature during the twenty-four hours. It came within two degrees of being the hottest June 21 in the history of the Weather Department. It was 92 degrees on this day in June, 1884, and again in 1893.

The heat caused the death of Abrahams Solomons, who lived at 28 West 120th Street. He retired from business two years ago. He was walking with his wife when he complained of the heat and started to return home. In front of 12 West 120th Street he collapsed. A doctor from the Harlem Hospital said that he died almost immediately.

Harding Johnson of 575 Dean Street, Brooklyn, was walking through East Thirty-fourth Street, between Madison and Park Avenues, when he suddenly collapsed from the heat. His head struck the curb, fracturing his skull. He was taken in a delivery wagon to the Polyclinic Hospital. He was dead when the wagon drove up to the hospital. Johnson was in the real estate business.

An unidentified man, apparently a laborer, 40 years old, was found unconscious in the afternoon on a bench in Tompkins Square. He died in Bellevue Hospital. The only possible identification mark found on him was a receipt made out in the name of S. Pacoula.

It was a hard day on children, and many a mother with her young brood was to be seen in the early morning making for a cool place.

Relief is in sight for to-day. The Weather Man promises slightly cooler weather with showers by to-night.

PERPETUAL MOTION TREED

In Brooklyn—The Principle Being Conceded, Attach Your Trolley Cars.

A perpetual motion machine has been invented again. This time it is in the form of a wheel, and the inventor is Frank McMahon, a white-haired carpenter, who lives at 780 De Kalb Avenue, Brooklyn.

Mr. McMahon was unable to show his perpetual motion wheel yesterday to reporters who wanted to see it, because it is keeping itself in motion in a barn out in a Long Island settlement much advertised as desirable to the home seeker. Mr. McMahon, however, described it.

The wheel has twelve spokes. On the end of each of the spokes is a sliding weight which is connected with a piston on the spoke behind. These sliding weights tend to slide forward and back, Mr. McMahon says, in such a way as to make one side of the wheel always heavier than the other. Thus, as soon as a brake is removed, the wheel goes around and around and around, like the song, and you never can stop it.

Mr. McMahon says that the principle of perpetual motion once conceded, the power that such a wheel would generate would be limited only by its diameter. He is going to consult a trained mechanic to find out how big a wheel of this sort can generate sufficient electricity to operate a system of trolley cars.

Then he intends to form a stock company.

SAD FIRE CALL FOR FIREMAN.

Alarm Takes Bannane to His Home, Where His Wife Is Mortally Burned.

Mrs. Edith Bannane, wife of John Bannane, a fireman of Port Richmond, S. I., died yesterday at St. Vincent's Hospital following severe burns.

The evening before Bannane, responding with his engine to an alarm of fire, ran with his comrades into his own home, 878 Post Avenue, Port Richmond.

There he found the carpet on the stairs burning. Upon the stairs moaning, her clothes completely burned off, and her body blackened, was his wife amid the glass of a broken lamp. They rushed her, unable to talk, to the hospital.

According to Mrs. Bannane's aged mother, Mrs. Garret, Mrs. Bannane, who was only 25 years old, had stood, lamp in hand, at the top of the stairs, while her mother went down to the kitchen to get the baby's milk which was being heated. The next thing she knew there was sound of a body falling and the crash of the lamp. She supposed her daughter had stumbled, and when she saw her afire on the stairs, she ran out and gave the alarm.

OPPOSE CALHOUN'S TRIAL.

Counsel to Allege That Judge Lawlor and Heney Are Disqualified.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 21.—When the case against Patrick Calhoun, President of the United Railways, charging that he offered a bribe of $4,000 to Supervisor John J. Furey to obtain an overhead trolley franchise, is called in Judge Lawlor's court next Monday, counsel for the defense will move that the indictment be set aside.

They will present demurrers, alleging that Judge Lawlor on account of his conduct of the trial just concluded, is not qualified to sit in the new case and that Francis J. Heney is disqualified as Acting Assistant District Attorney because of the alleged fact that he was at the time of his appointment by District Attorney Langdon, and is now, an assistant to the Attorney General of the United States.

Heney declared that he was not and never had been an Assistant Attorney General of the United States, although he had been offered that office by Attorney General Knox. He denied also an allegation made by Mr. Moore that he had drawn large sums of money from Rudolph Spreckels for his services during the prosecution of the graft cases. All money paid to him by Spreckels, he said, had been paid out by him in turn to his assistants for salaries and expenses.

DECLARES RAILROADS LOSE.

Two-Cent Fare Law in Illinois Cost Them $15,000,000, Says This Report.

CHICAGO, June 21.—A bulletin made public to-day by the Bureau of Railway News and Statistics shows that the operation of the two-cent fare law in Illinois cost the railroads of the State $15,609,900 during the last fiscal year.

On this point the bureau takes issue with the report of the Illinois Railway and Warehouse Commission, which states that the roads showed an increase of nearly $2,000,000 in earnings because of increased travel due to the lower rate. This showing in the report is said to have been due to a change in the method of accounting and not to inaccuracy.

NEW YORK TO LONDON IN 5 DAYS 8 HOURS

CUT 50 MINUTES OFF RECORD

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 21.—The latest feat of the Cunard steamship Mauretania, which has been such a consistent breaker of Atlantic records—including her own—is that of landing her passengers at Liverpool on Monday night after leaving New York on Wednesday—something never done before. She was at Liverpool at 10:15 to-night, so that those who took the special train which was in waiting will have spent only five days eight hours between New York and London.

The Mauretania's achievement cuts fifty minutes off the best previous eastward record. This record, also made by the Mauretania, was 4 days 18 hours 11 minutes. The time on the present voyage was 4 days 17 hours and 21 minutes to Daunt's Rock, off which the big liner was at 10:11 o'clock this morning. The figures for the run between Sandy Hook and the Rock, 2,933 knots, were: Average speed, 25.88 knots an hour; days' runs, 592, 606, 609, 602, and 524 knots. The best previous average speed was 25.70 knots.

The special boat trains from Liverpool will arrive in London early to-morrow morning, but little do the Mauretania's passengers who have not engaged rooms here well in advance know what is in store for them. London is just now fuller than it has ever been at any time this season. Passengers who arrived here this afternoon from the Kronprinzessin Cecilie have in scores of cases had to spend hours searching for accommodations.

Creighton Webb scoured the town in a taxicab, and eventually got rooms in a private house, not a hotel room being available. T. Sanford Beatty tried a dozen hotels before he got an uncomfortable room at the Grosvenor overlooking the Victoria Railway station. Yet difficult as is the case of single men, the task of finding accommodations is an even more serious problem for men with wives and families.

Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., arrived at the Ritz Hotel to-day. "I am very sorry, Madam," said Manager Ellis, "but we cannot give you the suite you ordered." "But I have your letter here," said Mrs. Vanderbilt, "written weeks ago in reply to mine, assuring me that the rooms engaged would be ready for me June 21."

"Yes, Madam," the manager replied, "but the persons who are occupying the suite have not yet left. We have notified them that they must vacate, and meanwhile we must ask you to be content with what we can put at your service." Mrs. Vanderbilt accepted the situation gracefully.

For luncheon at the Ritz to-day tables were laid all the way down the long corridor to the entrance hall, and even then many applicants had to be refused.

On board the Mauretania were several well-known Americans who wrote well in advance for rooms. Manager Ellis this evening telegraphed them begging them to remain to-night either on board or at a Liverpool hotel and not come to London till to-morrow.

I heard Jacques Kramer, manager of the Carlton, apologizing to one of his old and valued patrons, a wealthy New Yorker, this afternoon for putting him in a small room without a bath on the top floor. The Hyde Park Hotel is full, and Claridge's has not a vacant room; so it is with the Savoy, but Manager Pruger, like Napoleon, has no word impossible in his dictionary.

"We haven't had a vacant room for weeks," he said to-night, "but we always make room for our customers. That's what I'm here for—to overcome difficulties. How do I do it? Well, I've just given up my own suite. Where shall I sleep? I am not thinking of sleep. I am looking at this." And Mr. Pruger waved a commanding hand over the scene in the Savoy's foyer.

It was supper time, and the scene was one that cannot be duplicated in the world. The whole foyer, where usually people sit and take their coffee after supper, was filled with supper parties who could not be crowded into the restaurant proper and the Winter garden alongside, and even the recently constructed special ladies' drawing room at the top of the stairs leading to the foyer had been used for the overflow.

DOG SLAUGHTER AT CONEY.

Health Board Policemen Shoot Twenty Found Unmuzzled in Streets.

Four policemen connected with the Brooklyn Board of Health walked through the streets of Coney Island yesterday shooting all the unmuzzled and unleashed dogs they met. They killed twenty, and by the time they finished most of the inhabitants were up in arms against them.

Jerry Piscopo of Park Place and West Second Street was arrested for interfering with the men when they tried to shoot his Italian hound. The men shot the dog, however, and took the owner to the police station.

Most of the dogs killed were found in the streets, but Coney Islanders say that some dogs were enticed from the steps of private houses into the street.

AMERICAN HELD FOR FRAUD.

Consular Agent King Accused in Paris of Mining Share Swindle.

PARIS, June 21.—Christopher J. King, American Consular Agent at Lille, was charged to-day in the Correctional Court, in company with two American bankers of Paris, with selling $800,000 of shares of a Mexican mine by misrepresentations and fraudulent practices.

King asserted that the proceedings were void on account of an irregularity on the part of the examining Magistrate, but the court rejected this contention. King then announced that he would appeal to a higher court.

LADY ABERDEEN, SUFFRAGETTE

Comes Out for Votes for Women After Hearing from Sisters at Toronto.

TORONTO, Ont., June 21.—At the suffrage meeting in connection with the International Council of Women to-night Lady Aberdeen came out for the suffragettes. She said:

"I have never before spoken on the question of suffrage for women chiefly because my husband, the Earl of Aberdeen, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, occupies a high position in public affairs, but after hearing what has been said to-night before this audience by women from every part of the world I can no longer keep silent."

STEEL MANAGER A SUICIDE.

Health of Frank M. Campbell of Philadelphia Was Affected.

VAN WERT, Ohio, June 21.—Frank M. Campbell, manager of the Philadelphia branch of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Company of Pittsburg, shot and killed himself here to-day. He was visiting here with Mrs. Campbell's father, proprietor of the hotel.

PHILADELPHIA, June 21.—Frank M. Campbell, who killed himself at Van Wert, Ohio, had been district sales agent here of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Company, Pittsburg, since 1903. He had been ill for six months and his wife induced him to go to her former home in the West for a rest. He left here last Friday with his wife and three children, and before going said to the office force of the company here that he was "all right but tired." Mr. Campbell was born in Clinton, Penn., forty-six years ago, but spent most of his life in Pittsburg.

TO WED HIS ADOPTED SISTER.

Special to The New York Times.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., June 21.—A novelty in marriage licenses in this State was the permit issued at the City Hall here to-day to Ira Francis Cram to wed his adopted sister, Florence Woods Cram. The wedding will take place at the Church of the Advent on Wednesday evening. The groom is 21 years of age, and his fiancée is one year older.

The intended bride was legally adopted into the Cram family upon the death of her parents when she was five years of age. The parents gave their consent only after they had obtained a legal opinion that there was no obstacle to the union.

SAW A WHALE IN BATTLE.

Steamer's Passengers Watched Death Struggle with a Swordfish.

BOSTON, June 21.—A fight between monsters of the ocean was witnessed to-day by the passengers and crew of the steamer Esparta, which arrived here from Port Limon, Costa Rica. The contest occurred south of Nantucket South Shoals Lightship. The combatants were a whale and a great fish believed to be a swordfish. The whale was vanquished.

The whale was the only one of the two fighters visible to the passengers and crew. The great mammal lashed its tail violently, churning the water into a mass of foam, while it was believed to be attacking the swordfish with its jaws. Several irregular plunges appeared to indicate successful attacks by the fish beneath, and finally the whale was seen to throw its massive bulk clear of the wear and then sink from sight.

BALLOON STOPS BALL GAME.

Drag Rope Bowls Over a Fielder and Lets a Runner Score.

ST. LOUIS, June 21.—John Berry, winner of the recent Indianapolis balloon race, and Heimm, who ascended here yesterday in the balloon Melba, returned to-day from Wrights, Ill., where they landed after an exciting trip, which included the breaking up of a ball game.

At the start their course was to the northwest, but a change in wind sent them northeastward toward a bank of electrically charged clouds. They escaped this danger by rising to a height of 10,000 feet.

Shortly before they landed the drag rope bowled over a baseball player as he was about to make a catch. The batsman scored and the crowd chased the balloon and tried to catch the drag rope. The aeronauts were forced to haul it up into the basket and stay in the air for some time.

BEATS ROOSEVELT'S RECORD.

Mrs. Wadsworth, in Horseback Test, Rides 159 Miles in Sixteen Hours.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 21.—Excelling the ride of ex-President Roosevelt and the officers who accompanied him when they made about 120 miles in a day, Mrs. Herbert Wadsworth of Avon, a leader in Washington society and personal friend of the Roosevelts, was on horseback from 4 o'clock this morning until 8 o'clock to-night, except for the time spent at meals, and in the sixteen hours covered 159 miles.

The Wadsworth are reticent as to the ride and its details, but it is known that Mrs. Wadsworth and Dr. Grayson started out at 4 o'clock this morning from the Wadsworth Summer home, Ashantee, with sixteen horses in relay along the course to be taken. The two encircled Conesus Lake twice, returning each time to the Summer home, and rode to Batavia once, being back at Ashantee at 6:10 o'clock this evening. The fourth part of the ride was to Geneseo and back. Dr. Grayson was one of the men who rode with ex-President Roosevelt. Mrs. Wadsworth is said to have stood the ride well.

Mrs. Wadsworth some weeks ago rode from Washington to Avon on horseback.

Iron Company Raises Wages.

EASTON, Penn., June 21.—A 10 per cent. increase in wages was announced to-day by the Thomas Iron Company. The increase affects all the company's men at its furnaces and iron mines, and takes effect July 1. The increase restores the schedule paid prior to April 1.

CATCH CHONG SING IN AMSTERDAM, N. Y.

HE ADMITS HIS IDENTITY

Letter to Leon Ling in Washington Proves Him to be the Murderer and Discloses Plot Against White Women.

Some definite progress was made yesterday toward clearing up whatever of mystery still surrounds the murder of Elsie Sigel in the room of Leon Ling, at 782 Eighth Avenue, on June 9, and apprehending her murderers.

Chong Sing, the cousin of Leon and tenant of the room adjoining his on the top floor of the house, was arrested yesterday morning at West Galway, N. Y., where he was employed as a cook in the country place of a wealthy New Yorker. He admits knowing Leon and Elsie Sigel, but professes ignorance of the murder and declares that his leaving the city the day after the crime was committed was a mere coincidence. Detective Forbes took him to New York last night.

For a while yesterday the Schenectady police thought they had in custody Leon Ling himself, but last night they admitted that they were probably mistaken. The Americanized Chinaman who is their prisoner says he is Chu Hop, a cook, recently living in Doyers Street, that he knows nothing of the Sigels or Ling, that he went to Schenectady to buy a restaurant, and the police have no right to detain him.

CHONG SING CAUGHT.

Man Wanted in Sigel Murder Was Working Near Amsterdam.

Special to The New York Times.

AMSTERDAM, N. Y., June 21.—Detective Forbes from New York Police Headquarters started for that city to-night with Chong Sing, the Chinaman who was arrested at West Galway, ten miles from Amsterdam, to-day. The Chinaman admits that he is Chong Sing, who formerly occupied a room adjoining that of Leon Ling in New York, where the body of Elsie Sigel was found last week. He denies, however, that he knows anything about the murder, although he was acquainted with Elsie Sigel and knew of her work among the Chinese.

The prisoner asserts that he had seen Leon Ling rarely for several months preceding the murder. For at least three weeks, he says, he has had no knowledge whatever of his whereabouts. Although having a room next to Ling's, he said that his night work as a waiter kept him away a great deal, and that often he did not sleep in his room.

When Ling's association with the girl was suggested, Chong Sing would shake his head and say, emphatically: "She not my friend, she his friend; why should I be in jail?"

The Chinaman's arrest came about through his employer, Harvey Kennedy, a well-to-do New Yorker and Summer resident of West Galway. He noticed Chong Sing's likeness to published photographs of him in New York newspapers, and notified the police. Chong Sing readily admitted his name and identity, but from the first stubbornly maintained that he was ignorant of any detail of the murder.

Chong Sing reached Amsterdam on Friday afternoon, June 11, the day after Elsie Sigel disappeared in New York, and the day on which she is supposed to have been killed. He had previously been engaged in New York by Mr. Kennedy as a servant, which in some respects is favorable to the Chinaman, as indicating that he did not flee from the city. He worked here quietly until the police learned of his recent arrival and his supposed connection with the murder case, when his arrest followed.

Sing admitted he left New York June 10 to accept the place at West Galway, having been engaged in New York. A newspaper of the date of June 12 was found on him when arrested, and Sing said he purchased this in New York. This is a conflicting statement, inasmuch as he first said he left that city June 10. Asked when he saw Ling last, he said he thought it was about June 7, although he was not sure. Sing declared that his companion was in New York when he left that city, and he does not know anything of his whereabouts now.

Sing said he had no American woman acquaintance and always worked. He said that Ling did not work, and could talk English fluently. The reporters found Sing ready to talk, but rather evasive in some of his answers. His different statements did not agree at all, and it was evident from the outset that the Chinaman was laboring under a strain. Sing said he had been aware of the fact that Elsie Sigel and Ling were on very friendly terms, but he had never seen the girl in Ling's room. While Sing was perfectly willing to talk and tell everything about himself he would not say much of his associates in New York. He has traveled about considerably, following the occupation of cook. Papers containing his own photographs and those of Ling and the members of the Sigel family were shown him, and he recognized them all.

SUSPECT NOT LEON LING.

Man Arrested in Schenectady Bears Strong Likeness to Him, Though.

Special to The New York Times.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., June 21.—The suspect Chu Hop, who was pulled from under a bed to-day in a Chinese chop suey restaurant in this city by Detectives Rooney and Van Deusen, while on a hunt for Leon, the Chinaman wanted for the Elsie Sigel murder, has not been positively identified as Leon Ling, although in many respects he bears a very close resemblance to him.

Detective Forbes, whom Inspector McCafferty sent here to identify him, did not stop off at this city, but went right through to Amsterdam to identify Chong, the other missing Chinaman who was arrested at West Galway to-day, and brought to Amsterdam. J. J. Evers, who works for the owner of the building in which Leon lived and who has known

Leon for years, came here to-night. He said the suspect was not Leon.

That the authorities were justified in making their arrest, every one who has seen the Chinaman in the city jail here concedes. The facial resemblance to Leon's pictures is striking, the description of the clothing worn by the missing Chinaman tallies almost to the last detail, and the man in the day made several contradictory statements.

Several developments in the case following the arrest seemed to bear out the assertion of the suspect that his name was Chu Hop; that he had been working at 22 Pell Street, New York and living at 53 Bayard Street in that city, and that he had come here a week ago last Saturday with two cousins, Chu Hoy and Chu Wu, to negotiate for the purchase of a Chinese grocery here. He declared that he had never known any of the principals in the Sigel murder mystery.

The man's contradictions lay in differing statements as to how he had spent his time during his residence in New York and in his first statement that he did not even know of the existence of the mission at 10 Mott Street, followed by his later admission that he knew the place but had never been inside it. His stories at different times of his doings while here varied in some degree, but on the whole he bore the cross-questioning to which he was subjected at frequent intervals admirably. He was reinforced in several of his statements by the testimony of two local Chinese, Lew Bo Foo and Charlie Lee, both laundrymen, and both of whom declared they had known him in New York as Chu Hop, and verified his statements as to his occupation and movements there.

Detectives Van Dusen and Rooney found the suspect in a Chinese restaurant at 22 South Centre Street. The detectives were sent out this morning by Chief Rynex with copies of the circulars issued by the New York police and instructed to search every Chinese place in the city. At 22 South Centre they came upon an excited group of Chinese, who acted suspiciously, and a search of the premises revealed a Chinaman in hiding. He said that he was only lying down for a rest and that he was employed as a cook.

PLOT AGAINST WHITE WOMEN.

Startling Disclosures in Letter Sent to Ling in Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—"Everything fine—we will fool the white people—a good turn."

So read in part the letter sent from New York by "Mr. Sam Wing" of 85 Bayard Street, to William L. Leon, the Chinaman who is accused of having murdered Miss Elsie Sigel. The letter is now in the hands of the New York police, having been taken to-day by Central Office Detective Howlett, who had the translation made on Sunday by an interpreter in Baltimore.

This interpretation was supplemented by a second translation made to-day by a reputable Chinaman in New York who was produced by Inspector McCafferty, Chief of the Detectives there. The letter, according to one who read the translation, laid bare a skillfully planned plot to evade the authorities when the body of Miss Sigel should be discovered. It is also said to fasten the murder without question upon Leung Lin or William L. Leon.

The letter was discovered here Sunday morning by the clerk at the National Hotel. He turned the missive over to the police, who promptly opened it and discovered it was written in Chinese characters. Inspector Boardman sent Detective Howlett in an hour to Baltimore, where a translation was made. The police were not altogether satisfied with this translation, and decided to wait until to-day to have one of the experts in the State Department make a transcript. Meantime Inspector McCafferty in New York had become acquainted with the work of the Washington police, and he kept the wires between the two cities hot with requests that the letter be sent to him without delay. Finally, after receiving assurance that Inspector McCafferty could produce a reputable and educated Chinaman there, Inspector Boardman sent Howlett off on an early train to-day.

A complete translation was made, which the police declare practically clears up all the mystery that has shrouded the case and fixes the guilt of the murderer beyond question. The names of a number of Chinese are said to be mentioned in the letter, and until these have been arrested and examined no copy of the translation can be had. These arrests are to be made at once. Through them, it is expected here, a general conspiracy against white women will be uncovered.

NEW WITNESSES FOUND HERE.

Police Hear a Man Saw Missing Chinamen on Day of the Murder.

The police search in this city yesterday disclosed a witness who says that he saw Leon Ling and Chong Sing on the morning of June 9 at the Eighth Avenue chop suey house in which Miss Sigel's body was found doubled up in a trunk. The police would not tell who this witness was, but it is understood he is an employe of a motor cycle establishment on the third floor of the Eighth Avenue place.

The witness told the police that the two Chinamen went up the stairway leading to the fourth floor soon after 8 o'clock in the morning. They remained in the building on the third floor for more than two hours, and he did not see the Chinamen go out.

Before coming upon this information the police found no one who would admit having seen the Chinamen in the Eighth Avenue house at any time on June 9, the day it is supposed the murder was committed. The police believe the girl was strangled in the morning, and that the Chinamen escaped from the city before noon.

There is some doubt in the minds of the police as to whether the trunk in which the body was hidden belonged to either Leon Ling or his companion, Chong Sing. The trunk is old and battered, and looks, the police say, as though it had been brought up from a cellar for the purpose to which it was put. The police are inclined to believe that the trunk was sent to the Eighth Avenue house by some one who acted as an accomplice with Leon Ling and Chong Sing, and they think that possibly it was carted there from Chinatown. Efforts are being made to learn if any wagon drove up to the Eighth Avenue place the morning of June 9, bringing the trunk.

The detectives working on the case were surprised yesterday afternoon when, at 4 o'clock, Sun Leung, proprietor of the Eighth Avenue chop suey establishment, who disappeared on Friday after asking the police to break into Leon Ling's room, calmly shambled into Police Headquarters. The police had been searching everywhere in Chinatown for Sun Leung, and had given him up as safely hidden away. They wanted to ask him some questions concerning Leon Ling and Chong Sing. They have felt that Sun Leung could throw some light on how the murdered girl came to be in Leon Ling's apartment.

Sun Leung, who speaks English quite brokenly, walked into the detectives' room and told the doorman who he was, adding that he wanted to know if the police cared to speak to him. He was taken upstairs, and for three hours was put through a searching inquisition. What the Chinaman told the police was not divulged. After the detectives had questioned him until they were tired, the police sent him to Coroner Harburger, who held him in $1,000 bail for the inquest to-day.

Jealousy Theory Strengthened.

The police theory that Elsie Sigel was murdered because of jealousy between Leon Ling and Chu Gain, proprietor of the Port Arthur Restaurant, in Mott Street, both of whom were in love with her, was strengthened yesterday when they came upon a letter, in another search of Chu Gain's rooms. This letter was written to Chu Gain by Miss Sigel and told him that Leon Ling was very angry because he had learned that she had gone, against Leon Ling's wishes, to Chu Gain's restaurant. A perusal of the accumulation of love letters written by Miss Sigel to both Leon Ling and Chu Gain indicated, the police said, that the young mission worker had grown tired of Leon Ling and had transferred her affections to the Mott Street restaurant keeper.

The letters to Leon Ling cover a period of about eighteen months, up to within a week or so before the murder. Those written to Chu Gain extend from about seven months ago, and the police say there is one letter that was sent the Mott Street Chinaman two days before the girl was strangled to death. In the recent missives sent Chu Gain the young mission worker used phrases of deep endearment.

One of the letters which Miss Sigel wrote Leon Ling a week or so before she was murdered told of her having gone to see Chu Gain at his restaurant and of having taken some drink that made her ill. Leon Ling, after receiving this letter, sent the anonymous letter to Chu Gain, the police believe, in which the Mott Street Chinaman was told that if he did not cease his attentions to Miss Sigel both he and the girl would be murdered.

It developed in the investigation yesterday that Leon Ling, Chong Sing, Leung Sun, and all the other Chinamen who thus far figure in the tragedy, with the exception of Chu Gain, are affiliated with a Chinese Masonic society. Chu Gain belongs to another sort of organization. This, the police say, accounts for the readiness with which Chu Gain has talked concerning Leon Ling and his apparent effort to fasten the crime of murder upon the fugitive Chinaman. It appears, from what the police have learned, that bitter feeling has existed for years between Chu Gain and Leon Ling. It was maddening to Leon Ling, the police say, when he learned that Miss Sigel had evinced a fondness for his rival.

From a white man with whom Leon Ling had business relations, the police learned yesterday that Ling, only a week before the girl's murder, visited Elsie Sigel at her home, on Wadsworth Avenue, while her parents were away. Ling called to talk to her about her love affair with Chu Gain. While he was there, his business acquaintance, half expecting to find him at the girl's apartment, rang the bell. He demanded that Leon Ling pay him some money that Ling owed him. Ling invited him inside and they talked it over. Ling told his visitor that he had no money. During their conversation, this man told the police, Leon Ling made love to Miss Sigel and spoke to her concerning Chu Gain. It was evident, so the informant told the police, that Leon Ling was much wrought up because of the girl's having divided her affections.

Miss Sigel's father, Mr. Paul Sigel, in a talk with reporters yesterday, confirmed the police theory that his daughter was killed because of jealousy between Leon Ling and Chu Gain.

Father Tells of Love Affair.

"Now that I am convinced that it was my Elsie who was the victim of this murder, I am able to look back over the past and recall incidents that account for the crime," said Mr. Sigel. "I know it must have been jealousy between the two Chinamen. I knew that Elsie cared for Leon Ling. She spoke to me about him several times, hinting that she would like to marry him. I told her that it was bad enough to have a Chinaman calling at the house, but that I would never consent to marriage with one of them. Elsie was very careful after that about what she said to me about Leon Ling or any other Chinaman.

"I have learned that there was a party at my house the night before Elsie disappeared, and that half a dozen Chinamen were in the gathering. Leon Ling appeared at the door under the influence of liquor. He called Elsie aside and told her that if she had anything to do with Chu Gain he would kill her and cut Chu Gain up into small pieces. Elsie had no fear of him and told Leon Ling not to talk that way. She would not let him in and he left in an angry mood.

"If my daughter had spoken to me about that at the time I would have informed the police and something would have been done to keep Leon Ling from again seeing Elsie. I would have forbidden Elsie ever to go to Chinatown again or to associate with Chinamen, and I know she would have obeyed me. If this had happened the crime would never have been committed.

"I have good reason to believe that Leon Ling and Chong Sing were hanging around the apartment house where we live on the morning of June 9, when Elsie disappeared. It looks now as though they intercepted her as she was on her way to her grandmother's home, and that on some pretext she was induced to go to Leon Ling's den in Eighth Avenue. I have made inquiries, and from what I am able to learn Elsie was never in that house until the day she was lured there and killed."

Washington Letter Sent Here.

The letter which was received at the National Hotel in Washington, addressed presumably to Leon Ling, after the murder of Elsie Sigel, was brought to this city yesterday by Detective Sergeant Howlett, and was immediately given to a translator, it having been written in Chinese. It turned out that the letter was sent from this city on June 11, instead of June 9, as the police had supposed. It was addressed "William Lone," instead of Leon, which is the name Ling uses. On the back of the envelope was written the name of Sam Wing, 85 Bayard Street.

Deputy Police Commissioner Woods, who took charge of the letter, admitted, after it had been translated, that it seemed to have an important bearing on the murder, but he would not go into any details. There was a veiled reference to Elsie Sigel that the police could not understand. From the phrasing of the letter the police concluded that it had been written in some sort of secret code, but they were able to make enough out of it to convince them that the person who wrote it had some knowledge of the fate that had come to Elsie Sigel.

When a reporter went to 85 Bayard Street in another effort to find some trace of Sam Wing, he found four Chinamen in the laundry there. Two of them were in the place on Sunday when, after being visited by reporters, they suddenly disappeared. The Chinamen shook their heads when the reporter talked to them about Sam Wing as though indicating that they knew nothing of him. The police made no arrests at the Bayard Street laundry, but are watching the Chinamen so they cannot get away. The police are convinced that there is no Sam Wing, but that the name would have been understood by the person receiving the letter.

The body of Elsie Sigel was buried yesterday afternoon in Woodlawn Cemetery from the undertaking establishment of C. H. J. Erdenbrecker, at 2,699 Third Avenue. There were no services. The dead girl's father, her two brothers, and an uncle, Franz Sigel, went with the body to the cemetery.

While the burial was taking place there was a meeting of Chinese converts at the Morning Star Mission, 17 Doyers Street, at which plans were discussed for raising $1,000 to run down the girl's slayer. Fung Y. Mow, leader of the mission, afterward said that all the Chinamen connected with the Chinatown missions want to help the police to find Leon Ling.

"Ling was known in Chinatown as a bad man," said Fung Mow. "He was a gambler, very dissolute, and the Chinamen regarded him as a confidence man and one to be avoided by decent men of their race. They all shunned him. Chu Gain, on the contrary, has always been considered as a very good type of man."

Lieut. McGrath of the West 152d Street Police Station recalled last night that on the afternoon of June 1, about 4 o'clock, Leon Ling walked into the station house and asked the Lieutenant to send a policeman with him to the home of Miss Sigel, in Wadsworth Avenue.

Ling—he gave his Americanized name of William Leon—told the lieutenant that he had boarded with the Sigel family when they lived in West 188th Street a year ago, at which time he ran a Chinese pool game at Fort George. He declared that he had left some clothes at the Sigel home and that they had refused to let him have them. Ling said he was afraid to go to the house alone.

Lieut. McGrath sent a policeman with the Chinaman, and the officer waited in the hall of the apartment house while Ling asked for his clothes. The Lieutenant couldn't recall whether the clothes were given to Ling.

Woman Sent Note to Ling.

The telegram signed "Nellie," asking for money, which was gathered in with other effects taken from the room of Leon Ling, was traced yesterday as sent by Mrs. Nellie Hill, who lives in a tenement dwelling at 319 South First Street, Williamsburg. She was found at her home alone, and had just gotten up from bed. There was a pallor in her face and she appeared to be in poor health. She is about 24 or 25 years old, and told the reporter she lived with her husband, but that he had gone out.

"Yes, it was I that sent the telegram to Lun Leung, the proprietor of the Chinese restaurant in the Eighth Avenue house asking for money," said Mrs. Hill. "I sent it in March last, when I was in poor health and hard up for cash. But I have since paid it all back. I frequented the restaurant, having been there about five times altogether. I never went to any other part of the house. I had absolutely no acquaintance with Elsie Sigel nor the Chinamen who are accused of having killed her. The last time I was in the restaurant was a month ago. I cannot imagine how my telegram got into the hands of the police. I thought Leung had destroyed it, inasmuch as I paid him back the loan."

CHINA AIDS IN THE SEARCH.

Legation at Washington Orders Consuls to Help Run Down the Slayers.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—The Chinese Government took steps to-day looking toward the apprehension of the slayers of Elsie Sigel, orders being issued from the Chinese Legation here to Chinese Consuls throughout the United States to do everything in their power to assist in the arrest of the murderers.

The Consul Generals at New York and San Francisco particularly are directed to exercise great vigilance in the matter. It is pointed out that all possible assistance in the apprehension of those responsible for the girl's death should be rendered, not only that the wrongdoers may be punished, but that the world may know that the Chinese in America are not banded together to protect one another in crime.

The action of the legation is extraordinary, and is taken in Washington as showing the regret with which the Chinese officials view the tragedy. The Chinese have dwelt on the statement that very few crimes are committed in the United States by Chinese against Americans. Such crimes as are perpetrated, it is urged, are almost without exception directed against other Chinese.

MANY CHINAMEN ARRESTED.

Word of Arrests Sent Here from All Parts of the Country.

All over the country the police were engaged yesterday in detaining Chinamen who resembled Leon Ling and Chong Sing, the two suspects in the Elsie Sigel murder. From break to dark the telegraph wires brought messages telling of arrests in different cities. In some instances the police allowed their perplexed prisoners to go after brief questioning, but in other cases Chinamen were locked up until the police here could decide whether or not the suspects were the men wanted.

The day's developments in this branch of police activity made it quite clear that it was not safe to be a Chinaman hurrying anywhere with anything like a near resemblance to either Leon Ling or Chong Sing.

One of the earliest arrests of the day was soon before noon, when Policeman McManus of the Tremont Avenue Station saw a slimly built man at 177th Street and Boston Road, whom he took to be Leon Ling.

The policeman grabbed the stranger, and against the man's loud protests took him to the police station. There, to McManus's chagrin, it was promptly seen that the prisoner was a Japanese instead of a Chinaman. The prisoner was Mashahi Kopayashi, a lecturer, of 852 Vyse Avenue, the Bronx. He was allowed to depart, taking with him McManus's profound apologies.

Jun Ling, a Chinese laundryman of Elizabethport, N. J., went to Jersey City to visit some friends and was seized on a street car by a policeman because he looked like Chong Ling. Ling had to wait in a hot cell while Lieut. McMullin of the Central Office in this city went over and surveyed him. The lieutenant decided Ling was not the suspect wanted, and he was soon hurrying back to Elizabethport, wondering what it all meant.

Thinking they had a good clue, a group of detectives suddenly swooped down yesterday morning upon a house in C Street, Washington, expecting to find both Leon Ling and Chong Sing. The police had been informed that the two fugitives were living there with a woman who was supposed to have been abducted from this city. It turned out that the suspects were Japanese.

Immigrant Inspector Ting of Baltimore, a Chinaman, who was recently transferred from this city, narrowly escaped arrest at Washington when he stepped from a train at Union Station with his American wife. A score of detectives pursued Ting and his wife to the Howard House. When Ting's wife emerged some time later she was asked to explain all about the Chinaman. She laughed, and told the detectives that Ting was her husband. The detectives, still doubting, went to the hotel and were about to arrest Ting, but he told who he was, and the detectives withdrew.

The police of Morristown, N. J., picked up a man who had points of resemblance to Chong Sing. They wired in great haste to the police here, but later on sent another message not to mind sending a detective to Morristown, as they had found that their prisoner was a butler in a family there, and was a Japanese.

A Chinaman giving the name of George Lee Kin was arrested at Mishawaka, Ind., on receipt of word from the Chief of Police of Chicago that he was wanted in connection with the murder. The police here were asked about it and sent for a description of the man.

Word was received here that the police of West Binghamton, N. Y., were looking for a Chinaman who had appeared in town, alighting from a freight train, and supposed to have with him a considerable amount of money. The police there telegraphed that they were trying to learn what had become of the man after he reached town.

Detectives in Chicago spent a large part of the day running down a clue supplied by Mrs. Dora Levin, keeper of a boarding house near the Union Station. She told them that a Chinaman resembling one of the fugitives had called at her house and asked for a room. The caller had a satchel and seemed to be fatigued as though from a long ride. While Mrs. Levin was talking with the caller, he suddenly turned about and fled down the steps, saying he had changed his mind and was going to Pittsburg.

TAKE GIRLS FROM A LAUNDRY.

Three Chinamen Whom They Visited Arrested in Brooklyn.

Residents of the neighborhood of 146 Hoyt Street, Brooklyn, who have followed the recent disclosures in the Sigel murder case, were aroused yesterday afternoon, when a patrol wagon from the Butler Street Police Station backed to the curb in front of that address, and three white girls and three Chinamen were taken from a Chinese laundry on the ground floor, under arrest. Detectives Carberry and Doyle of the Brooklyn Detective Bureau made the raid on the laundry after they saw the three young women enter the place. The Chinamen gave their names as Mong Kee, Lou Toy, and Hong Kong, all living at the laundry at 146 Hoyt Street. The young women said they were Rose Bennett, 22 years, of 686 Fifth Avenue; May Bennett, 19 years old, and Ruth Lafayette, 17 years, both living at 17 Hicks Street.

The detectives who made the raid had been watching the girls earlier in the day, saw them visit two Chinese laundries on Atlantic Avenue, and another on Hoyt Street before they went to the store owned by Hong Kong. The detectives, foreseeing trouble as a result of the popular feeling over the murder of the Sigel girl, called Patrolmen Daly and Hines of the Butler Street Station to help them make the arrests. The patrol wagon had just stopped outside the laundry when a crowd gathered in front of the store, making threats against the Chinese prisoners. Hoots and derisive jeers greeted the Chinamen when they were taken to the patrol waggon, and a mob followed them all the way to Police Headquarters.

All six prisoners were in the Adams Street Court later in the day, when Magistrate Tighe held one of the Chinamen in $1,000 bail for examination to-morrow. The other two Chinamen were let go. The young women were held pending further examination to-morrow.

WHITE WOMAN IN OPIUM DEN.

Place in 42d Street Raided—Chinaman's Wife Knew Elsie Sigel.

Josie Suey, twenty-three years old, the white wife of Louis Suey, a Chinaman, was arrested with her husband last night in a raid on Suey's laundry and alleged opium den, at 309 West Forty-second Street. With the Sueys was arrested a white woman, Grace Hudson, 26, of 144 West Twenty-sixth Street, who was found in the basement under Suey's laundry.

Capt. Post and Plain Clothes Men Foster and Burberg of the West Forty-seventh Street Station heard that a white woman was seen going into Suey's laundry who had not come out, and they went there and discovered a trap door under the counter in the rear. Opening this, Capt. Post and his men slipped down into what they say was an elaborately fitted up opium den. In the little room were two bunks and a complete equipment of pipes, bowls, needles, and morphine.

There was so much excitement around the laundry during the raid that the reserves had to be called out to keep the crowds back.

The Sueys and the Hudson woman, together with as much of the alleged opium layout as could be put into the patrol wagon, were bundled off to the station house. Mrs. Suey declared in an interview a few days ago that she had met Elsie Sigel when she was a missionary in Chinatown.

After questioning the prisoners Capt. Post had it entered on the station bloter that they were wanted "as witnesses in the Elsie Sigel homicide case." Capt. Post refused to say what he had learned to warrant this action.

DEMAND BONAPARTE SECRET.

Senate Committee Wants Facts of a Prosecution Under Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Attorney General Wickersham, by an order adopted by the Senate Committee on Judiciary to-day, is commanded to send to the Senate all of the facts in the possession of the Department of Justice relating to the prosecution of Dr. E. Perrin of Williams, Arizona, on the charge of conspiracy to defraud the Government in California timber land cases.

These data were sealed by Attorney General Bonaparte, and the packages, which were left in the files of the Department of Justice, were marked "confidential." Mr. Wickersham declined to violate this indorsement, and the order of the committee was made to relieve him of responsibility.

The committee has demanded the papers because of opposition to the reappointment of Robert T. Devlin as United States District Attorney in California. He is charged with using improper methods in prosecuting the Perrin case. Perrin was convicted, but the verdict was reversed on appeal. An inquiry was made by W. R. Harr, an assistant to the Attorney General. He reported that Detective W. J. Burns told the Grand Jury that President Roosevelt wanted Perrin indicted. He also said that Perrin had been convicted on perjured testimony and recommended that the whole case be dismissed and the perjurer be prosecuted. Devlin has declined to take such action. The committee now wants to see the correspondence that passed between Attorney General Bonaparte and Devlin.

BALTIMORE, June 21.—Charles J. Bonaparte, ex-Attorney General, to-night declined to discuss the case of Dr. E. B. Perrin.

FIGHT OVER HIGGINS ESTATE.

Two Wills to Figure in the Contest Started by the Widow.

It is expected that there will be some interesting developments in the contest over the will of the late Thomas C. Higgins, a Brooklyn soap manufacturer, when the matter comes up before Surrogate Ketcham in that borough on June 30. As reported in THE TIMES on Sunday, the contest has been brought by Mrs. Gertrude S. Higgins, the young widow of Mr. Higgins, who was an aged man. Opposed to her are Dr. Edwin E. Higgins of Brooklyn, a son of Mr. Higgins by his first marriage, and the Misses Edith M. Cooke and Mary H. Cooke, granddaughters of Mr. Higgins, who live at Binghampton, N. Y.

Although Mr. Higgins had a large estate, it is said, at the time he made his first will in 1902, most of his property is believed to have been disposed of by him some time before his death. It is expected that efforts will be made to show that the greater part of the estate was transferred by Mr. Higgins to his young wife, and that he used most of his cash to purchase realty in her name.

The records in the Register's office in Brooklyn show transfers of some valuable parcels of realty to Mrs. Gertrude S. Higgins by George P. Hunter, the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, the Abels-Gold Realty Company, and others. All were made since 1902.

The estate is said to amount now to only about $10,000 in stocks and bonds. By the will made in 1902, Mr. Higgins left the income of $46,000 to be divided equally between the two Cooke girls, $20,000 in cash to Dr. Higgins and the income from $20,000. To his wife he left the income from $42,000. The rest of the estate was to be divided equally among his two granddaughters, his son, and his wife. In 1906 Mr. Higgins made another will, leaving the bulk of his estate to his wife. Mr. Higgins took this will from his lawyer's office, saying that he would destroy it, and that he intended to die intestate. After his death his widow, believing that he had died intestate, took out letters of administration on the estate. Then the Brooklyn Trust Company filed the will of 1902, which had been left in its care.

Mrs. Higgins says there was a clause in the 1906 will revoking all former wills, that it was the intention of Mr. Higgins to revoke the will of 1902, and that this one is invalid.

HUGHES THANKS COMMISSION.

Praises Public Spirit Displayed by Investigators of New York Exchanges.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 21.—Gov. Hughes to-day, in a letter to each member of the commission which investigated at his request the New York exchanges, expressed his thanks for the services they rendered. The letter follows:

> Permit me to thank you most cordially for the distinguished service you have rendered in the inquiry and report upon speculation in securities and commodities, pursuant to the request contained in my letter of Dec. 14, 1908. Your deliberate, expert, and impartial examination of this subject, so closely related to the public welfare, has made the community your debtors, and your voluntary assumption of so laborious a task and of the expenses connected therewith, displays a public spirit which can never be forgotten by your fellow-citizens. I am sure that the valuable contribution which you have made to the understanding of the matter in question will be generally appreciated.
> Very sincerely yours,
> CHARLES E. HUGHES.

FIGHT ON FOOD LAW BY STRONG CONCERNS

Suit Attacking the Whole Statute Is to be Filed by an Egg Company.

OTHERS ARE BEHIND PLAN

Beef Trust Believed to be Concerned—Might Find a Way to Return Id Methods.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—A final effort to set aside the pure food law will be started to-morrow when suit is brought in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia against James Wilson, Secretary of Agriculture. It will be instituted in the name of the Hipolite Egg Company, a St. Louis corporation, but it is intimated that the Beef Trust and other large users of preservatives in food are behind the litigation.

The complaint, which will be filed by Charles Summers, a St. Louis attorney and leading counsel for the Hipolite Egg Company, will ask for a temporary injunction against Secretary Wilson and the Department of Agriculture, preventing them from further interference with the plaintiff's business. If this is granted a motion will be filed to have the injunction made permanent. Then the real struggle for the overthrow of the law will begin. The litigation is the result of a seizure in Peoria, Ill., last March of canned eggs that had been preserved by the use of boric acid. Agents of the department traced a shipment of fifty cans to a wholesale grocery in that town and took possession of them as being unfit for food. Since then the Hipolite Egg Company has been unable to conduct its business, for no report of the department's decision nor any analysis of its goods by the Bureau of Chemistry has been forthcoming.

According to Mr. Summers, the suit is based on the ground that the company is sustaining irreparable injury to its business without any adequate remedy at law.

The fact that the Hipolite Company is merely the agent of other and much more wealthy concerns in the attack on the law is indicated in the wording of the bill of complaint in the possession of Mr. Summers. After naming his client his bill adds that the suit is filed "in behalf of all other persons and parties in interest who may care to join in this proceeding, and who, plaintiff states, are too numerous to be specifically mentioned herein." The attorney declines to divulge the names of the clients who keep in the background.

The assault has been elaborately planned, and is framed along lines different and more daring than any hitherto made. In the first place, the pure food law is declared to be unconstitutional because it gives to the Federal Government the police-regulating power delegated under the Constitution to the several States. In addition, it is set forth that under the Constitution Congress can only grant regulating powers and cannot delegate a prohibitionary power to any department of the General Government. It is also asserted that Congress cannot delegate to heads of executive departments the right to make rules and regulations under a general law. This, it is contended, vests legislative power in officials outside of Congress.

The egg company admits the right of the Department of Agriculture to take any action it may see fit in the case of questionable foodstuffs discovered in the District of Columbia, the Territories, or the insular possessions of the United States.

The liquid egg mixture involved in the dispute, its manufacturers declare, is not used as a direct food, but is utilized by bakers and confectioners in the making of cakes, pies, and pastries. The company declares it uses between 1 and 2 per cent. of boric acid to each five-gallon can of its mixture; that this is reduced to an infinitesimal percentage when the mixture is included in other materials, and that the addition of the acid is not only not injurious to health, but is a decided food addition.

The evident desire of the other persons connected with the suit not to figure openly in it is attributed to their fear of publicity.

Boric acid was one of the chief preservatives used by the packing houses.

MAGISTRATE TOOK A LOOK.

Then He Dismissed the Motorist Who Was Arrested for Having Bright Lamps

Charged with frightening horses by having too bright a light in the lamps of his automobile, Frank A. Frost of Birmingham, N. Y., was taken before Magistrate Barlow in the Night Court last night.

According to Policeman Bernard of the Traffic Squad, Mr. Frost was coming down Broadway in his touring car with two bright acetelene lamps throwing lights in all directions, so the policeman arrested him for violation of a city ordinance.

Mr. Frost said his lamps were only burning half power, and succeeded in getting Magistrate Barlow to go out in front of the court and look at them. After taking a view, Mr. Frost and the Magistrate returned to the judicial chambers, where Mr. Frost was dismissed with a reprimand.

"I wish we could keep you to-night, Mr. Frost," said the Magistrate. "It's powerful hot in this courtroom. Good night; consider yourself reprimanded."

KUHNE'S RESPITE NEAR END.

Court Remittitur Arrives and Police Captain Will Soon Be in Jail.

The remittitur in the case of Acting Captain Kuhne of the Brooklyn Detective Bureau, whose sentence to thirty days in jail for contempt of court was upheld by the Court of Appeals, has reached Brooklyn from Albany, and Kuhne may be sent to jail either to-day or to-morrow.

The remittitur was placed in the hands of Stephen C. Baldwin yesterday afternoon. Mr. Baldwin filed the papers at once with the Appellate Division, but that body was too busy to attend to the matter yesterday.

Cleveland Democracy Meeting.

About 100 people went to the meeting of the Cleveland Democracy last night at the organization headquarters, 272 West 125th Street. William B. Selden presided. The resolutions adopted call all citizens of whatever party to rally under the union banner, and the Cleveland motto, "Public office is a public trust," to work for direct primaries, more and better transit lines, and to oust the "present extravagant, inefficient, and pernicious administration of Tammany Hall."

ICE WAGON TEAM RUNS AWAY.

Frightened by a Blast, It Upsets a Rig and Kills a Horse.

An ice wagon team standing at Claremont Avenue and 119th Street, frightened by a blast yestohrday afternoon, set off in a neighboring lot, ran without a driver for seven blocks. Before it was stopped, at 123d Street and Amsterdam Avenue, it overturned a Street Cleaning wagon and grazed a grocer's wagon which stood in the driveway which cuts in half the grove of Columbia University, tore the rear wheels off the ice wagon, and finished their dash by killing a horse attached to a meat wagon owned by David Hertzog of 1,246 Amsterdam Avenue.

James Peutjel of 349 Concord Avenue, the driver of the ice wagon, which is attached to Department B of the American Ice Company, at Fifty-second Street and the East River, was delivering ice in an apartment at 119th Street and Claremont Avenue, when he heard screams in the street. He ran from the building in time to see his team and wagon dashing east to Broadway, with people scurrying from the path.

The runaways were caught by Policeman Wolff of the West 125th Street Station.

the proposed bill will return. President Taft has had no estimate which professes to be at all detailed. The Treasury Department not only has no figures, but it is said that it has nothing to do in the matter. The Bureau of Corporations is equally at sea, and the Inter-State Commerce Commission has only its figures of the earnings of railroads, with no knowledge available in practical form of the bondholdings that would cut such a figure in any proper estimate. At the Senate it is believed the total revenue, if the interest on bonds were to be taxed, would be about $40,000,000, but with these exempted, and counting the exemptions of small corporations, the total returns would be about $25,000,000. It was admitted, however, that that was merely guess work based vaguely upon some census figures.

Corporation Men Gathering.

It is noticeable that there are several corporation men in Washington to-night who were not here last week when the President sent his message to Congress. They are not saying anything against the tax as a tax, but the way in which they express their opinions of the proposition to supervise them, the so-called "publicity" features of the bill, shows that they are here to make trouble.

It is the possibility of having a cloud of "$1,200 Inspectors," as one of the corporation men put it this afternoon, coming down on them at inconvenient intervals to audit their books and overhaul their business, "and then, for $200, tell our rivals all about it," that is making these men tear their hair.

"I don't mind the tax at all," said one man this afternoon. "We have got to come to some form of direct taxation sooner or later, and it might just as well be this and now as something else at some other time. If they can fix it so that we don't have a lot of men of the cheap Government Inspector type poking through our affairs it is all right. I don't believe anybody except maybe some of the big hogs who always object to everything will oppose the tax as a tax, if the publicity features are fixed right."

The whole question is in such a state of uncertainty to-night that the natural impression is that it will prolong the session indefinitely, and there were Senators at the White House to-day who said they expected to be here all Summer. Sept. 1 is not an infrequent guess as the date of adjournment, and no one now hazards a guess at earlier than the last of July.

Fear Trickery by Old Guard.

The clamor of opposition that is arising has already given rise to suspicions of a design to defeat the proposed tax by some indirect method before the bill goes to the President for his action. The openly expressed opinion of the President that the Supreme Court would again hold an income tax law to be unconstitutional has brought out the suggestion that in the end the Senate old guard will be found voting for an income tax instead of the corporation tax in the hope that the Supreme Court will kill it, and in the certainty that it would take at least three years to get a decision.

President Taft has no doubts at all as to the legality and constitutionality of the proposed tax. He said to some of his callers to-day that the Spreckels case covered the point fully. It was pointed out that if an income tax were to be attempted the lower court would be bound, under the decision of the Supreme Court in the Pollock case, to enjoin its collection at the first request, but that in the case of the corporation tax the lower courts would be bound by the ruling in the Spreckels case and the law would be upheld. The President did not seem to think it possible that some of the lower courts might declare the proposed law unconstitutional and thus hold up the collection of the tax until the Supreme Court had rendered its decision.

No Progress on the Schedule.

No progress whatever was made in the disposal of the tariff schedules to-day. Four long speeches were delivered on hides, and other speeches are expected to-morrow on the same subject. Senator Carter and Senator Warren spoke for the duty of 15 per cent., while Senators Page and Daniel spoke against it. That the question is regarded as important was evidenced in the fact that even the longest speeches did not empty the chamber.

In the cloak rooms and among committee members there were strong indications to-day that the duty had been acquiesced in by the committee and would be insisted on in conference on account of extreme political exigency. A member of the committee to-day went so far as to declare that the ultimate passage of the bill through the Senate would be seriously endangered by a return to the House demand for free hides. On that ground, it is said, Mr. Aldrich and his associates, glad as they would be to give the New England shoe industry free raw material, will hardly dare to do so.

A feature of the debate was Senator Daniel's return to his former open hostility to Mr. Bryan. He voted for a duty on iron ore, and is expected to vote for a duty on lumber and other products, and those votes have attracted criticism from the Nebraskan.

"His loud-mouthed adulators," said Mr. Daniel, "think that whatever Mr. Bryan says settles it. In his speech for the 10 per cent. bank tax on June 5, 1894, Mr. Bryan, in parting company with his associates, declared that no man need be bound by a platform he did not write. I will say that Mr. Bryan has avoided that responsibility but seldom in the past twelve years. What is the use of arguing with small-fry politicians who deride Senators because they do not take up the rejected and discarded platform of 1898? No party takes the same platform twice."

HUGHES SUSTAINS BASSETT.

Refuses to Remove Commissioner at Request of Brooklyn Subway Association.

ALBANY, June 21.—Under instructions from Gov. Hughes, Secretary Robert H. Fuller to-day replied to the resolution adopted by the Fourth Avenue Subway Association of Brooklyn requesting the Governor to remove from office Edward M. Bassett, a member of the Public Service Commission, First District, because of Commissioner Bassett's reported opposition to the construction of the Fourth Avenue Subway. The Governor denied the request.

"Gov. Hughes directs me to say," says Mr. Fuller's letter to James L. MacCarthy, Secretary of the association, "that while he is deeply interested in having an extension of rapid-transit facilities and in meeting the requirements of the Borough of Brooklyn, he has absolute confidence in the efficiency and integrity of Commissioner Bassett, who is entitled to the respect and esteem of the community, regardless of any difference of opinion as to particular questions."

Senate Hears Newsboy's Message.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Probably for the first time in the history of the Senate a communication from a newsboy was read in open session to-day. It was signed by Arthur Prague, manager of the Spokane Newsboys' Association, expressing regret upon learning of the death of the Rev. Edward Everett Hale. Senator Piles of Washington asked that the communication, which was written on a postal card, be read to the Senate, thus insuring its printing in The Congressional Record.

GOULD NOT A WITNESS AND DEFENSE RESTS

Wife's Rebuttal Begins with Affidavits by Guests at Her Dinner to Khedive.

SHE WILL TESTIFY AGAIN

Case Likely to End Wednesday or Thursday—Witnesses Say They Never Saw Mrs. Gould Drink.

Howard Gould did not go on the witness stand yesterday to testify in his own behalf in the trial of the separation suit brought against him by Mrs. Viola Katherine Gould. Instead, when the trial was resumed before Supreme Court Justice Dowling, De Lancey Nicoll, Mr. Gould's counsel, declared to the court that in his opinion the testimony offered in support of the contention that his client had been justified in abandoning his wife, was so complete that he had decided to rest his case.

The decision not to put Gould on the stand was not altogether unexpected, but it deprived Clarence J. Shearn, counsel for Mrs. Gould, of the chance to put Mr. Gould through a cross-examination which would have proved interesting. Mrs. Gould was disappointed, while Mr. Shearn evidently had not anticipated such an abrupt ending of the defense's case.

The task of rebutting the testimony offered by the defense was begun by the reading of the depositions of Capt. Henry M. Bankhead, U. S. A., and his wife, Mrs. Alice Stickney Bankhead. Mr. Nicoll objected to the reading of the Bankhead depositions on the ground that they covered nothing set up by the defense, and, although Justice Dowling asked Mr. Shearn whether he thought it necessary to read the documents, Mrs. Gould's lawyer insisted, saying he wanted to leave no possible point uncovered.

Witnesses for Mrs. Gould.

Mrs. Bankhead married Capt. Bankhead in 1903. Prior to that time she lived in Egypt with her guardian, Col. John J. Long, who was the American Consul General at Cairo. Mrs. Bankhead, who was then Miss Alice Stickney, met Mr. and Mrs. Gould on their trip up the Nile and was present at the dinner given by them to the Khedive and his brother, Prince Mohammed Ali, and others. Later, both Capt. and Mrs. Bankhead were the guests of the Goulds, both at Castle Gould and the St. Regis.

In her deposition Mrs. Bankhead described Mrs. Gould's conduct as that of a refined gentlewoman. She said she had never seen her hostess drink to excess, or, in fact, show the slightest sign ever of being under the influence of liquor. Capt. Bankhead supported his wife's certificate of good conduct. He said he had never seen Mrs. Gould intoxicated and never heard her use any but refined language.

Louis O. Foreman, Superintendent for a heating and ventilating concern at 537 West Broadway, was the first witness called in rebuttal. He was at Castle Gould at times from May, 1901, to December, 1905, during which time he saw Mrs. Gould frequently. He testified that he never saw her under the influence of liquor, or heard her use bad language.

William F. Murphy of Brooklyn, an automobile broker, who said he had charge of the automobiles at Castle Gould from Sept. 15, 1900, until April, 1902, said that he had frequently driven Mrs. Gould about the estate and had never seen her intoxicated, or even any signs of liquor on her.

More About That Roadhouse.

Mr. Nicoll also questioned the witness about a man named Flaherty, who has been active in rounding-up witnesses for Mrs. Gould. Murphy and most of the other witnesses admitted knowing Flaherty, who was formerly the proprietor of a roadhouse on the Vanderbilt Cup course. There have been a lot of mysterious references to a roadhouse situated on the Vanderbilt Cup course, where, it is said, Mrs. Gould and Dustin Farnum put up during their ride to Castle Gould in 1906, when their machine struck a tree.

Mrs. Gould has all along been unable to describe the location of this roadhouse, despite many tries by Mr. Nicoll to get her to do so. It was brought out at the hearing that the roadhouse was on the Great Neck Road, the direct route between New York and Castle Gould.

The next witness was Michael J. Duffy of 117 East Ninetieth Street. He was Superintendent of Building Construction at the Pennsylvania terminal, and from August, 1902, to May, 1904, occupied a similar position at Castle Gould. Mr. Duffy had never seen Mrs. Gould intoxicated or under the influence of liquor.

Brother against brother was the case with the next witness called, who was Jacob Cocks. Last week William Cocks testified for Mr. Gould and said he had seen Mrs. Gould intoxicated. To offset this Mr. Shearn got from Jacob Cocks that, although he had worked at Castle Gould from 1901 to 1906 as a building contractor, he had never seen Mrs. Gould under the influence of liquor or heard her use an unladylike expression.

Other witnesses who swore they had never seen Mrs. Gould under the influence of liquor, or heard her use bad language, were Eugene A. Pinckney, a rustic worker, who said he had never seen her take even a glass of water; Henry A. Du Bois, a builder; William Cullen, formerly a bedroom steward on the Niagara; Bridget McIlroy Kelly, a former housemaid at Castle Gould; James Marlborough, a former gardener, and Victor Rita, a steward on the Niagara.

Thomas J. Jones of 574 Ninth Avenue, Astoria, L. I., who was private secretary to Mrs. Gould from August, 1904, to January, 1905, said his employer would dictate her answers to the morning's mail usually about 9 o'clock in the morning, and sign them during the afternoon.

Last week Herbert Schmidt, Mrs. Gould's chauffeur, testified that on one occasion he heard Mrs. Gould threaten to have Jones thrown out of the St. Regis if he didn't get out in a hurry, but Jones said no such thing ever happened.

There is every likelihood of the case being finished by Wednesday or Thursday at the latest. Mrs. Gould will again testify.

Airships for the Fulton Celebration.

The Executive Committee of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission, at its meeting yesterday afternoon, voted a large appropriation to make possible an exhibition of airships and aeroplanes in connection with the celebration. The committee has engaged William J. Hammer to assist in arranging a programme, and efforts will be made to have the Wright brothers participate. The idea is to have a flight of airships up the Hudson at the same time that models of Fulton's steamboat and Hendrick Hudson's Half Moon are on the river.

Wise Going to Paris in Panama Case.

The publisher of The New York World, indicted for libel in connection with the Panama Canal story, having obtained an order in the Criminal Branch of the United States Circuit Court for the examination of certain witnesses residing in Paris, United States District Attorney Henry A. Wise will attend the hearing abroad. He will leave by a liner sailing on June 30, and expects to remain in Paris for five weeks. During the argument on the Sanford Robinson demurrer, Mr. Wise said he wanted to try Arthur P. Heinze as quickly as possible, as he was preparing to leave for Paris in compliance with a court order to take part in the examination of the defendant's witnesses in the Panama matter.

FATHER LECTURES THE COURT

Doesn't Believe in Whipping Children and Pays Fine After His Talk.

Refusing to whip his son instead of paying a $2 fine, Adolph Deutsch, Sr., turned the tables and lectured Justice Olmsted yesterday in the Children's Court.

"There are better ways of bringing up children in the paths of righteousness than beating an appreciation of right and wrong into them from the exterior with cruel straps and cowhides," said Deutsch senior, speaking for the father of Samuel Green as well as for himself. "I believe that instead of strapping our children we would do better by them and the cause of humanity and the general uplift if we set our offending children down before us and impressed upon them, simply though effectively, through word and argument, the correct sense of right and wrong and the futility of committing the wrongs.

"Once show a boy clearly where it is to his ultimate advancement and gain from every viewpoint to behave himself—to be square and do the right thing—and if he is a chap with a spark of ambition he will take your kind advice and profit immensely by it.

"Of course you may have to repeat things to him to make him see it clearly, but once instill this clear conception into him and all is well with those boys who have any hope of leading a decent life. There may be toughs and roughnecks who need the strap, but my boy is not one of them."

Justice Olmsted sat all through this lecture with a peculiar smile playing upon his countenance, but this smile changed suddenly when Deutsch concluded:

"And I don't think my boy is guilty of any wrong in this matter."

"That's where you are wrong yourself," interrupted Justice Olmsted. "I myself subscribe to corporal punishment only when it is necessary, and in this case it seems necessary to me if your boy is to be properly corrected and impressed with the wrong of his actions. You will have to whip your boy or pay $2 fine."

Deutsch paid the fine, as did also the father of Samuel Green. A third man, father of Henry Seigel, 13 years old, of 16 East 115th Street, chose to apply the strap to his boy. Deutsch lives at 20 East 115th Street, and Green at 7 East 115th Street. The three boys were arraigned on a charge of signaling to and calling women and girls passing through 115th Street on Sunday, and playing a game of cards on the stoop of a house, blocking the entrance and exit.

BRANDENBURG JUROR ILL.

Trial Put Over Till To-day—Brandenburg Ready to Testify.

Owing to the indisposition of Henry S. Terwilliger, one of the jurors, the trial of Broughton Brandenburg in the criminal part of the Supreme Court on the charge of grand larceny in the second degree arising out of the sale to THE NEW YORK TIMES of a political article purporting to be written and signed by the late Grover Cleveland went over yesterday. It is hoped that it will be resumed this morning at 10 o'clock, with the defendant on the stand.

The depositions of F. S. Hastings, executor for the Cleveland estate, were, however, taken by consent of counsel in the District Attorney's office, as he was anxious to leave town for a vacation. He is a witness for the defense, which has called him to show that he had sufficient belief in the genuineness of the article to write to THE TIMES that he "had no reason to believe" that it was not written by Mr. Cleveland. Moreover, he went on record as deeming the signature submitted to him by Mr. Ybarra of THE TIMES genuine.

His testimony, when it has been passed upon by Justice Fitzgerald, will be introduced into court in its proper place. He was under examination yesterday by Mr. Jacoby and Bell Thomas for the defendant and by Mr. Nott and Mr. Manley for the People for an hour and a half.

Brandenburg was permitted yesterday afternoon to go, accompanied by a Deputy Sheriff and Mr. Thomas, to a boarding house in Irving Place. There some of his papers are retained by the landlady, and he was anxious to look throgh them to see if certain letters of Grover Cleveland to him were among them.

DEATH RATE STILL FALLING.

It Was 14.10 Last Week, as Against 14.45 for the Same Week in 1908.

The city's death roll last week was 1,234, an increase of 94 over the corresponding week of last year, but with a smaller death rate, increase in population being considered, than for the same week last year.

The Health Commissioner's report shows a decrease in deaths in all diseases against which the department has made a special fight through preventive measures. Deaths of children under 1 year last week were 222, as against 268 for last year; there were 372 deaths of children between 2 and 5 years, as against 399 for the same period last year.

There were 546 deaths in tenements last week, as against 473 for the same week last year, and 21 from scarlet fever, as against 28 last year.

Despite the year's increase in population, the deaths from tuberculosis were only two more than for the same week last year—145 to 143.

A slight increase in deaths from measles and diphtheria is recorded.

The week's death rate was 14.10 per thousand, against 14.45 for the same week in 1908.

NO HUMAN KINDNESS HERE.

Du Ghan Met It in the Desert, Though—Kills Himself After Reverses.

Salama Du Ghan of 261 West Eighteenth Street, an Arabian photographer, linguist, and tourist guide, committed suicide some time Sunday morning by swallowing cyanide of potassium in the cellar of a Fourteenth Street drug store. Until recently he was in prosperous circumstances, and financial reverses were the cause of his suicide. In a letter to his wife, Du Ghan said he was tired of life and that he had decided that the best thing he could do was to "die in peace."

Du Ghan was born in Jerusalem and began his career as a guide to tourists in Palestine. While engaged in this occupation, he became fluent in five languages. Recently he moved from handsome apartments to the Eighteenth Street address. A friend who saw him a few days ago said that Du Ghan, in referring to his reverses, made this remark:

"In the desert you sometimes meet with human kindness; here never."

The body was taken to the Mercer Street Station, where its was claimed later by relatives.

Cars on Speeding Train Ablaze.

A canvas vestibule covering between two cars on the Chicago Fast Mail of the New York Central, which left the Grand Central Station at 12:50 o'clock yesterday, caught fire in some way between Eighty-sixth Street and Park Avenue and 116th Street, and was blazing briskly when the train emerged from the tunnel. Some one saw the train passing 116th Street and turned in a fire alarm. The train drew up at 125th Street and many passengers alighted. The train crew and firemen, with extinguishers, put out the fire. The train then proceeded on its way, having been delayed about fifteen minutes. The damage was slight.

Nantucket Wireless Out of Order.

The steamship Vaderland of the Red Star Line, in yesterday from Antwerp, brought information that the wireless apparatus in the Nantucket lightship is disabled. The Vaderland was passing the lightship when a string of signal flags were run up in the lightvessel's mast, requesting the Vaderland to report the mishap to the naval station at Newport.

Smolensky to Become Smolen.

Supreme Court Justice Guy has given permission to John Vincent Smolensky of 223 East 100th Street and of the contracting firm of J. Harry Nicholson & Co., at 1 Madison Avenue, to change his name to Smolen after July 24. Mr. Smolensky alleges that his present name interferes with his business and embarrasses him at public gatherings.

WANT MORE LIBERAL CHARTER FOR BROWN

Committee Favors Elimination of Denominational Requirements in Election of Trustees.

TO AVOID RELIGIOUS TESTS

And to Remove Public Misconstruction as to Attitude of University—Want Carnegie Foundation Benefits.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 21.—The committee appointed by the Trustees and Fellows of Brown University to consider the subject of changes in the university charter in regard to those provisions which impose denominational requirements in the election of Trustees, Fellows, President, professors, and tutors, and restrictions in public instruction in matters of sectarian opinions, presented their report to-day to the corporation favoring the elimination of the denominational requirements.

While the report states that the changes are not recommended "chiefly because we desire to secure the benefits of the Carnegie Foundation for our Faculty," the committee says, "we frankly acknowledge that the Carnegie Foundation has brought the issue of charter revision again to the front, and that we do desire, not for the corporation, but for our Faculty, the benefits of that foundation. Nevertheless, the reasons for change existed fifty years ago, and would remain if the Carnegie Foundation should vanish."

After stating that they have made a careful investigation into all phases of the proposed changes, the committee gives the following reasons for which it believes the removal of denominational provisions from the charter is desirable:

To preserve the spirit and fulfill the real purpose of the founders.

To avoid the necessity of inquisition into the theological position and ecclesiastical relation of every candidate for the Board of Trustees.

To avoid all religious tests for members of the teaching staff.

To render eligible to the Board of Trustees the large section of the alumni which is now excluded.

To remove public misconstruction as to the truly "liberal and catholic" attitude of the university, and to secure for our Faculty both the recognition to which they are entitled and the support for themselves in their old age and for their families which such recognition involves.

In discussing the reasons for their conclusions the report notes the peculiar and embarrassing situation which arises when Trustees or instructors are to be elected and it becomes necessary to inquire into their religious beliefs. "A document which was extraordinarily liberal for 1764 is no longer so in 1909," the report reads. "Intended to secure in the governing body a comprehensive representation of the great branches of the Christian Church, it excludes all churches save those four which were prominent in New England in 1764.

"If interpreted literally it surrounds the Faculty and corporation with restrictions which are antiquated and out of harmony with the spirit of the present age and the desire of the founders. The difficulty of literal adherence to the venerable document increases with every decade as religious conditions change. Denominational barriers are falling and denominational lines are not as sharp and clear as in the eighteenth century. If it is said that actual church membership should be required of every candidate for the Board of Trustees, we must remember that Nicholas Brown, for whom our university was named, was not a church member."

The committee says that while every graduate knows that there is not the slightest attempt at denominational propaganda within the walls of the university, it is impossible to persuade the public of that fact so long as they have charter requirements more specific in denominational restrictions than can be found in the charter of any other American college.

OPERATE ON OSCAR S. STRAUS.

New Ambassador to Turkey Recovering from Appendicitis.

Oscar S. Straus ex-Secretary of Commerce and Labor, is recovering from an operation for appendicitis performed on him last Saturday morning in the apartment of one of his relatives, in this city. Ever since he left Washington this Spring, ex-Secretary Straus and his wife have been staying with their relatives in Long Branch and this city.

Mr. Straus, seemingly in the best of health, was, according to his friends, traveling about the city every day, making plans for his approaching trip to Turkey, where he is to be Ambassador. He called on his brother, Nathan Straus, on Thursday, and seemed in good health and spirits. On Friday he began to suffer slight pain from what he took to be the recurrence of an attack of indigestion from which he suffered a year ago while on a visit from this city to Washington. The pain increased Friday night, and on Saturday morning, although the physicians were not positive that the ex-Secretary had appendicitis, they advised him to have the operation performed.

The operation was performed by Dr. Brewer, and was entirely successful. It was said yesterday that Mr. Straus would probably be out within a week, and that his trip to take up the Ambassadorship at Constantinople, on which he had planned to start early next month, would not be delayed.

BAPTISTS AFTER ROW EXPEL PROF. FOSTER

HIS SON SHOUTS PROTEST

Ministers Who Attempt to Defend Him Silenced—Educator's Standing in the Church Not Affected.

CHICAGO, June 21.—Prof. George Burman Foster of the University of Chicago, whose denial of the divinity of Christ in a recent book has stirred up much resentment, was dropped from the Baptist Ministers' Conference of Chicago to-day.

Hisses, yells, and general confusion made the meeting one of the stormiest ever held by churchmen in Chicago, and it was referred to by one preacher as resembling a political meeting in a rowdy ward. Preachers who had been howled or hissed down sat with flushed faces while the Chairman pounded for order.

The young son of Prof. Foster was present. "It's a shame and unfair!" he shouted as he left the hall.

The insistence of the Rev. Dr. A. C. Dixon of the Moody Church that Prof. Foster be dropped for a time brought the fight around to himself. The Rev. Dr. D. D. McLaurin quickly asked for a committee to investigate Dr. Dixon's right to membership in the conference. This motion was hissed down, and Dr. Dixon explained that he joined the Baptist Church in New York.

Dr. M. P. Boynton came in for a hissing when he said:

"We are not going at this matter right. Foster is as good as Myers or any one here and—"

The Myers he referred to is the Rev. Dr. Johnston Myers, one of the chief assailants of Prof. Foster. Some of the ministers tried to check the hissing, but Dr. Myers shouted: "It is no worse to hiss than to have those present denounced as Dr. Boynton is doing. The hisses should not be stopped unless Dr. Boynton is stopped!"

Dr. Myers attempted to introduce a resolution to drop Prof. Foster, whereat he was assailed by the Rev. Dr. A. H. Harnley.

"This matter was decided for good and all last week," he shouted. "Dr. Myers promised on his honor that if he didn't get his resolution through then he would not again bring it up. Now he is doing exactly contrary to his promise."

"I deny the statement," responded Dr. Myers coolly. "I promised not to reintroduce that particular motion because my motives had been questioned. Specific charges were wanted, and that is what I have here to-day."

Motions, counter-motions, and a parliamentary mix-up generally followed. After four hours, however, worn out by their exertions and emotions, the preachers adopted the resolution dropping Prof. Foster from the conference. The conference had not the power to expel him from the Church.

PRACTICAL HELP TO CRIPPLES

University Extension Society Appeals for Aid in Financing the Charity.

Twenty-three classes for the physical training of crippled children, with an enrollment of over 350, were carried on free of charge in various parts of this city last year by the People's University Extension Society of 105 East Seventeenth Street.

Ninety-six free classes in manual and domestic training were given to an enrollment of about 900 crippled children during the year, besides twenty-four free classes for mentally defective children.

The manual work taught included basketry, bookbinding, chair caning, economic cooking, dressmaking, elementary carpentry, embroidery, cord work, sewing, shirtwaist making, and weaving.

One badly crippled boy of 10 learned chair caning so quickly that he soon hung out a sign at his door for chairs to cane, and by the time he had received nine lessons he had caned four chairs on orders that had been given him. Crippled and blind men and women from 60 to 80 years old have been members of some of the free classes of this society, and they have sometimes done very good work.

One of the largest departments of the work of this society is supplying free lectures by physicians to meetings of tenement mothers. These free classes are supported by voluntary contributions, and donations to aid the work should be sent to J. Eugene Whitney, 105 East Seventeenth Street, Treasurer of the People's University Extension Society. The President of the society is Dr. Rossiter Johnson.

The two-piece Suit for Men is by no means a strictly "negligee" effect

The word "negligee" has been adopted into our language, and at the same time its "half-dress" significance scarcely applies to the two-piece suit—except, indeed, as some makers of men's clothes regard them—for "negligee" is sometimes taken to mean "slouchiness"—a trait very easily observable in garments that are not shapely—and shape-retaining.

Originally conceived for purposes of outing wear, the two-garment suit, by sheer force of its utilitarian qualities, has firmly established its usefulness for every-day dress.

Our tailormen have been trained to put into the production of our Two-piece Suits an amount of careful detail which is absolute assurance of graceful outlines—and a retention of those outlines until the end.

Shown in all the newest colorings and patterns—light or tropical weight materials, ½, ¼ or ⅛ lined with serge, mohair or silk,

The Importance of Storing Furs

The most expert care of furs in the home is a poor substitute for Dry Cold Storage.

FEW HIGH MARKS FOR LEGISLATORS

Citizens' Union Finds Little to Praise in Its Retrospect of the Last Session.

HARD KNOCKS FOR TAMMANY

Senator McCarren Put on the List of Undesirables Along with the Sullivans and Grady.

The Committee on Legislation of the Citizens' Union made public yesterday its annual report, in which judgment is passed individually on every representative in either house of the Legislature from this city. Very few of the members receive high marks.

A clean bill of health is given to Senators George B. Agnew, Josiah T. Newcomb, and Eugene M. Travis. Senators Alexander Brough, George M. S. Schulz, and Robert F. Wagner are declared to have been "useful representatives." The performance of Senators Howard N. Bayne and William J. A. Caffrey, both first-year members, are pronounced "promising." Senators Alvah A. Burlingame and Stephen J. Stilwell are given credit for having voted right in some instances. Of the other New York members in the upper house, the report says:

> Senators McCarren and Grady continue to be a serious menace to good government; and there can be but little doubt that, so long as they remain in the Legislature, the public interest will be subordinated to private interests. Senators Cullen, McManus, C. D. Sullivan, and T. D. Sullivan are thoroughly unfit. The continuance in office of these six Senators is a standing disgrace to the city. Since more may properly be expected from legislators who have had experience than from new members, Senators Frawley and Harte, measured by proper standards, are clearly wanting in public usefulness. The other Senators from this city—Alt, Cronin, Gledhill, and Kissel—have made bad records.

Of the Assemblymen only William M. Bennett of the Fifteenth New York District, George A. Green of the Twelfth District, Kings, and Warren I. Lee of the Eighteenth District, Kings, come in for unqualified commendation.

Assemblymen William W. Colne of the Eleventh District, Kings; Robert S. Conklin of the Twenty-first District, New York; Conrad Garbe of the Third District, Queens; William Klein of the Second District, Queens; Patrick J. McGrath of the Twentieth District, New York; Samuel Marks of the Thirty-first District, New York; Andrew F. Murray of the Nineteenth District, New York; Isaac Sargent of the Twenty-third District, Kings; Thomas H. Todd of the First District, Queens, and Frederick R. Toombs of the Seventeenth District, New York, are given credit for records above the average.

Assemblymen Owen W. Bohan of the Eleventh District, New York; James A. Francis of the Twenty-third District, New York, and James J. Hoey of the Thirteenth District, are declared in the report to have "each on conspicuous occasions given valuable service, though each has at other times stood against the public interest."

For Assemblymen Lindon Bates, Jr., of the Twenty-ninth District, New York; Henry S. Goodspeed of the First District, Kings, both first-year members, there is declared to be hope. Their re-election is recommended despite "serious flaws in their records."

The re-election of Thomas J. Lanahan, representing Richmond, and Harold Spielberg, representing the Tenth District, New York, is also recommended, though with this qualification that if "conspicuously able men of vigorous public spirit" could be nominated their election over all the present New York Assemblymen with the exception of Bennett, Green, and Lee would be desirable. Of the other Assemblymen from this city the report says:

> All the other New York City Assemblymen should be replaced by more reliable public servants. Assemblymen De Groot, Foley, Murphy, Robinson, and Smith are the more dangerous because of their experience and influence. Any lingering hope that Assemblyman Robinson would redeem his bad record of last year and represent the desires of progressive and intelligent citizenship has been destroyed by his course this year, and his official career certainly ought to be terminated. Assemblyman Smith has also disappointed the expectations of those who believed he would make a proper use of his increased influence. Assemblyman Ward, who made a good record last year, disappointed expectations by following the machine in his votes. In the large class of legislators who, though not themselves effective, yet by their votes furnish the support necessary to block progressive reforms and to pass bad bills, are Assemblymen Brennan, Clarke, Cuvillier, Donnelly, Fay, Geoghegan, Goldberg, Herrick, Jacob Levy, McCue, Oliver, Sanner, Schmidt, Schutta, and Silbermann. The other New York City Assemblymen—Baumann, Brown, Caughlan, Eagleton, Farrar, Gillen, Glueck, Graubard, Hackett, Joseph, Lachman, A. J. Levy, McElligott, McKeon, O'Neil, Sheridan, Stein, and Voss—should be retired from the Legislature.

To Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier, representing the Thirtieth Assembly District, New York, who protested in print against the work of the Citizens' Union Reference Bureau, the Committee on Legislation has given a "bad boy ticket." This is the comment in the annual report:

> LOUIS A. CUVILLIER (Dem., Thirtieth District, New York)—Introduced a mass of foolish bills, seeming to lose interest in most of his legislation after its introduction had been published in the newspapers. Of 170 bills he has introduced in two years, only one passed and none became law. Record of votes very bad. Ineffectively conspicuous. Worthless as a legislator.

The report will be printed in pamphlet form and distributed in the city prior to the next election.

NEW LANDING IN ENGLAND.

White Star Will Allow Passengers to Leave Ships at Holyhead, North Wales

The White Star Line announced yesterday that by reason of the success of the experiment made on Sunday by the liner Cedric landing her mails and passengers at Holyhead, North Wales, instead of carrying them on to Liverpool, as is customary, the company has decided to continue the innovation during the Summer.

By landing the mails and passengers at Holyhead, five hours, at least, were saved, as the special trains were in waiting to convey them to London under five hours. The train arrived in Euston station, London, just thirty minutes after the Cedric had been moored alongside the landing-stage in Liverpool.

The officials of the line point out that the landing at Holyhead will only be made in daylight and in fine weather, so that American passengers will be able to enjoy the scenery along the coast of Anglesea, past Conway Castle, and over the Menai Straits into Wales.

Passengers who desire to go on to Liverpool are permitted to do so.

Everybody Should Know What Hunyadi Janos Is

A large proportion of humanity suffers more or less from constipation. How really few are there who do not know the distress, pain, and general discomfort resulting from sluggishness. And does not this suffering seem foolishly unnecessary when we realize that it can be avoided by the use of the proper and simple remedy, HUNYADI JANOS Water, the great Natural Laxative? It is not only the most efficacious remedy, but also the most inexpensive. The cost of a large bottle is but a trifle, and it contains many doses, as ½ a tumblerful on arising is sufficient to always give certain, quick, and thorough relief. Pleasant and natural without bad after effects. Try it.

Look out for unscrupulous druggists, who will substitute unless you ask for HUNYADI JANOS.

RESUME SHIPBUILDING SUIT.

C. H. Kavanaugh Testifies in His Action Against Republic Trust Co.

SARATOGA, N. Y., June 21.—Charles H. Kavanaugh's suit against former Directors of the Trust Company of the Republic of New York, now the Commonwealth Trust Company, demanding an accounting to show how much was lost to the trust company because of the financing of the United States Shipbuilding Company and to compel the Directors to restore the money, was resumed to-day before Supreme Court Justice Van Kirk. The defendants in the case include Perry Belmont, Stuyvesant Fish, Charles E. Marvin, George C. Boldt, George J. Gould, Elbridge B. Snow, Thomas Crimmins, National Committeeman Charles F. Brooker of Connecticut, Herbert L. Satterlee, and former Assistant Secretary of the Navy Frederick Baldwin.

Among the attorneys present interested in the case was former Supreme Court Justice D Cady Herrick of Albany, who represents Stuyvesant Fish. Senator Edgar T. Brackett is conducting the plaintiff's case.

Daniel Leroy Dresser, who was President of the Trust Company of the Republic at the time funds of the company are alleged to have been illegally invested in stocks, bonds, and other obligations of the shipbuilding company, was present to-day, and his testimony on behalf of the plaintiff, together with that of a large number of other witnesses who have been subpoenaed on both sides, is expected to throw considerable light on the methods by which the Shipbuilding Trust was financed.

Mr. Kavanaugh, a manufacturer, of Waterford, N. Y., who is suing on behalf of himself and other stockholders of the Commonwealth Trust Company, was the first witness called. He testified concerning his purchase of stock in the Trust Company of the Republic.

James Duane Livingston of Concord, Mass., a banker, with offices in New York, was the next witness. He was one of the Vice Presidents of the trust company and was in charge of the company's William Street branch at the time of the alleged transactions with the shipbuilding company. He was also a member of the Executive Committee of the shipbuilding company. Mr. Livingston described the method of keeping the accounts of the trust company.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

PARIS, June 21.—The Director of the Paris Observatory announced at the Academy of Sciences to-night the discovery of the new comet made recently by M. BOGOTA, Colombia, June 21.—Nothing official has been made public with regard to the departure of President Reyes from Colombia for Europe. The newspapers, however, condemn the action of the President. Acting President Holguin has the support of the people in the hope that he will re-establish Republican practices in the country, which desires peace.

LONDON, June 21.—The commission appointed by the International Meteorological Committee in Paris in 1907 to consider the adoption of an international system of maritime weather signals is at present holding a meeting in London. Prof. Willis Moore of the American Weather Bureau, and C. F. Talman are the American delegates. The first suggestion of an international system of signals came from Prof. Moore. The commission will report to the International Committe in 1910.

SMUGGLER WHITE WILL DIVULGE PLOT

Urged by His Wife, He Will Tell All He Knows to the Federal Authorities.

WOMEN TO BE INDICTED

Two Westerners and Another from Boston Will Probably Be Hauled Up on Charges.

The appearance of George C. White, who pleaded guilty last week along with Mrs. Kilgannon, the dressmaker, and her husband to charges of smuggling before the United States Grand Jury, yesterday set a report in circulation, which became well authenticated before the close of the day, that White had decided to tell all he knew about smuggling plots.

According to the idea that United States Attorney Wise entertains, this will be a good deal, for White is believed to have been entirely cognizant of the plot that was broken up when trunks containing $52,000 worth of laces and silks were seized several months ago. The contents of these trunks have since been sold at public auction.

The information that White had decided to talk was accompanied by a report that he would receive the remission of some part of his two-year sentence as a reward, but this Mr. Wise denied. It is understood, however, that White's wife and relatives have begged him to assist the Government as much as he can in the hope that some such reward may be given to him. Mrs. White swooned in court last Wednesday when the sentence was announced.

It is understood that indictments will be returned by the Federal Grand Jury in Newark to-day or to-morrow in two recent smuggling cases. Two of the prospective defendants are mother and daughter, women prominent socially in a Western city, who were stopped on a Hoboken pier while trying to wear into this country some thousands of dollars worth of valuable furs. It was a hot day, and the Inspectors stopped the incomers.

The other indictment, it is understood, will be against a Boston woman, known also in New York, who was discovered to have a false bottom in her trunk when it was examined by the Inspectors on a Hoboken pier.

REWARD FOR BENNETT'S BODY

$200 Offered for Recovery—Young American Was Lost from Steamer.

NAPLES, June 21.—Caspar S. Crowninshield, the American Consul here, has been notified that a reward of $200 is offered by relatives for the recovery of the body of Holland Bennett of Boston.

Mr. Bennett was the young American who disappeared on the night of June 10 from the steamship Berlin while the ship was on her way from Genoa to Naples. He was on a honeymoon trip, having been recently married.

Mrs. Lucetta Bennett, widow of Holland Bennett, the young Cambridge lawyer who disappeared from the North German Lloyd steamship Berlin on June 10, between Genoa and Naples, arrived home last night on the Berlin. She was met down the bay by her father, Harry Upham, City Auditor of Cambridge, and Whitman Bennett, her brother-in-law.

There is still some uncertainty as to how the young lawyer came to his death. He had been ill for some time before he and his bride sailed from here on the Cretic early in May, and had undergone two operations for intestinal trouble. Nervous prostration followed, and he was subject to hysterical spells and fainting fits. The physicians advised the trip abroad.

ZEELAND HIT HARTLEPOOL.

British Steamer's Bows Smashed When Liner Struck Her in Fog.

LONDON, June 21.—The British steamer Hartlepool arrived at Shields to-day badly damaged. Her starboard bow had been cut down to the water's edge after collision with an unknown steamer off Dover Saturday night. It appears certain that the Hartlepool is the vessel that collided with the Red Star steamship Zeeland, which came into Southampton yesterday with her bows stove in and reported striking in the fog the night before some vessel which the Zeeland's officers had been unable to identify.

From Southampton it is reported it will take two or three weeks to repair the damage to the bows of the Zeeland. The liner sustained no other damage. All the saloon passengers and most of the second and third class passengers will be transferred to the Oceanic, sailing June 23; the remainder will come on the St. Paul on June 26. The cargo will be taken by a vessel of the Atlantic Transport Line.

PAYMASTER'S $80,000 HAUL.

Gets Away with East Siberian Rifles Regimental Funds.

OMSK, Asiatic Russia, June 21.—The Paymaster of the Twenty-sixth East Siberian Rifles has fled from Omsk after drawing $80,000 of the regimental funds.

The Paymaster got possession of the money on forged orders.

HEGEMAN CHARGE DISMISSED.

One Perjury Count Against Insurance Head Set Aside.

One of the charges of perjury made in 1905 against John R. Hegeman, President of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, in connection with a statement made to the Superintendent of Insurance in 1905 on the financial condition of the company, was dismissed yesterday by the Grand Jury.

Mr. Hegeman was indicted on three charges of perjury and seven of forgery, on evidence furnished by the Armstrong Committee. The forgery indictments were dismissed later by Justice Dowling, in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court, but the perjury charges were sustained.

On agreement between De Lancey Nicoll and District Attorney Jerome, the case was taken up to the Court of Appeals, which held that, although the indictment was valid, the fact that it had been dismissed by Justice Dowling would necessitate the evidence being resubmitted. It was on the same evidence that the Grand Jury refused to indict.

WELCOME SCHUETZENBUND.

American Visitors Entertained by Rifle Club in Fatherland.

BREMEN, June 21.—The 200 members of the National Schuetzenbund, who arrived in Germany a fortnight ago from New York on the steamer Main to take part in the international shooting contests to be held at Hamburg, beginning July 10, were entertained at Bederkesa yesterday on the occasion of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the foundation of the rifle club of that town.

Herr von Minden, Captain of the New York marksmen, responded to the toast and said among other things he hoped that America and Germany would be united ever by strong bonds.

Two of the Best Linen Suits of the Season

O'Neill Building—Third Floor.

Two of the most distinguished styles we've yet had are two of the most simple in line! It is in these simple suits that the good tailoring we insist upon shows to the best advantage. We are not afraid to have you compare these two suits with the best work of a custom tailor.

The coat of the first suit is 48 inches long from the shoulder to the hem, made of a heavy natural linen, and fits close. The collar is a perfectly plain notch collar with a white linen collar, embroidered by hand, laid on; this can be taken off if you prefer, and cuffs of the hand-embroidered linen to match. It is closed in front with large linen-covered buttons.

No tailor who could make such a suit could make it of such linen under $50. Yet our price is $17.50.

The second suit is just as distinguished—as well tailored and cut, and as striking in its own simple way as the other.

The shawl collar and French cuffs are inlaid with colored linen; and the skirt of this is a KILT!—yes—a kilt with a YOKE, and a narrow panel running from the belt to the hem, in the centre-front trimmed with buttons covered with the natural linen. Yet this is only $9.95, and it rivals any custom tailor's suit at $30!

We have more of these exclusive styles in other colors and fabrics for just as low prices.

READY TO LET US IN ON CHINESE LOAN

State Department Thinks European Participants' Opposition Is Practically Overcome.

GERMANY GETS THE CREDIT

Paris Reports Say French and English Have Changed Front, and German Press Affirms Friendly Spirit There.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—A high official of the State Department said this afternoon that practically all opposition on the part of European Governments to American participation in the pending Chinese loan on the Hankow-Szechuen Railway has been overcome. He declined to give any further information or to say what had happened to give the department its optimistic impression. Secretary Knox would not talk about the matter, but it was evident that he was pleased with the developments.

Ever since the British Government lodged its protest against American participation in the loan last week the State Department has been in constant communication with the Governments of Great Britain, France, and Germany, the three countries whose bankers had arranged to take up the whole loan. It was suggested this afternoon that if Great Britain and France have withdrawn from their opposition it was probably due to their recognition of the diplomatic opportunity they were giving Germany. So far as has developed here the protest of France was never actually received at the State Department

If the feelings of both President Taft and Secretary Knox regarding the participation of American capitalists in the development of China had not been well known it might have been possible for Great Britain and France to persuade Germany to join in their protest. But it now appears that they have had to back up and are preparing to yield as gracefully as they can, in order to minimize as much as possible the effect of Germany's friendly attitude.

COLOGNE, June 21.—The Kolnische Zeitung prints a Berlin dispatch which is intended to show that the German Emperor is exerting all efforts to satisfy the American wishes with regard to the Chinese loan. The dispatch says that it was not known when the English, German, and French groups concluded the treaty with the Chinese Government with reference to the Hankow-Szechuen Railway that the United States was desirous of participating, and that the German Government now believes that the wishes of the American Government can be met without canceling the agreement.

It is believed that the German financial group is willing to allow American interests participation in the loan, notwithstanding the damage that would be thus caused to its own interests, but this would require negotiations with the other interested financial groups, since these and their Governments are parties to the arrangement.

The German Government's willingness to meet the American wishes, continued the dispatch, is dictated by a desire to open the way to friendly negotiations between various financial groups in future Chinese financial transactions.

PARIS, June 21.—The prospects of American participation in the Hankow-Sze-chuen Railroad loan are regarded here as having improved considerably, and at the Foreign Office it was said today that America continued to insist that Americans be admitted to this transaction on an equal footing with foreigners.

The French Government, while at first inclined to share the fear of the English Government that the reopening of the protocol signed June 6 would result in interminable delay, has now adopted a more benevolent attitude, and in banking circles in touch with the negotiations it was said this afternoon that the French and English groups had swung around in favor of American participation as the quickest and easiest solution, especially as it is recognized that the American-Chinese agreement of 1904 gives Washington the whip hand at Peking.

The French bankers, notwithstanding the attitude of the Berlin Government, intimate that the only real opposition now comes from the German financial group.

George Rector is the son of Charles Rector, the well-known restaurateur. It was announced some time ago that the son would soon open his own restaurant on the west side of Times Square.

WOMAN CAPTIVE IN A CELLAR.

Bound, Gagged, and Kept Prisoner, She Says, by a Coal Dealer.

Capt. Corcoran and two detectives of the East 104th Street Station raided a coal cellar last night at 130 East 104th Street which was run by Mike Padora, and found in a back room there Mrs. Nellie Myran of 1,866 Third Avenue, who had been missing from her home since Saturday. The woman was gagged and bound and lying across a long trunk.

After the woman had told her story at the station, Padora was locked up charged with assault, and the police are looking for half a dozen other men on a like charge. Mrs. Myran, who has been a widow for a month, told the police that she went to the coal cellar on Saturday to get a bucket of coal. She was leaving the place, she says, when Padora drew a revolver, and, threatening to shoot her, compelled her to go back into the place. Padora, the woman said, pushed her into a little back room and then bound her hands and feet. Besides, Padora, Mrs. Myran said there were two other Italians in the room and they helped to bind and gag her.

Mrs. Myran was almost on the verge of collapse, and Dr. Bennett of the Harlem Hospital was called. After he had treated her she was taken to the East 126th Street Station, where there is a Matron, to be detained as a witness against the coal dealer.

FULL OF FUN TILL HE DIED.

Even in the Pest House Mr. McCloskey Told Amusing Stories.

James J. McCloskey, one of the best-known commercial travelers in the United States, died yesterday of Bright's disease at his home, in New Rochelle, N. Y. Mr. McCloskey was better known as "Mack." No drummer in the country had a greater fund of wit or anecdotes, and he is said to have joked with his friends and told them stories up to within a few hours of his death.

A few years ago Mr. McCloskey contracted smallpox on the car, and when he arrived in New Rochelle was sent to the pest house, where he spent Thanksgiving and Christmas. He was the only patient, and amused the doctors and nurses by telling them stories. The disease left him in bad condition, and he never fully regained his health.

He was born in Worcester, Mass., and died on his forty-eighth birthday. Mr. McCloskey was one of the most popular members of No. 1 Lodge of Elks in New York City. He leaves a widow and five children. His son, Frank McCloskey, is Clerk in the New Rochelle City Court.

The funeral will be held in St. Gabriel's Roman Catholic Church in New Rochelle on Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.

WRIGHTS PREPARE FOR TEST FLIGHTS

Toil All Day in Furnace-Like Balloon House in Assembling Their Aeroplane.

CHANGES IN MECHANISM

Brothers Say Government Flight Cannot Be Made Before Friday—Expect to Exceed 40 Miles an Hour.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—After working all day on their aeroplane in the balloon house at Fort Myer, Orville Wright to-night declared he did not believe the final test flight to be made for the Government could be undertaken before Friday. The brothers came to this conclusion after they had spent nine hours over the assembling of the machine. There are a number of finishing touches to be added to the flier once the frame work is completed and the motor in place. These include a number of small changes and improvements over the mechanicism of the machine in which Orville made his sensational flights at the army post last year.

At 9 o'clock this morning the two brothers put in their appearance at the fort. It was a broiling hot day, and the sun beat down on the iron roof balloon house until the interior was transformed into a furnace. In spite of the intense heat, the inventors toiled steadily, and it was not until 6 o'clock this evening that they emerged from the building on the parade ground.

"Flying is good sport," said Orville, as he came out, wiping his brow, "but I must say neither I nor my brother care for frying. That's what we have done today. I feel certain I have lost ten pounds in that fiery furnace."

The brothers stopped work for little less than an hour when Gen. James Allen, Chief Signal Officer, together with Major G. O. Squjer, called at the balloon house. The officers were desirous of completing the arrangements for the long-distance flight that is to be made as one of the requisites before the aeroplane is accepted. The selection of the route was left with the Wrights, who promptly said they would be satisfied with any course the Signal Corps picked out for them to fly over.

The course, which is to be five miles in length, is to be doubled by the aeroplane. The machine is to sweep down this distance and return to the starting point. The Signal Corps will have a captive balloon anchored at the far end of the course, around which the aeroplane will circle for its flight back. In addition to the balloon, a field telephone wire will be strung down the course, both marking the way and permitting of the communication of the time to the officers at the starting point.

This is necessary, for the time required to encircle the captive balloon will not be counted in the record made. It is intended that only the direct flight will be timed, so that the speed possibilities of the machine when traveling straightaway will be demonstrated. The doubling of the course, instead of sending the airship off in a direct flight of ten miles, is intended to disclose its flying qualities under distinctly different wind conditions.

Orville Wright, who will make the flights, expects that he will exceed forty miles an hour when the test is made. He is not expectant that he can attain forty-four miles, the limit of speed over forty miles on which for each additional mile $2,500 will be paid the aviators. In his flights last Summer he maintained a speed approximating forty miles without using all the power of which the motor was capable.

Incidentally, the motor that will be used in the flights this week is the one that drove the ill-fated aeroplane of last year, when it fell to earth, killing Lieut. Selfridge and nearly killing Orville Wright. It is a powerful motor, and the Wrights found it to be so slightly damaged that it was repaired in their Dayton shop, and is fit for use again.

Another record will be smashed when Mr. Wright completes the endurance test required by the Government. To comply with the terms of the contract he must remain up one hour, carrying with him a passenger. This will be a longer time than any heavier-than-air machine carrying two persons has ever remained up. Both the Wrights feel entirely confident that their machine will accomplish this task easily, more especially as there is no prescribed course over which this flight is to be made.

A Board of Justice, different in personnel from the board of last year, will officiate. The members are Major G. O. Squier, Major C. McK. Saltzman, Major C. S. Wallace, Capt. C. de F. Chandler, Lieuts. F. P. Lahm, B. D. Foulers, and C. H. Humphries, all of the Signal Corps, and Lieut. Commander Charles Sweet of the navy.

Extra To-day:---A List of Attractive "Tuesday Specials."

Old-Fashioned Macy Sales.

The expression "Old-Fashioned" is used in many senses. Sometimes it is a term of reproach; at other times it is applied as an encomium. We describe this series of sales by it in order to convey the idea of simplicity. We have bought certain lines of merchandise under extremely advantageous conditions—and are daily securing others in the same way.

Our advertising tells you about some of them with primitive directness. Here are the goods; here are the prices; others charge so much; we charge so much. Put our claims to the test—make comparisons. Then decide which is the store where economy is really a principle instead of just a word.

These Are The Silks You Want For Summer And The Prices Are As You'd Have Them 1st Floor.

This Pure-dyed "Marchioness" Silk is for bathing suits. It was made expressly and exclusively for us and we are tolerably certain that there isn't a silk anywhere better adapted for the same use. It is 27 inches wide and comes in black, navy, royal, cadet, red, wine, brown, castor and green.

The Price Is $1.49 A Yard

The beat of the wind and the waves will not hurt it; brine-soaked, it still holds its beauty and delicate lustre. The costliest bathing suit is the one made of a Silk that has no stamina—no body—no real substance derived from solid fibre. "Marchioness" Silk has all the standard qualities—and more besides. Price, for example. Who ever before heard of such a value at $1.49?

99c. for $1.98 Imported Satin Foulards, 42 in. wide.
99c. for $1.35 Imported Shantung Silks, 33 in. wide.

Black Satin Majestic, 36 inches wide, value $1.50; special, $1.19

All-silk Natural Color Pongee, 26 inches wide, and Black Satin Messaline, 19 inches wide—very special values at 49c

65c Mohair Brilliantine at 49c

Of all the weaves that have definite warm weather uses none excel Mohair Brilliantine. Look at a fold of it. Surface crisp and shimmery. Could you imagine dust or cinders clinging to it? That's why Mohair Brilliantine is splendid for travelling coats, waists and dresses. No other fabric has less absorbent qualities than Mohair Brilliantine. Therefore, it is seized upon for bathing suits. Unsurpassed for that purpose. Cooler than flannel—lighter, not so cumbersome or burdensome. The low cost is out of all proportion to its serviceableness—hence hundreds choose it in preference to silk wherever the two compete for favor. We offer Mohair Brilliantine—uncrushable and unwrinkable—navy and black—54 inches wide—sold elsewhere at 65c a yard—

Special Here at 49c.

Continuation of the Sales of China, Glass and House-furnishing Goods.

In spite of the utmost care exercised by the manufacturers, about half the China and Glass and Cooking Utensils comes out defective in one way or another. These blemished products are known to the trade as "seconds." We don't buy or sell them. We could realize much larger profits if we did. It's a well-known fact that they are absorbed by other retailers, who frequently sell them at higher prices than we ask for perfect qualities.

Are You Going to the Seashore?

Our interest in the matter is obvious. We've a great assortment of things to sell that ocean bathers need—Bathing Suits for men, women, boys, and girls—Bathing Caps—Shoes and Sandals for the sand. Macy's has always saved money for you on such things—and still does.

Continuation of the Following Sales:

Axminster Rugs, Furniture, Summer Curtains, Art Embroideries, Table Linens, Handkerchiefs, Women's Neckwear, Women's Waists, Capes and Suits, Muslin Underwear, Petticoats and Kimonos, Misses' Waists and Petticoats, Children's and Misses' Dresses, Women's Low-cut Shoes at $2.49 that were $3.96, and Men's High-grade Low-cut Shoes that were $4.96 at $3.59.

COTTON AND THE CONSUMER.

The manufacture of cotton goods enjoys more favorable natural conditions in the United States than in any other country in the world. It ought, therefore, to be able to hold its own in an open field with no favor against any possible competition from abroad.

Look for a moment at these conditions: First there is the bountiful supply of excellent raw material. That exists not only in quantities ample for our own trade but for export to our rivals who start in any competition with the handicap of 3,000 miles of transportation and the necessary expenses. Second there is the very great advantage of a large and constantly growing home market, a population of 90,000,000 of active, prosperous, and progressive purchasers, steadily increasing not only in numbers but in average consumption. To reach this market our rivals must carry a second handicap of 3,000 miles of transportation, with all the disadvantages of dealing with a foreign people. Third there is an extraordinary command of varied and efficient labor-saving machinery, the product of a wonderfully ingenious people, stimulated by an admirable system of laws for the encouragement of invention. Finally there is the acknowledged superiority of American labor, especially in the most productive and difficult processes. On this showing, not an element in which is open to dispute, it is perfectly obvious that the cotton industry of the United States does not really need the fraction of a cent protection against any competitors whatever.

As a matter of fact, it has a protection under the present tariff of about 45 per cent. (the Aldrich estimate is 44.84 per cent.) which is the outcome of duties ranging from 10 per cent. up to 150 per cent. It was against such a heavy and needless burden upon the consumer that the public sentiment was aroused which so scared the Republican leaders that last year they promised a reduction of the tariff. How is this promise being kept? It is not being kept at all. There is not any pretext of keeping it. The Senate Finance Committee admits that, so far from reducing the rates, they have been advanced by an average of some 5 per cent. on the figures above given. In reality the cotton schedule as finally put through the Senate in Committee of the Whole contained numerous increases of from 50 per cent. to 70 per cent. According to Senator DOLLIVER, there was one instance of a tax of 800 per cent. on the cost in American factories. No human being can say what the average will be because of the multitude of special, blind, misleading clauses by which many of the rates are affected. One thing only is certain, that the outcome in every instance is an increase, not a reduction.

Take the case of yarn and thread. These are not advanced forms of manufacture. Both are solely materials for further manufacture. In any rational scheme for the promotion of home industry they should be admitted free, or subjected to a revenue duty only. The makers of yarn and thread are sufficiently protected by the 6,000 miles of freight their rivals have to pay to get their raw cotton and send out their finished product. But, so far from recognizing the wholesome and self-evident principle of making the materials of industry as cheap as possible, the framers of the Dingley tariff put taxes on yarn and thread running from 10 per cent. up to as high, in some years, as 150 per cent., the average for 1907 being, according to the Aldrich Committee, 30 per cent. ad valorem. Here is a plain case for the reduction promised by the Republican Party. Are they making it? Not much. On the contrary, they have absolutely forbidden any duty less than 20 per cent., which is a heavy increase on all the lower rates, doubling the lowest. And this favor is accorded to prosperous mill owners at the expense of the least wealthy, the weakest, and the hardest-working class in the community. One hardly knows which is the worse, the greed or the cruelty of such trickery.

There are numerous other instances as convincing as these of the spirit in which the Republican leaders are dealing with the mass of the people. We shall have occasion to take them up from time to time, especially if the President fails to veto the bill the tricksters are evolving. For there will be a prompt appeal to the people, and on the trial of their case they may rest assured the facts shall be brought out.

THE CITY COLLEGE.

President FINLEY of the College of the City of New York, in his baccalaureate, laid emphasis on the relationship to the city of the young men to whom he spoke, of their duty to the city which has given them education. Fifteen years of free education each of them has received, and the last four of those years, under Dr. FINLEY's direction, this education approaches a normal university standard. New Yorkers are justly proud of their City College, which has turned out for service in the professions and trade many men of good quality.

Nowhere else is the cosmopolitan character of the American metropolis more clearly illustrated than in the City College. The young men of his graduating class, Dr. FINLEY fancies, would be distinguished among the thousands of other young Americans about to receive like degrees by being younger than the average, more serious and intent of face, more cosmopolitan. He sees among them descendants of New England farmers and New York merchants, but in larger proportion the sons of Irish crofters, Russian gunmakers, Italian stonecutters, Scotch shepherds, and while in their nostrils "is the breath of this city's desire for her children" in their names are "memories of linden trees, of mountains of gold, of fields of grain and roses, of high-perched mediaeval castles, and of the tabernacle in the wilderness."

The proportion of the foreign born and sons of foreign born parents in the City College has greatly increased of late years, without in the least diminishing its influence in the development of good citizenship. President FINLEY does well to impress upon his graduates their duty to the city. They know well the benefits of citizenship. They can appreciate, perhaps, better than the young man just leaving one of the universities the need of upright, earnest, watchful citizens to keep the municipality in the line of progress and all its institutions in order.

THE WORK OF THE BRITISH NAVY.

In the very natural criticism of the prolonged excitement into which the English people have been thrown by the navy building of the Germans, some of us have appeared to forget what the real work of the British Navy is, to what peculiar needs it responds, and what might be the consequences of its falling below the stage of efficiency required for its task. Certainly many features of the current panic in England have been extravagant and some of them have been ludicrous, but it remains true that there is no other nation so dependent, and in so many ways, on its fighting ships as is the United Kingdom.

In the first place, Great Britain has practically no army. Its regular force is nominally only 250,000 men. The effective force is necessarily much smaller. What there is is scattered in great part in the outlying garrisons of the world-wide British possessions. As compared with the million of thoroughly trained, carefully organized, and excellently equipped men of Germany, for instance, it is literally no army at all. Against invasion the navy is, at present, not only the "first line of defense," as the traditional phrase is, but substantially the only line of defense. The frontier forts are not at the shore, they are afloat in the encircling seas. In the second place, the navy is also the defensive force for the colonies and possessions, none of which is now in condition to resist serious operations for its conquest. This is not an immediate consideration of importance, since no power is in a position to attack at long range, but it would become important if the navy were unequal to its duty at home and on the distant stations. The German criticism of the fighting in South Africa was, in some ways, very severe, but the admiration of the Emperor's experts for the organization by which Great Britain transported and equipped its troops on the other side of the globe was unbounded. No such organization could be kept up with an inadequate navy.

In the third place, there is the vast commerce of the British Islands to be maintained in perfect safety. We noted only yesterday the estimate that the English people had invested $12,500,000,000 in shipping and a somewhat larger amount in foreign trade and securities. At present not a shilling of this enormous wealth is imperiled perceptibly by war risks, for the British Navy is ready and able to protect it in any immediately possible conflict. But that ability is relative, not absolute. It would be progressively impaired by the growth of a potentially hostile navy. Finally—and this, in reality, is the most imperative and essential element in the situation of Great Britain—the British people are fed from abroad. Not only does the teeming industry on which the prosperity of the people rests derive its necessary materials from other countries, but the food raised on the islands is wholly insufficient to the daily requirements of the people. Without imports of food they would in a measurable period be sorely distressed and ultimately would face something very like famine. It is on the navy that their very life depends.

Now it happens—how, it is useless at present to discuss—that the English people have recently been convinced that Germany is rapidly building naval vessels of a size and number that menace the safety of the United Kingdom. Some of their coolest statesmen and great numbers of the people themselves seriously believe that when the German Navy is strong enough war is inevitable. They feel, therefore, that the only way to avoid war is to maintain an unquestioned naval superiority at whatever cost. The alternative to this is an understanding with the German Government guaranteeing the maintenance of the present British superiority. For such an understanding they see no present possibility, nor is there likely to be any unless the burden of naval expenditure should force Germany to pause.

This is the situation as seen by British eyes. In the current number of The Independent W. T. STEAD, the noted London editor, who has been a champion of peace for many years, thus presents the case:

> If the Government had quietly declared that they were building two keels to the German one, and would go on doing so, no matter how many keels the Germans laid down, there would have been no febrile, panicky agitation in this country. As for the Germans, the bulk of them would have cordially welcomed a declaration which would have enabled them to demonstrate to their Navy Leaguers the futility of any attempt to outbuild the mistress of the seas. At present the advocates for unlimited naval expenditure in Germany have had as their great argument the assertion that England is feeling the pace too severe. "Only another spurt and the trident of the seas will be in our hands!" If they knew that the two keels to one standard would be unswervingly adhered to at any cost, without even counting the cost, they would be only too glad to restrain their more bellicose fellows from persisting in this headlong race to ruin.

He adds: "We cannot allow the status quo to be modified to our detriment. That for us is a matter of life and death." This undoubtedly is the feeling—very serious and likely to be lasting—that underlies the agitation in England.

THE SAENGERFEST.

Mr. LOUIS WINDMUELLER suggested not long ago that it would be well to hear American boys singing to the melody "Am Rhein, am Rhein, da wachsen unsere Reben," the words "On the coast, on the coast our grapes grow, blessed be our coast." Alas! nowhere in American cities, save among their German-born citizens, may be heard such simple songs of joy and patriotism. Because of this, if for no other reason, the annual saengerfest celebrated by the German singing societies of this country, and now in progress in Madison Square Garden, should win the applause and the respectful attention of their native-born neighbors.

The Puritans were a Teutonic people. But they deliberately sacrificed the muses, the graces, and all they might contribute to the adornment of their common lives upon the altar of deeds and duty. The temple of our National existence was by them left bare of the decorations of culture and of emulous and friendly tastes. Mayor MCCLELLAN said in his address to the competing German societies that ten millions of Americans of German birth or parentage have taught their fellow-citizens not only that music is one of the greatest of arts, but "that it is absolutely necessary for happiness in daily life." They have, indeed, by influence and example, striven to teach us this, and we are at last beginning to deplore our lack. Perhaps no American composer might conceive, in its invitation to good cheer, a song like JULIUS LORENZ's greeting to the singer folk at the Garden:

GOD greet you, merry singers all,
  GOD greet you, heart and hand.
All hail to German thought and tongue,
To German song in German sung,
  The choice by which we stand!
Our friendship's soul, we heed its call;
GOD greet you, singers, one and all.

But the hearts of their American brethren, one and all, respond to its sentiment of welcome.

WHY NOT DROP QUEENSTOWN?

The experiment of landing the passengers and mails of one of the White Star steamships in the Liverpool service at Holyhead was successful and will be repeated. Special trains took the passengers to London in about six hours, and some of them were in Euston station about the time the ship on which they had crossed the ocean reached Liverpool. It is difficult to understand why, if the Holyhead stop becomes common, Queenstown cannot be cut out. The supplementary mail from London, which is the reason for the Queenstown delay, goes to Ireland by way of Holyhead. Leaving Liverpool at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, a steamship could stop at Holyhead at 8 and take on mails dispatched from London as late as noon. In the Summer season this would surely answer all the commercial demands on Saturdays. London business men do not work Saturday afternoons in Summer.

It is understood that White Star steamers may hereafter embark passengers and mails at Holyhead. The Cunard boats might do the same thing, and cut out Queenstown. It would really be interesting to see how quickly one of the fast ships could carry its passengers from dock to dock, but the voyage is now impeded by unnecessary delays.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

White Men and the Tropics. Assistant Surgeon General GORGAS devoted his Presidential address before the American Medical Association to the present health conditions in the Canal Zone and to the conclusions he draws from them as to the future use of the tropics as a place of permanent residence by white men.

The exclusion of yellow fever from Panama is now such an old story that Dr. GORGAS hardly referred to it. Malaria presents a much harder problem, but even that is well on the way toward solution, with both the cases and the deaths from that malady steadily decreasing as the persecution of the anopheles mosquito gains in efficiency. This species of the insect rarely moves more than a hundred yards from its birthplace, and it can breed only in clean, fresh water, well provided with grass and algae, amid which the larvae can find refuge from small fish and other insects. Drainage, when possible, and sprinkling of oil when it is not, combined with clearing out the water courses, cutting down grass and bushes near houses, and careful screening of doors and windows, or of the galleries on which they open, remove most of the chances of infection, and quinine does the rest. All this costs time and trouble, but it is more than balanced, at least as regards expenditures, by the money that has to be spent in the North in heating houses and otherwise guarding against the cold.

Dr. GORGAS again presented the statistics as to the existing death rate in the Canal Zone, and they certainly make a magnificent showing for American sanitation, when compared with what happened during the French régime, but again he failed to take into account the stream of invalided officers and workers constantly returning from Panama, and he did not mention the fact that a mortality of 19 per thousand in the zone population and of 13 among the canal employés does not mean the same thing that it would in a place where so large a majority of the inhabitants did not consist of men in the prime of life—of men, that is, who would contribute almost nothing to the death rate of a Northern city.

Yellow fever has been conquered, and malaria, a less often fatal and yet much more serious disease in its total results, can unquestionably be overcome in time, but white skins will forever remain ill-adapted to life in the tropics. There is good reason for believing that Dr. GORGAS is unduly sanguine when he predicts that "by the time the year 1909 is as old as is at the present day the Norman conquest of England, localities in the tropics will be the centres of as powerful and as cultured a white civilization as any that will exist in the temperate zones." The chances are that the white rulers of the equatorial regions will always be a mere army of occupation, requiring frequent renewal.

Sanatoria Help Real Estate. Nothing—except lack of money—interferes with successful prosecution of the campaign against tuberculosis as much as does the fierce opposition which the would-be founders of sanatoria for consumptives almost always encounter from the inhabitants of the towns in which they propose to establish one of these beneficent institutions. This senseless antagonism, curiously enough, seems to be particularly strong in the neighborhood of New York City, and several promising plans have fallen through on account of it. Everybody here believes in the sanatoria and wants their numbers increased, but almost everybody insists that they be built in other towns than his, and all too often the local authorities have refused the consent which the law demanded before work could begin.

Yet experience has shown that a tuberculosis sanatorium, instead of harming the region around it, not only results in an improvement of health conditions all through its neighborhood, but causes real estate values to rise. With a view to getting definite information on the latter point, the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis has had careful inquiries made in twenty-two States, covering every section of the country. The reports received, as summarized in The Survey, show that over 67 per cent. of the sanatoria have exerted a favorable influence on surrounding property, and in almost as many cases their effect in raising assessable valuations has been direct and measurable. In most of the other instances no difference was observable, and in only three localities was it claimed that residents had been repelled. At Aiken, S. C., land in the neighborhood of the sanatorium has quadrupled in value since it was built. In Hebron, Me., the advance has been 20 per cent., and like results are reported from Luzerne, Penn.; Liberty and Saranac Lake, N. Y.; Pittsford, Vt.; Mount Vernon, Mo., and Silver City, New Mexico. These are places where the sanatoria form an important part of local business, and it would be hardly fair to judge by their experiences, but the effects on values are the same in the big cities—New York, St. Louis, Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Boston, and Pittsburg. There was never any excuse for fearing infection from the carefully guarded and well-instructed patients in the sanatoria, and even the real estate agents and owners now have none for trying to keep them away.

Chinese Cadets at West Point. That one of the two Chinese cadets just graduated from West Point is a Prince and the other merely his servitor or guardian seems a theory a bit too fantastic to be true, but the other cadets believe it, while CHEN and WEN themselves, though they have never admitted the existence of such a relation, have never given it explicit denial, and the treatment of the two boys by the members of the Chinese Legation has been such as at least to indicate that at home they are of very different rank. On graduation day, for instance, a representative of the legation brought a big bunch of lilies for CHEN, but had none for WEN, and all his conversation was with the former.

It is in accord with all the romances that the boy of lower rank was the better scholar and made himself the more popular with his companions. That he ventured to win higher honors than the supposed Prince, however, does not increase the plausibility of the story, for such a manifestation of superiority to a superior, though pleasing at the time, might have unpleasing consequences after the two return to China if the Prince happened to have a good memory for small humiliations. Still, the Chinese have always been most democratic in matters of scholarship, as they understand it, and presumably WEN knew what he was about.

Both of them can find consolation with the thought that class standing counts for very little in after life, and that there be some who hold that the honor men at the Academy are rather apt to be worn out before their career begins.

Dr. Paterno's Career.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of Saturday, June 12, there appeared an article on the trip of Govs. Hughes and Fort to inspect sites for the proposed Hudson River Bridge; and in this article certain remarks of mine are quoted in regard to Dr. Charles V. Paterno, made in connection with his residence on Washington Heights. I learn that I was misinformed in regard to Dr. Paterno, who is a graduate of the City College, and I regret that I should have given out such misinformation. I, therefore, would ask you to have this withdrawal of such statements published in THE TIMES.

HENRY W. HODGE.

MISS MALONE ON HER RIGHTS.

She Complains That She Was Arrested Without Having Broken Any Law.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will you please print the following facts relative to the street meetings of the Harlem Equal Rights League Saturday evening at Broadway and Thirty-fifth Street? We started at 9:30 P. M. About 10 o'clock a policeman came and asked to see our permit. I told him that I had followed the customary rule and had notified Police Headquarters. No permit was necessary. I was then told that I could hold no meeting on that corner without a permit, and if I persisted I would be arrested. Those were police orders. No other reason was given me.

When the Harlem Equal Rights League started the suffragette movement in this country in December, 1907, I informed myself thoroughly concerning the rules governing the holding of street meetings. I went to Police Headquarters in Mulberry Street and asked them to tell me just what were the regulations of the Police Department in the matter. I was told that the police had no power to issue written permits, that all that was necessary was that I should notify headquarters when and where and at what time I was to hold a meeting. I sent such a notice to headquarters for Saturday's meeting.

I claim that, as our meeting was held in accordance with their own rules, the police had no right to break it up. I wish to state emphatically that the crowd was not a noisy or disorderly one. Although numbering over 1,000, it was standing listening quietly to our speakers. There was no stoppage of traffic. We were holding the meeting in Thirty-fifth Street, 200 feet west of Broadway. Every New Yorker knows that Thirty-fifth Street is not a thoroughfare for either people or carriages. The crossing was perfectly clear. There was absolutely no congestion.

To sum up, I was arrested without any reason. I was put to great inconvenience and annoyance without my having violated any of the laws or ordinances of this city.

MAUD MALONE,
President Harlem Equal Rights League.

ABSTINENCE AND ACCIDENTS.

Direct Connection Between Enforced Railroad Rules and Good Record.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a recent editorial you commented on the report of the Pennsylvania Railroad for the past year with special reference to the number of passengers carried—141,650,543—and the fact that there had not been, as the result of an accident, a single fatality among this large number of passengers carried during the year. This, I understand, is the first time such a record has been made by any of the trunk lines or similar very extensive railroads.

The editorial states: "Including passengers, employees, and trespassers, the railway death roll has averaged above 10,000 since 1903. This is worse than war and equal to pestilence." You say, "Traffic was handled only by experienced hands. In 1908, 400,000 railway employes were laid off, and the spirit of those remaining employed was chastened."

You failed to note one important fact—or I might say the all-important. I refer to the rule requiring total abstinence of all employes connected with the transportation department, while off duty as well as when in active service, promulgated a few years ago, and which for a year or two past has been rigidly enforced.

For many years all railroads have had a rule prohibiting employes from drinking intoxicating liquors while on duty, that any employe becoming intoxicated while on duty would be discharged immediately. Not until a few years since was either rule strictly enforced, and now, as noted above, the rule has been extended to the full limit, with the result "1,400 are now alive who would have been buried if the fierce activity of 1907 had been prolonged through 1908"; also the "welcome news * * * to all who have occasion to travel that they can now do so with assurance that their 'expectation of life' is larger than what it was."

A NEW DENTISTRY.

Consists in a System of Prophylaxis That Prevents Decay.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A retired dentist of many years, I wish to commend your editorial article concerning "The Nation's Teeth." Every dentist has seen and known that self-cleaning surfaces of the teeth are least liable to decay, so that it has become almost an axiom that "a clean tooth never decays," and yet it has taken a long time to learn and act upon such an obvious lesson. Decay is always external in its inception, favored or retarded by the physical condition of the tooth involved. On this is based the new treatment which promises so much for humanity.

I cannot do better than to quote from an admirable paper lately read before a dental society and published in The Dental Cosmos for May. The writer, Dr. Alice G. H. Duden of Indianapolis, an enthusiastic and successful practitioner, says:

> Prophylaxis is an art or surgical treatment involving manipulative effort as distinguished from the administration of systematic or therapeutic remedies. At the present time this treatment is engaging the attention of those earnest and thoughtful men in the profession whom we look upon as leaders and teachers, and we all acknowledge that by this process we have, for the first time, triumphed over caries.

She says further:

> Shortly after my introduction to this revolutionized dentistry I had the privilege, along with five other practitioners of dentistry, of spending two whole days in Dr. ——'s office in Philadelphia. During that time we saw upward of forty of the most beautiful mouths we had ever looked upon—dreams of loveliness at which we simply marveled. * * * We had looked in upon a world of dentistry of boundless possibilities.

I can myself testify that this is not an overdrawn picture, and what I have seen gives me confidence that the time will come when these ideas will be put into practice by dentists of sufficient earnestness to secure the necessary and willing co-operation of their patients, thereby staying the ravages which threaten the "Nation's teeth."

America Discovered June 24, 1497.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There has been a mistake made in the date of our new holiday to commemorate the discovery of America, namely, Oct. 12. The proper day is June 24, for on that day, 1497, John Cabot discovered the Continent of America. Even at this late day this fact should be recognized. Think it over.

TO A BUTTERFLY.

Fair, fluttering thing with downy wing
  And myriad hues entrancing,
I envy thee thine ecstasy,
  Among the flowerets dancing.

Short is thy day, so haste away
  Where sunbeams bright are calling;
Upon the breeze take thou thine ease,
  Our senses still enthralling.

Rare, gentle life! The world is rife
  With woe and sin and sorrow!
With Summer's sun thy day is done—
  Be glad thou hast no morrow!

GIANT FLAGPOLE AT BATTERY.

Cup Defender Constitution's Mast to Fly the Flag 200 Feet Aloft.

The tallest flagpole in this country—if not, indeed, in the world—will be set in place in Battery Park to-morrow. The pole, when the topmast is added to it later in the week, will be close to 200 feet high. It will stand in the lower part of the park on the site of the historic "Liberty Pole."

The "Liberty Pole" was taken down several years ago when the Battery Tunnel was begun and when the Subway contractors needed the site for their sheds and tools. The base of the great pole will be set in ten feet of concrete and cement. Where the main pole joins the topmast there will be a wide crosstree for the hanging of signal flags. The Park Department hopes that the gigantic flagpole will ultimately perform a somewhat similar function to that performed by the Statue of Liberty. The flag, when fixed to its peak, may be seen all over the harbor, and immigrants as their liners steam up the bay will have the "Stars and Stripes" among their first impression.

The flagpole was originally the steel mast of the cup defender Constitution. Its purchase by the city and its erection in Battery Park is the idea of Hans Frederick Jorgensen, who for the last twenty-four years has been the official rigger of the Park Department, but who spent the earlier part of his life at sea. Recently learning that the Constitution's old steel mast could be bought cheap, Rigger Jorgensen persuaded the department to purchase it, pointing out that, being made of steel, it would last practically for all time.

TO BLOCK FOURTH AV. SUBWAY

Controller Metz Will Even Seek an Injunction If Need Be.

Following the announcement yesterday that the Court of Appeals will probably hand down its decision on Gen. Tracy's report on the debt limit before the end of the week, it was learned that Controller Metz will continue to oppose the immediate reopening of the Fourth Avenue Subway question, whether or not the Appellate Division's approval of the report is sustained. It is understood that Mr. Metz will go so far as to even seek the issuance of another injunction to restrain action on the matter by the city.

The Controller is desirous of obtaining a final decision from the courts on the damages claimed by property owners in Joralemon Street, Brooklyn, growing out of the extension of the present Subway before he will commit himself to the proposition of further underground construction in Brooklyn.

"The situation over there is different than it is in any other part of the city," said the Controller yesterday. "The city does not own the streets in Brooklyn free and clear as it does elsewhere, and if these Joralemon Street damages are allowed by the courts the city would face a possible come-back from every property owner along a possible subway route."

President McGowan of the Board of Aldermen also said yesterday that he will not vote for the construction of the first six sections of the proposed subway unless there is some definite assurance given that the route will be immediately carried on to Fort Hamilton and Coney Island.

MORE GRADE CROSSINGS TO GO

Danger Spots to be Eliminated in Ossining and Hastings-on-Hudson.

The Public Service Commission, Second District, has made an order that public safety requires the elimination of the grade crossings in the Village of Ossining. The highways are to be carried over the railroad tracks by bridges having a minimum clearance of 16 feet from the top of the rail.

A continuous westerly roadway from Broadway to Secor Street is to be provided as part of the grade crossing elimination. The estimated cost of the elimination is $220,000, of which the railroad company is to pay one-half, the State one-quarter, and the village one-quarter.

The commission has also ordered the elimination of grade crossings on Dock Street and Washington Avenue in the Village of Hastings-on-Hudson. Dock Street is to be closed and discontinued and a new street laid out, which will be carried by an overhead bridge across the tracks 220 feet north of the present Dock Street crossing. At Washington Avenue also a bridge will be constructed across the tracks.

The cost of the elimination at Hastings-on-Hudson will be $118,300, the division of expenses to be on the same percentage as at Ossining.

MAY BLOCK RAILROAD PLAN.

Federal Government Can Still Hold Up Boston & Maine Control.

BOSTON, June 21.—"The passage of the Boston Railroad Holding Company bill does not improve matters in the slightest degree regarding the Government suit against the New Haven Road," said United States District Attorney Asa P. French to-day. "There still remains the offense against the provisions of the Sherman act. It is within the province of the Government to obtain a restraining order or injunction against the action of the Holding Company bill, but just what action may be taken will be directed from Washington. The Department of Justice is thoroughly informed regarding the Holding bill, but up to the present time this office has not been advised of any change in the Government's policy. At any event questions of law remain unchanged."

The Holding Company bill provides for the taking over into Massachusetts control the Boston & Maine Railroad, now owned by John L. Billard of Meriden, Conn., and transferred to him after an attempt to merge the Boston & Maine with the New York, New Haven & Hartford Road had failed.

BACK FROM ANDAMAN ISLANDS

Frederic Taylor Explored Little Known Country.

After a tour of exploration to the Andaman Islands, Frederic Taylor, the American explorer, returned yesterday on the Atlantic Transport Line steamship Minneapolis from London. Mrs. Taylor, who is with her husband, accompanied him as far as Calcutta.

"As the Andamanese are one of the most interesting races, from a scientific standpoint, and as my journey took me into parts of the islands where a white man's face is almost unknown, I was able to gather much valuable data and pursue to length anthropological studies," Mr. Taylor said.

REAL TYRANNY.

Taxes the Forefathers Bore Were Less Than Ours.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

British tyranny was a stirring theme with some of us boys in the last century, when we rehearsed to attentive audiences the speeches of Patrick Henry and the Adamses of "armies and navies covering our waters and darkening our land, to bind and rivet upon us those chains which the British Ministry have been so long forging." And we cried, "Forbid it, Almighty God, that we should lie supinely on our backs until enemies shall have bound us hand and foot!"

I wonder if it ever occurs to any one that those chains were far lighter and less unjust than the fetters which we have been wearing for a generation, and are likely to continue to wear. Our fathers were to be taxed without their consent, moderately, to aid in the support of a Government, not extravagant, and, on the whole, just. We, the people of the United States, are taxed heavily in effect, without our consent, and the great bulk of the money goes not even to our own Government but into the private fortunes of a comparatively small number of individuals. It is well known that while the trusts are growing somewhat numerous, the men controlling them are few. And they drive into our ears, and we exultingly re-echo, that this is American, the great American system of protection!

WORK BEGINS TO-DAY ON CAPE COD CANAL

Ground Will Be Broken at Sandwich for the Cut-Off to Buzzard's Bay.

BELMONT TO BE PRESENT

Twelve-Mile Stretch Will Save Vessels from a Dangerous Area Off Massachusetts Coast.

Ground will be broken at noon to-day on the old Perry estate by August Belmont for the construction of the Cape Cod Canal from Sandwich, in Barnstable Bay, Mass., across Cape Cod to Buzzard's Bay, thereby making possible the elimination of one of the most dangerous points of navigation along the Atlantic Coast.

For many years there has been talk of a waterway across Cape Cod, but it was not until a few years ago that the matter began to take real form. Now the plan is to be financed by August Belmont & Co., who have underwritten $6,000,000 in bonds and $6,000,000 in stock of the Boston, Cape Cod and New York Canal Company, for which a charter was obtained by ex-Congressman De Witt Clinton Flanagan from the Massachusetts Legislature ten years ago.

A new company, known as the Cape Cod Canal Construction Company, was formed to take over the construction work and to finance the enterprise. For this company August Belmont was selected President, A. L. Devens of Boston Vice President, William Barclay Parsons Chief Engineer, and a Board of Directors consisting of L. F. Loree, President of the Delaware & Hudson Railway Company; De Witt Clinton Flanagan, E. M. Davidson, Charles H. Allen, Francis R. Appleton, August Belmont, A. L. Devens, E. W. Lancaster, William Barclay Parsons, Dudley L. Pickman, and Frederick B. Underwood, President of the Erie Railroad.

This company arranged with August Belmont & Co. to finance the enterprise, and a contract has been made with the Degnon Cape Cod Construction Company for the actual work of digging the ditch. President M. J. Degnon went to Boston in a private car at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon accompanied by Andrew Squire, James Hoyt, W. B. Sanders, C. A. Otis, and James Parmelee of Cleveland, Ohio; E. Hicks Herrick, H. Van R. Kennedy, W. E. Connor, A. A. Stuart, H. C. Sanford, N. J. Haywood, Lewis Nixon, R. A. C. Smith, Morgan J. O'Brien, John D. Crimmins, J. Henry Haggerty, and Ralph Peters, New York City; John F. Shanley, Newark, N. J.; George I. Briggs, Thomas H. Soules, and Lafayette Chase, County Commissioners, Barnstable; Storey, Thorndyke, Palmer & Thayre and S. E. Young, Boston; Col. Sanford, Newport, R. I., and Col. Burr, Boston.

Mr. Belmont and some of his associates left on the midnight train and will go out to Sandwich this morning.

The canal will be about twelve miles long. The distance from Barnstable Bay to Buzzard's Bay is close to eight miles, and the approaches in both bays will add about four miles. It will be from 250 to 300 feet at the surface, 160 feet wide at the bottom, and 30 feet deep.

Borings have been made below the bottom the entire length of the proposed canal, and sand and gravel have generally been found, with some clay, and in one or two places fine sand and an occasional boulder. There is said to be nothing difficult in the construction; it is mostly a question of dredging. At the entrance to Barnstable Bay a jetty will be constructed 2,400 feet long from the lower water line out to a depth of thirty feet.

Commerce will derive great advantage by reason of the shortness of this new water route compared with those now in existence. Boston and New York have their waterway shortened by seventy-four miles over the Vineyard Sound route and 142 miles over the outside sea route around the cape.

The distance, therefore, will be equally shortened between Boston and Philadelphia, Wilmington, Baltimore, Norfolk, Newport News, Charleston, Savannah, Florida, and New Orleans. Moreover, it will have the further advantage of a comparatively inland route, avoiding innumerable shoals and a region unfavorably affected by storm and persistent fogs productive of exceptional dangers, delays, and losses of ships, property, and lives.

Eugene Klapp, who is associated with William Barclay Parsons in the engineering work of the canal, said yesterday that the work will take about four years to complete. "It will, of course, be a sea-level canal," said Mr. Klapp. "It will extend in a straight line from Barnstable Bak to Buzzard's Bay. It will have a depth of at least twenty-five feet at low water." The canal will cost about $12,000,000.

YALE'S HEWETT GIFT, $400,000

University Agrees with Relatives to Take $100,000 Less Than Bequest.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 21.—It is officially stated at the office of the Yale University Treasurer that the agreement with the relatives of Frederick C. Hewett of Owego, N. Y., of the class of '58, as to his legacies is final and that there will be no contest in the courts. Under the arrangement as made Yale will inherit $400,000, or $100,000 less than the university was to receive under the terms of the will, and the payment to the university will be made before long. The legacy will go to Yale without restriction, and will be added to the general university fund.

With the exception of the bequest made by the late Joseph E. Sheffield to the Yale Scientific School, the Hewett bequest ranks among the largest ever made to Yale, and has been exceeded only by one individual gift—that made several years ago by John D. Rockefeller.

THE PARK ELMS IN DANGER.

Those on the South Side Attacked by San Jose Scale and Borers.

Amateur arborists who live in the vicinity of Central Park are much concerned over the condition of the fine young elm trees which were planted on the south side of the Park seven years ago, between Fifth and Eighth Avenues. This Spring they have been attacked both by the San José scale and by borers, either of which, it is said, will destroy the elms unless measures are taken to eradicate the trouble at once.

Nearly $8,500,000 Gas Rebates Paid.

United States Commissioner Shields made public yesterday the figures on the disbursements of gas rebates for the sixteenth week of the distribution. These showed that during the week $236,591.17 had been paid back to 50,566 consumers; $8,404,181.33 out of $11,000,000 of gas rebates have now been distributed.

Metz Sets Up a Violet Alibi.

The Mayor has received a bottle of choice violet perfume from Controller Metz. The extract is one of the many products of the versatile firm of H. A. Metz & Co. At the last meeting of the Board of Estimate an odor of violets pervaded the Council Chamber, and was traced to the Controller. An explanation was demanded, and Mr. Metz promised to furnish an alibi. The gift to the Mayor followed.

GOV. HUGHES GREETS THE GERMAN SINGERS

Congratulates Them to the Cheers of 18,000 at Madison Square Garden.

SCHUMANN-HEINK TRIUMPHS

Throng Packs the Street Long Before the Night Concert Begins—Judges at Work.

Madison Square Garden was packed to suffocation last night at the fifth concert of the German Sängerfest. It was the last concert at which the vast chorus of men was announced. Gov. Hughes spoke, and Mme. Schumann-Heink sang. There were nearly 18,000 persons present, and the box office receipts for the evening were more than $14,000. The success of this German singing festival is unprecedented.

Long before the doors opened the square outside the Garden was crowded, and when the doors were thrown open at 7 o'clock the throng began to surge in in a steady stream, which continued until long after 8:30. The main entrance to the Garden was so crowded during this hour and a half that it was impossible to move any way except straight ahead.

At 8:30, when the concert began, the vast building was full, and look which way one would nothing but a sea of faces presented itself, from the fan-shaped ranks of men on the platform to the seats in tiers around the rear of the building. Every seat was taken, and speculators were getting round prices for the few they had on sale.

After the orchestra, under the direction of Carl Hein, had played Liszt's "Les Preludes," Gov. Hughes was led to the platform by Theodore Henninger, President of the Saengerfest, and as the two ascended the steps of the platform the building resounded with applause.

Gov. Hughes said:

"Mr. Chairman, Members of the Northeastern Federation of Singing Societies, and Ladies and Gentlemen: I esteem it a happy privilege to have a share in the profit and enjoyment of this occasion, and on behalf of the people of the State of New York to extend to you a very hearty welcome. I extend this welcome, not on behalf of any class of race, but on behalf of a united people, rejoicing in the progress and development to which so many races have contributed, and who gratefully recognize the distinguished part which has been played by our fellow-citizens of German birth in all that makes for American progress.

"To an important extent we trace the origin of our free institutions back to the customs that prevailed in German forests, and German song has ever been, and ever will be, the song of aspiration and of liberty. Those who half a century ago sought our shores came here not to dwell in idle longing for a Fatherland that they had lost, and from which they were exiled, but with an intense devotion to the principles of liberty and an exalted ambition to play an honorable part in the development of the free institutions of the democracy of the United States.

"The sentiment which was so prominent in the formation at that early day of the singing societies was a sentiment which indeed expressed their undying affection for the land of their ancestors, but it was also a sentiment the cultivation of which is essential to the maintenance of the institutions which in this new country we all, of every race, hold dear.

"In every department of civic life, in trade, in commerce, in finance, in professional life, in every field of activity, the German is in the front rank. He represents keenness and adaptability.

"In true Americanism we know no races, but all races, and we rejoice in a unity of the spirit which takes no account of difference of our religion or creed. That is the reason we are strong, but we cannot forget that independence is not an end in itself. Liberty is not an end in itself.

"We rejoice in opportunities of free society, because of the chance they give for the enrichment of the individual life. It is in societies such as these, with their refining influences, that we obtain a glimpse of that of which a happy, free society is capable. We have much to learn from German custom and the German spirit of comradeship, and the influence of German song and music will permeate our land and refine to a large degree our institutions.

"Blessed are the children that may grow up in this modern atmosphere to which German love of society and of friendship is so largely contributing. I bring you as Governor the greetings of a State for which you have done much, and for which you will do far more, and which is distinguished as much as in anything else in being the scene of your profitable and beneficial endeavors. My greetings to you all."

Mme. Schumann-Heink was greeted with an even more effusive ovation than that which had welcomed her the night before. And those who heard her last night had the privilege of hearing an exhibition of singing which it was not in this contralto's power to give a year ago. Her art is broadening and her voice seems to be improving with the years. The breadth of treatment, and the nobility with which she sang both of her airs, the prayer from Bruch's "Odysseus" and the "Gerechter Gott" air from "Rienzi" call for nothing but the warmest praise.

The choir remained the same large body which it had been the evening before, and it sang equally well, but the songs were not so attractive. How this body of men, made up of singing clubs from various cities, has been able to come together and sing so perfectly without ensemble rehearsals is a mystery, which if explained ought to make life easy for the directors of opera in New York. The audience last night was electrified in the same way that Sunday night's audience had been. The effect of the choir has been indescribable, and those who carry away the memory of it have something to treasure.

The programmes of several of the concerts have not been made up with the greatest care, and that of last evening suffered in that regard. There seemed to be no reason for including an air from Gounod's "Queen of Sheba" in its make-up, especially as it was sung in English and in Daniel Beddoe's best oratorio manner. The quality of this tenor's voice, however, is delightful.

The afternoon session was a surprise for the arrangers of the Sängerfest. When the smaller singing societies competed for prizes at the Sängerfest held in New York fourteen years ago, there were just 198 paid admissions. As yesterday afternoon's concert was made up entirely of competitive singing by the smaller societies, it was thought that the attendance would be small, and consequently it was planned to hold the session in Madison Square Garden Concert Hall, which seats about 1,400. Long before 2:30 o'clock the concert room was full and many hundreds of people who held tickets for the concert had been turned away by 3.

At 3:15 some 3,000 disconsolate Germans who wanted to go to the concert, many of them holding tickets for it, wandered up and down in Madison Square. Then, at last, it was decided to open up the Garden and let them in. As a result there were nearly 5,000 persons in attendance at the afternoon concert.

The first part of the competition, however, had begun in the smaller concert hall, and so it was necessary to move the judges' box and the other accessories of competitive singing to the big hall below.

The afternoon was boiling hot, and the men all took off their coats. The Garden soon bore the aspect of a volksgarten just outside any German city. Everybody stayed to hear the contest in spite of the heat.

To those who have never seen a German singing contest the sight alone is surely an interesting one. The Germans who attended yesterday—most of them—came to hear the music. In the centre of the hall a vast white screen was arranged, behind which the judges sat at little benches, each separated by a partition from his neighbor. Like Beckmesser in the first act of "Die Meistersinger," they were completely shut away from the singers and could only hear them.

Each Judge attended to only one detail in the singing, and there are five points on which the singers are judged—intonation, precision, phrasing, diction, and conductor's interpretation. The Judges include two men from Germany because the German Emperor has taken such an interest in the American Sängerbund that he has sent two of the most famous judges from the Fatherland to co-operate with the American judges in deciding the winners of the various trophies, including the prize prize which he himself has sent. The prizes, however, will not be awarded until Wednesday, at a great picnic at Ulmer Park, which will be attended by all the thousands of Germans who have come to New York for this Sängerfest.

Yesterday's competition only enlisted the societies of the fourth, third, and second classes. One will hear better prize singing to-day. One body after another silently advanced to the platform and sang the same song which the preceeding choir had sung, while the judges silently marked down the points with pencils on pads of paper. The audience showed its approval of certain societies by applauding most vigorously.

The societies which competed yesterday were: Fourth Class—Adler Männerchor, Brooklyn; Union Hill Liederkranz, Union Hill, N. J.; Riverside Männerchor, Riverside, N. J.; Germania, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; Turner Männerchor, Atlantic City, N. J.; Germania Gesang Verein, Brooklyn; Concordia Quartet Club, Philadelphia; Bremervorder Männerchor, Brooklyn; Metzger Gesang Verein, Baltimore.

Singing societies of the third class—M. G. V. Alpenröschen, Brooklyn; Schwäbischer Männerchor, Bridgeport, Conn.; Yonkers Quartet Club; Deutscher Liederkranz, Brooklyn; Schweizer Männerchor, Philadelphia; Mozart Männerchor, Baltimore; New Rochelle Männerchor, and Greenville Liederkranz, Jersey City.

Singing societies of the second class—Buffalo Sängerbund, Buffalo, N. Y.; Delaware Sängerbund, Wilmington, Del.; Syracuse Liederkranz, Syracuse, N. Y.; Harmonie Männerchor, Reading, Penn.; Swiss Harmony, West Hoboken, N. J.; Schwäbischer Sängerbund, Newark, N. J.; Bayrischer Sängerbund, Newark, N. J.; Washington Sängerbund, Washington, D. C.

This afternoon the singing societies of the first class will compete for prizes, and to-night five chosen societies will sing in contest for the famous Kaiser prize.

The judges are Prof. Max Mayer Olbersleben, Wurzburg, Bavaria; Prof. Gustav Wohlgemuth, Leipsic, Germany; Max Spicker, Arthur Mees, and Prof. Cornelius Rubner.

A large delegation of prominent musical people from Los Angeles has come to New York for the purpose of hearing the Säengerfest, and it is the intention of these people to arrange a similar affair for the Western city. Those at the head of the group are Harley Hamilton, conductor of the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, Helen Goff, dramatic soprano; Gertrude Beswick, Pearl Graham of the public schools, and L. E. Beyhmer, impresario.

A special meeting of the Presidents and musical directors of the Säengerfest has been arranged for this morning at the Garden by President Henninger, to decide upon a fair plan for awarding the prizes in case there should be a tie between two or more competing societies.

SEMBRICH'S GOOD-BYE TO OPERA IN BERLIN

Cheered and Showered with Roses, She Cries "Auf Wiedersehen."

MUSICAL GERMANY PRESENT

Piece Was "Barber of Seville"—Prima Donna Interviewed on Her Coming Concert Tour in America.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 21.—Mme. Marcella Sembrich made her triumphant farewell appearance on the operatic stage in the "Barber of Seville" at Kroll's Royal Opera House in Berlin to-night. She was vociferously greeted by a packed house which contained a generous sprinkling of notable Americans, including Ambassador and Mrs. Hill, the members of the American Embassy staff and their wives, and Mrs. Elsie French Vanderbilt. All the men and women prominent in German music circles were in the audience and led the cheering at the final curtain.

The prima donna was not in especially good voice, nor, barring Dandrade as Figaro, was the performance notable in any respect. In the lesson scene in the last act Mme. Sembrich interpelated the "Primavera Waltz" by Strauss, and as encore sang to her own accompaniment Chopin's "Maiden's Wish." After numerous curtain calls at the end of the performance the prima donna sang Arditi's "Parla Waltz."

As she was bowing her thanks to the audience a shower of American Beauty roses descended upon her from the flies. The house broke in a bedlam of cheers and applause, and when Mme. Sembrich recovered her equilibrium she stammered out a brief speech.

"I haven't," she said, "words to express what is in my heart at this moment—Oh, I thank you. This is a beautiful farewell. I'll only say, 'Auf Wiedersehen.'"

Then, gathering up armfuls of roses, the prima donna threw them at the cheering audience, which stood saluting her till she was almost too exhausted to respond further to their plaudits.

In an interview in a Berlin newspaper Mme. Sembrich says she expects to appear eighty times in concert in America next season at a profit of $100,000.

"The Son of His Father" Staged.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—"The Son of His Father," a four-act drama, had its premier performance at the Belasco Theatre here to-night. The story revolves about a wealthy young American whose father had been a financial Wall Street pirate. The young man, however, refuses to take any part with his fiancée's father in a gigantic merger which would have made him wealthy but would have wrecked thousands of small operators. In the end he triumphs both in finance and love.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

Richard Le Gallienne has completed his version of "Arestes." William Faversham and Walter Damrosch, in conjunction with the New York Symphony Orchestra, will present it here next season, with a specially selected company, at matinees during performances of "Herod." The incidental music of Massenet will be used.

A. G. Delamater and William Norris will present George Barr McCutcheon's "Beverly," which closed its season in Chicago on June 12, on tour next season.

"Going Some" moved from the Belasco to the Maxine Elliott Theatre last evening. The authors, Paul Armstrong and Rex Beach, were present.

Klaw & Erlanger have lent the New York Theatre for a benefit performance to be given on Sunday evening, June 27, for Mrs. W. J. Comley, whose husband was formerly a theatrical producer.

Henry W. Savage has decided upon "The Florist Shop" as the title for the Viennese farce, "Gluck bei Frauen," which will be the first of the manager's productions here this Autumn. It was written by Alexander Engle and Julius Horst, authors of "The Blue Mouse" and "Girls." Among those engaged for the production are Nina Morris, Lionel Walsh, Addie Orton, John Thomas, and Marion Lorne.

"Cecile, the Singer," a French operetta in one act, the book and lyrics by Charles H. Dorr and Frank L. Freeman and score by Adrian Schubert, will be presented for the first time abroad at a matinee performance in London on June 24. The cast has been selected by Mme. Campanini and Marie Sammarco. It will be presented under the direction of Elise Lathrop.

Mrs. Elizabeth Van Steenberg Pardee.

Mrs. Elizabeth Van Steenberg Pardee died yesterday at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. A. Fillmore Hyde in Glen Road, Morristown, N. J., in her ninety-first year. Her death was unexpected, though she had not been well for several days. She was the widow of Harris Pardee, formerly a merchant in New York. Mrs. Pardee's granddaughter, Mrs. Hyde, is the wife of A. Fillmore Hyde, a member of the firm of A. G. Hyde & Sons, 361 Broadway. His town house is at 10 West Forty-seventh Street.

PITTSBURGER HERE TO WED.

Merchant Kaufmann's Son Comes to This State So He Can Marry Cousin.

Edgar Jonas Kaufmann, son of Isaac Kaufmann, a dry goods dealer of Pittsburg, and his first cousin, Lillian Sarah Kaufmann, daughter of Morris Kaufmann, also of Pittsburg, will be married this evening at the Hotel St. Regis. Mr. and Miss Kaufmann came to New York from Pittsburg on Sunday afternoon on a special train for the purpose of getting married in New York, because the laws of Pennsylvania prohibit the marriage of first cousins. In the party on the special were Mr. Kaufmann's father and the Rev. Dr. Leonard Levy of Pittsburg, who will assist Dr. Stephen S. Wise in performing the marriage ceremony.

The bridegroom-to-be went to the City Hall yesterday and obtained a marriage certificate. He gave his age as 23.

"Yes, we are first cousins, and we came to New York to get married because of that fact," Miss Kaufmann said to a TIMES reporter yesterday. "I have known my cousin all my life, but we have been engaged only a short time. There is no romance connected with our marriage, except that we came here in a special train, if you consider that one. For our honeymoon trip we are going to motor through the Berkshires and the White Mountains."

PITTSBURG, June 21.—Edgar Kaufmann is a son of Isaac Kaufmann, and Miss Lillian Sarah Kaufmann, a daughter of Morris Kaufmann, proprietors of Kaufmann's department store, one of the largest between New York and Chicago.

MISS MARY ASTOR PAUL WEDS.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 21.—Miss Mary Astor Paul and Charles A. Munn were married at noon to-day in St. Martin's Church, at Radnor. The bride is a daughter of the late James W. Paul, Jr., who was a brother of Mrs. William Waldorf Astor. Her brother, A. J. Drexel Paul, gave her in marriage. Mr. Munn's brother, Gurnee Munn of Washington, was best man.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. George Lamb, rector of the church, who was assisted by his father, the Rev. James Lamb, rector of Old St. David's Church, in Devon.

Miss Paul made her début two seasons ago at a famous ball given for her by her father. Her mother, who died many years ago, was Miss Fanny Drexel, daughter of the late Anthony J. Drexel. She was educated abroad, and is an enthusiastic horsewoman, successfully carrying off many blue ribbons at St. Martin's and the Bryn Mawr Horse Shows.

Mr. Munn is the son of Mrs. Charles A. Munn of Washington. He is an undergraduate at Harvard, and after the honeymoon, which will be spent in Europe, Mr. and Mrs. Munn will live near Boston while Mr. Munn completes his course at college.

Among the guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. George W. Childs Drexel, Livingston Biddle, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Drexel, Miss Alice Drexel, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Van Rensselaer, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Henry, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kelso Cassatt, Mrs. Joseph Drexel, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lehr, Miss Julia Rush Biddle, Mrs. A. J. Drexel Paul, Miss Dorothy Randolph, Robert Bacon, Gaston Bacon of Washington; Maurice and Francis Roche, sons of Mrs. Aurel Batonyi of New York; Monroe Robinson, nephew of Col. Roosevelt; Clarence Hay of Washington, Borrell Huff of Washington, Jeffrey Riggs of Washington, Thomas Blummer, Alanson Enos, Hamilton Fish, Frederick Forster and Peabody Gardner of New York.

DICKINSON—SANDS.

Miss Elizabeth Sands, daughter of Mrs. Philip J. Sands of 135 East Sixty-second Street, was married yesterday afternoon to John M. Dickinson of Trenton, N. J. The wedding was at the home of Mrs. Sands, and was attended only by relatives and a few intimate friends. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. William M. Grosvenor, rector of the Church of the Incarnation. The bride was given in marriage by her mother. She wore white satin. There were no bridesmaids. Philemon Dickinson of Philadelphia was his brother's best man. The bridegroom is a member of the law firm of Vroom, Dickinson & Scammell.

Miss Sara Evans to Wed Otto C. Kahn.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Wood Evans of Pendre, Flint, Wales, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Sara Olive Evans, to Otto Charles Kahn, son of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Kahn of New York. Mr. Kahn is head of the transfer department of the Union Pacific Railroad. The marriage will take place soon at Flint, and after a trip abroad Mr. Kahn and his bride will come to this country and spend the remainder of the Summer at Dr. Kahn's Summer home, at Lawrence, L. I.

BISHOP ATTACKS OUR UNIVERSITIES

McFaul of Trenton Diocese Says Harvard, Yale, and Princeton Are Undermining Faith.

THE BIBLE IS FORGOTTEN

And the Ten Commandments Not Known There, He Declares—An Appeal for Catholic Faith.

Declaring that institutions such as Harvard, Yale, and Princeton undermined the faith and injured the morality of their students, Bishop McFaul of the Trenton (N. J.) diocese made a strong appeal last night to the graduating class of the College of St. Francis Xavier, Sixth Avenue and Sixteenth Street, to do their part in the apostolate of the laity. The two methods he pointed out to them were to support the Catholic press and to encourage Catholic education. The Bishop said in part:

"One of the great problems which have been considered by the American Federation of Catholic Societies is Catholic education. Yale, Harvard, and Princeton are undermining the faith and injuring the morality of their students. In a recent celebrated case in this city a girl declared on the witness stand that she did not know the Ten Commandments. They don't know them at these institutions. The Bible used to be the great pride of the Protestants. It is forgotten now.

"If people knew the rascalities, the immoralities, and the disrespect for female virtue rife within their walls, they would be horrified. If parents send their boys to institutions the professors of which teach that there is no such thing as an absolute distinction between right and wrong, they can have little regard for them.

"I have known sad things among the people who are filled with the fanatic and lunatic desire to get into society. I have known a girl, the daughter of good Irish parents, who refused to have her child baptized because she thought it would injure her social ambitions. It is the same social ambition which drives men to send their sons to Yale, Harvard, and Princeton.

"If we want to save the faith we must send the boys and girls to Catholic institutions, where they will have the Ten Commandments stamped on their hearts. No institution can endure unless it is founded on religion and morality. The salvation of the Republic depends on Christian education.

"Some of the great educators of America have recognized this already, and know that there must be some moral education in the universities."

The Bishop closed by quoting Mark Hanna, who had declared that if ever the liberties of America were endangered it would have the Catholic Church on which to rely.

At the opening of his speech the Bishop urged the necessity of supporting the Catholic newspapers, and quoted the influence of the 500 German Catholic newspapers, with their 3,500,000 circulation. He complained that whenever he looked in the house of a Catholic for a Catholic newspaper he was told that they kept it in another room.

"I see," he said, "the latest novels in the parlor, but they tell me that they have the Catholic newspaper in the bedrooms. It may be so."

Bishop McFaul claimed that the leakage of the Catholic Church in America has amounted to 25,000,000 souls. He estimates the annual number of conversions throughout the United States at 23,000, but he pointed out if there had been no loss half the Nation should now have been in the bosom of the Church. It is to remedy this state of things that he implored the graduates to remember the Apostolate of the Laity.

Honorory degrees of Doctor of Laws were conferred on Bishop McFaul, Bishop McDonnell of Brooklyn, (in absentia,) Justice Giegerich, and ex-Senator George F. Roesch.

Handball and Tennis on Waldorf Roof.

Guests at the Waldorf-Astoria were able yesterday for the first time to have games of handball and tennis without leaving the hotel. Mr. Boldt has built courts for both these games on the roof, and during the day they are available for guests who want more vigorous exercise than that afforded in the gymnasium on the fifteenth floor. In order that the players might be as cool as possible, both the courts have been covered with awnings to keep off the sun, while the breezes high above the street fan the players. In the evening, when the roof is used for the concerts, the awnings are removed and tables and chairs occupy the space taken by the courts in daytime.

MRS. MACKAY'S PRIZE AWARDS

Cash Distributed Among Roslyn, L. I., Pupils—Cable Message from Her.

Special to The New York Times.

ROSLYN, L. I., June 21.—This cablegram was received to-day at the Roslyn Public School from Mrs. Clarence Mackay, who is traveling abroad, and was read by the Principal to the children during the commencement exercises:

> Greetings to students. Best wishes for successful exercises. Sincere regrets, cannot be with you.
> KATHERINE MACKAY.

In the course of the exercises two prizes of $25 offered by Mrs. Mackay, one for the boy of highest record and one for the girl of highest record, besides fifteen smaller prizes from $3 to $10 each, also offered by her for good conduct, punctuality, and high standing, were distributed.

The boy who took the $25 prize was Newell H. Grace, 17 years old; the girl was Mary N. Phaelan, 17, both of the graduating class.

At the end of the exercises the pupils of the school presented to the Board of Education a life-size bust of William Cullen Bryant.

GOV. HADLEY'S FATHER DEAD.

Missouri Executive Makes Train Record in Hurrying to His Bedside.

Special to The New York Times.

DE SOTO, Kan., June 21.—Major J. M. Hadley, father of Gov. Herbert S. Hadley of Missouri, died at his home here this afternoon, following an attack of apoplexy. The Governor and his sister were at the bedside.

Gov. Hadley, who spent part of last week with his father, had returned to Jefferson City on Saturday. Sunday morning he got word that a turn for the worse had come, and he left at 10:30 in a one-car special train, making the fastest time ever made between Jefferson City and Kansas City. The special got to Kansas City in 3 hours and 40 minutes.

The Governor was met by a friend in an automobile, and he sped away across the State of Kansas, getting to this city in 1 hour 55 minutes. He got to his father's home about 4 o'clock, but the aged man was unconscious, and remained so until death. The funeral will be held to-morrow afternoon at 1 o'clock, with burial in Olathe, Kan.

Marriage and death notices intended for insertion in The New York Times may be telephoned to 1000 Bryant.

Belfast Ginger Ale

If you have $100 you are a capitalist. If you have $10,000 you are simply a larger capitalist. The more modest your capital the more necessary that you should make it work for you.
If you should spend a little time in considering any proposition that would add 50 per cent. to your income and could quadruple your principal without speculation.
We are issuing a limited amount of 6% bonds, (against our Business Real Estate,) with a convertible privilege that is extremely valuable.
The issue is limited to $600,000.
Denominations $100, $500, $1,000.
THESE bonds have every good feature of any other bond, and several other features, especially the convertible privilege, that no other bond possesses.
Our limited issue is being subscribed for, and will all be placed. It makes no difference to us who invests in our bonds—it makes a great difference to you if you lose an opportunity. It is impossible in an advertisement to go properly into details, but we will send you on request a booklet telling you of our business real estate holdings in the heart of the city, why and how we can pay 6%, the reason for the bond issue, who our officers are, and what convertible means.

YANKS AND SENATORS DIVIDE HONORS AGAIN

HUGHES DRIVEN OUT TWICE

He Is Followed by Gray and Johnson in One Battle and Supplanted by Altrock in the Next.

Disappointment draped the second doubleheader of the short series between the Yankees and Senators on the hilltop yesterday as grayly as it festooned the first dual event in which those teams participated on Saturday. It hung from the scoreboard like streamers of Spanish moss above Savannah's old Thunderbolt Road, or even as the mist wreaths trickle and flicker along the Hudson Valley. Once more the Toppers, instead of cracking a magnum at the expense of the tailenders, contented themselves with a split. True, they won one game, as they had done on the preceding ball day, but that was like getting ice-cream soda instead of champagne cup; like dancing with one's sister instead of sitting it out with another's chap's; like buying a polo pony instead of picking the Futurity winner. And the sting of it all was that it looked as if the Yanks would get yesterday's first game, for they drove two twirlers to cover, and even with Crazy Horse Johnson on the slab they added eight safeties to the five they made in the first three innings and balanced accounts in the eighth—only to lose in the ninth because the lowly Lawmakers bunched bingles on Warhop for a brace of runs. It must be admitted, however, that two exceptionally fine stops by Conroy and one by McBride turned Gotham's goose into patties of false grass in the final.

The opening battle resulted 6 to 4 in Washington's favor; the second struggle 3 to 2 for New York.

Long Tom Hughes achieved the melancholy distinction of being batted out of the box twice in a day. He lasted only two rounds in the first game, but in the next he went seven before taking the count. Warhop was walloped eight times in the initial half of the doubleheader—the same number Manning allowed in the second game—but he failed to distribute them as well. Neither game was notable for tight boxwork, nor fielding, save in spots. It was not as good ball as the Yankees probably will play after a brief jaunt on the road—good enough, though, to keep 12,000 fans interested, and at times to make them amiably enthusiastic. Incidentally, those same Senators, although taking everybody's dust just now, are far from being dubs. They almost always tear off a fair number of sensational plays on the hilltop. Possibly they feel more at home there than on any other grounds except their own, because they took part in the first game the Hilltoppers ever played in American League Park 'way back in 1903.

The visitors got away with a flying start. They peeled off a quartet of counts in the opening chapter by smart swatting and brisk base running. Browne worried the uh-wuh-wuh-wuh boxman for a bag, and Conroy was right there with the sacrificial bunt. The pitcher, with the blood-curdling name, hit Browne's back instead of an infielder's mitt in a quick whip to catch George napping at second, and old Deerfoot pounded the path to third. Unglaub's one-timer brought Browne in and Ungy hustled home when Hemphill gave Donohue's single the go-by for another cushion. Tannehill trifled with three good ones, but Jigs jotted because McBride's hot one vaulted Engle's dome for the far turn. Mac rang the bell on Milan's one-bagger, but the batter was too ambitious.

Nothing doing by the Toppers in that round, but in the next they took up the enemy's trail. On Kleinow's single, Knight's central three-sacker, and Warhop's out at first the locals chalked twice. That was enough for Long Tom, and he gave place to Gray. Dolly lasted just one inning, for, though New York failed to fatten her total on him, the Stallingsites touched him up too warmly for Cantillon's comfort, and Manager Joe sent Johnson in. It was a timely transfer from Washington's viewpoint, for the only Borneo boxman in captivity fielded as effectively as he pitched, and, though hammered heavily, did his share toward beating the Toppers.

Not until the middle inning was another unit posted. The count, New York's third, was a sequence of Conroy's fumble of Austin's grounder, Chase's infield tap, Engle's jog, Demmitt's force hit, and Laporte's diamond safety. In the eighth the home team tied the score on singles by Warhop and Austin, with Hemphill's hike between them. Then came the conclusive chapter, in which the Lawmakers tallied twice on Browne's hit, Connie's sacrifice, Unglaub's three-bagger, and Donohue's drive for a nook.

TEN MINUTES FOR REFRESHMENTS.

Joe Cantillon's faith in Hughes was unshaken. He gave Long Tom the mount for the second number on the card, and didn't set him down until the turn into the stretch. But he leaned on a broken reed, for Hughesy faced Manning this time, and was plainly outclassed. The Toppers got a brace of jots in the second inning on Demmitt's dawdle, Laporte's rap, Engle's fare-you-well foozle of the same that let Ray in and put Frank on third, and Blair's drive through short that registered Laporte. Manning's scratch single and Hemphill's jaunt gave Gotham two runners with none out in the fifth. Tom flipped to McBride to catch Manning off second. The ball got by Mac and Manning made third, but Milan returned the ball to Conroy so snappily that the runner, having shot beyond the bag, was nailed.

However, one Charles made the midway meantime, and, after Austin lifted to Unglaub, Hemphill chalked on Chase's hit. Hal stole second, and, following Engle's trudge, pilfered third, Claudius also purloining a perch. But Demmitt put one up for McBride, and New York was through with the scorer, as Altrock pulled himself out of a hole in the eighth.

Washington's run in the seventh was due to Donohue's trot, Tannehill's tap, a double-play that let Jigs get third, and Hemphill's muff of Milan's soar. In the eighth the Senators got another on Browne's single and steal and Unglaub's drive with two out. The batter was caught, Hemphill to Knight, trying to stretch, but Deerfoot had dented the pan. Then the visitors stopped.

ALFRED NOBLE WINS AGAIN IN FAST RACE

Rejuvenated Four-Year-Old Cleverly Captures $2,500 Parkway Handicap.

OCEAN BOUND'S ASTORIA

Head and Neck Finishes Decide Purse Events in Spirited Racing at the Gravesend Course.

In the closest and best racing of the season, at the Gravesend course yesterday, the smartest two-year-old filly that has made an appearance this Spring, Woodford Clay's Ocean Bound, won the Astoria Stakes in runaway style, and Alfred Noble, a rejuvenated crack of 1907, moved into the list of the star handicap horses by winning the Parkway Handicap in the fastest race of the meeting.

Alfred Noble ran for the fourth race, the twenty-five-hundred-dollar Parkway Handicap, at one mile and a sixteenth, and received little consideration by the crowd in the field of eight horses that ran. Harrigan, the popular choice, went to the front at the lifting of the barrier and made the pace, with Fashion Plate, on the rail, and Alfred Noble on even terms with him, galloping two lengths behind the pacemaker. On the last turn Alfred Noble made a move after Harrigan, and Fashion Plate, trying to go on at the same time, was squeezed back and had to pull up, while Alfred Noble went on, and, wearing down Harrigan in the run to the last furlong, won handily by a length, while Fashion Plate, after recovering from the interference, raced around the field and finished second, a half length in front of Affliction, while Harrigan, stopping at the end, was a neck behind Affliction. The time of the race was 1:46 3-5, the fastest race at the distance run at the meeting.

The contests for the purses made the record for the season in close finishes, with the closest of the day in the selling mile-and-a-sixteenth, second on the card.

FIRST RACE.—Handicap for all ages; about six furlongs.
G. M. Odom's Prince Gal, b. c., 3, by Galveston-Princess Noretti, 110, (Scoville,) 9 to 10 and 1 to 3..........1[1]

ST. JOHN'S COLLEGE GAMES.

Matt McGrath and John Eller Give Athletic Exhibitions.

Matt McGrath of the New York Athletic Club, the famous hammer thrower, and John J. Eller of the Irish-American Athletic Club aided St. John's College of Brooklyn materially in making its field day at Hawthorne Field, Flatbush, yesterday, one of the interesting athletic events of the season. McGrath showed that he was in splendid hammer-throwing form by hurling the sixteen-pound missile 178 feet, and then 179 feet. Eller also showed speed and versatility as a hurdler by covering 220 yards, with George Young, 40 yards handicap, as a pacemaker, in 0:24 4-5.

The chief honors in the St. John's College events were carried off by John Cass of the juniors of the college department. He was first in the 100 and 220 yard dashes and the running broad and running high jumps. Frank Haughney of the prep. department won the 100 and 440 yard runs, and was second in the shot put. In the same department Frank Malloy won the running broad and running high jumps very cleverly.

No National League Games To-day.

Not a ball will be pitched nor a bat handled on any National League grounds to-day. All the games scheduled have been postponed by order of the league Board of Directors as a last tribute to George Dovey, President of the Boston Nationals, whose funeral is to be held in the course of the day in Philadelphia. Dovey died suddenly last week on a train. His body was removed from Xenia, Ohio, to Philadelphia yesterday. It will be buried in Mount Moriah Cemetery.

All the members of the Philadelphia and Boston Clubs will attend the funeral in a body. President Dovey was born in Philadelphia and several members of his family still live in that city. The body was escorted from Ohio by a large number of relatives and friends.

The Board of Directors has ordered that flags at the National League grounds shall fly at half-mast for the next thirty days out of respect to the memory of the deceased magnate.

Dates for the playing off of two of to-day's postponed games have already been set. Brooklyn and Philadelphia will play a doubleheader on Wednesday, and Cincinnati and Chicago will meet in two games on Friday.

Yale and Princeton Game To-day.

To-day's the day for the big Yale-Princeton game on the American League grounds. Long before 3:30, the hour set for the contest to begin, the pretty park will be white with 'rah-'rah boys and bright with 'rah-'rah girls. For every collegian in or out of the game will have at least one girl somewhere in the grand stand, and the players will be watched by whole coteries of loveliness. College ball is interesting to many thousands of persons, and there always is the chance that the discerning eye of the professional magnate will light on a pitcher of class to be gobbled up as soon as possible after commencement day.

Strangers who see hatless and coatless youths making amazing gestures on the lawn in front of the big pavilion need not tremble for their safety. For the arm-waving, head-bobbing young men will be, not maniacs, but cheer-leaders—and the cheering probably will be as generous as it is at most college games.

Gilbert a Golf Champion.

WATERTOWN, Mass., June 21.—Maintaining a lead from the start, Percy Gilbert of the Brae Burn Country Club defeated Joseph G. Thorp of the Country Club, Brookline, in a thirty-six-hole match for the Massachusetts golf championship at the Oakley Country Club to-day by a score of 6 up and 4 to play.

Chess Game Results in a Draw.

J. R. Capablanca and F. J. Marshall played another draw game yesterday at the Manhattan Chess Club. Capablanca has won seven games, lost one, and drawn fourteen.

Ben Douglas Whips Ryan.

FORD NO. 2 LEADING NEAR END OF RACE

SHOULD WIN VERY EASILY

Special to The New York Times.

WALLA WALLA, Wash., June 21.—Barring accident the Ford car No. 2, in the race from New York to Seattle for the M. Robert Guggenheim Trophy and cash prizes, will win. Ford No. 2, piloted by Bert Scott and Charles Smith, arrived here at 6:45 this morning and left at 8:35 on the last leg of the transcontinental run.

Both the Ford No. 1 and the Shawmut car reached Walla Walla this evening ahead of the time local autoists had figured on, and, after being oiled and gone over, they again left on the last lap of their race. The cars were about twelve hours behind the Ford No. 2. They have made up twelve hours since leaving Boise.

The performance of the Shawmut car has been remarkable, for throughout the long and trying journey the car has labored under the handicap of being without adequate equipment. Any sort of serious accident would put the Shawmut out of competition, for it has not had the support of a factory such as the Ford, Acme, and Itala cars have had. When the Shawmut left New York automobile experts prophesied that it would be the first car to drop out of the contest.

With any kind of luck Ford No. 2 will reach Seattle Wednesday morning, as the distance from here is only 291 miles. The car must pass through Walula, North Yakima, Ellensburg, and the Snoqualmic Pass of the Cascade range of mountains. If the mountain pass is clear the traveling will not be difficult.

Itala Racer at Denver.

DENVER, June 21.—The Itala car in the New York to Seattle race arrived here to-day, more than ten days behind the three leaders in the contest. The delay was due to a mishap before reaching Kansas City. The rear axle was seriously damaged, and as the rules of the contest do not permit replacing an axle, the Itala will probably abandon the race here.

Acme Car Reaches Rawlins, Wyoming.

RAWLINS, Wyo., June 21.—The Acme car, No. 4 in the New York to Seattle race, arrived here at 1:10 o'clock this afternoon, and left at 2 o'clock for the West. The Acme has been unfortunate throughout, having twice broken its jackshaft, but George Salzman, the driver, is gamely sticking to his work, and declares he will finish with his car. Heavy roads have detained the Acme since it left St. Louis, but the car is now in first-class condition.

Maxwell-Briscoe Co. Buys New Plant.

Special to The New York Times.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., June 21.—The Maxwell-Briscoe Motor Car Company, which has operated in this city a plant for the last four years, making 2,000 automobiles annually and giving employment to 300 hands, has purchased the works of the Atlantic Rubber Boot and Shoe Company at Auburn, R. I., and will remove there in the near future. The purchase price is said to have been $200,000. The company is at present changing from two-cylinder to four-cylinder runabouts, and the plant here has been idle for several weeks. At Auburn the company will turn out 4,000 machines yearly. The company also operates plants at Tarrytown, N. Y., and New Castle, Ind.

On the Tennis Courts.

A field of thirty-six competitors began their matches in the singles on the courts of the Amackassin Club, Yonkers, yesterday, to bring out the challenger of Gustave F. Touchard for the trophy cup, upon which he has two legs. The summary:

Men's Challenge Cup, Singles.—First Round—William H. Connell defeated Dr. E. G. Littell, 14—12, 6—3; E. H. Janes defeated A. S. Runyon, 6—4, 6—2.

Second Round—Edgar F. Leo defeated A. J. Ostendorf, 0—6, 9—7, 6—2; Frederick C. Inman defeated Artemus Holmes, 4—6, 6—2, 4—4, retired; M. H. McGuire defeated A. Scheffer, 6—1, 7—5; Dr. J. William Rosenbaum defeated C. C. Kelley, 6—4, 2—6, 6—3; G. S. Groesbeck defeated B. T. Blake, 8—6, 6—2; B. M. Phillips defeated F. C. Baggs, 6—2, 6—1; F. Goughtry defeated C. M. Ammerman by default.

Third Round—B. M. Phillips defeated F. Goughtry, 6—2, 6—1.

Richard F. Auger filled the last open bracket of the fourth round of the cup singles on the courts of the Apawamis Club, Rye, yesterday, defeating Frederick P. Fox of the New York Club, 1—6, 6—4, and 6—2.

HOGUP, Utah, via Ogden, Utah, June 21.—I did not get my usual good sleep last night, due to overjoy over having everything arranged to my entire satisfaction for the rest of the trip. I did, however, get three hours' rest, after which I had a large midnight luncheon in the presence of some fifty residents, who were anxious to see me off at 1 A. M.

I started in company with Mr. J. N. Murray, who will follow me with a railroad velocipede with refreshments. Through the kindness of Vice President Kruttschnitt, General Passenger Agent James Horsburg, Jr., General Supt. J. M. Davis, and Supt. E. C. Manson, I will now have the best of treatment over the Southern Pacific Railway from Ogden.

I reached Midlake at 1:55 P. M., and stopped one hour, distance 38 miles, going over the greatest and longest trestle in the world. I have made the best time to-day, reaching Hogup, Utah, 72 miles.

The remainder of the route, as changed, is as follows: June 22, Tecoma, Nev., 51 miles; 23d, Moore, 53; 24th, Ryndon, 51; 25th, Carlinn, 34; 26th, Battle Mountain, 59; 28th, Winnemucca, 59; 29th, Rye Patch, 52; 30th, Toy, 38; July 1, Hazen, 41; 2d, Reno, 47; 3d, Summit, 49; 5th, Clipper Gap, 63; 6th, Sacramento, 43; 7th, Stockton, 48; 8th, Niles, 62; 9th, San Francisco, 60.

RACE HORSES UNDER GUARD.

Mounted Gendarmes Escort St. Cloud Entrants to Race Course.

PARIS, June 21.—The horses for the races at St. Cloud to-day were escorted from their training quarters by mounted gendarmes, in order to prevent a repetition of the disorderly scenes of yesterday, when forty militant members of the Stable Boys' Union attempted to prevent the running of the Grand Steeplechase of Paris at the Auteuil course.

A deputatoin of the stable boys to-day visited Minister of Labor Viviani, who has undertaken to mediate with the trainers. The boys demand recognition of their union, payment at the rate of $1.20 a day, better quarters and food, and that they enjoy the benefits of the employers' liability law.

Motor Cycle Run Postponed.

Because of inability to complete arrangements along the route in time, the start of Mr. Hastings's proposed motor cycle run to Boston and return cannot be made until noon of Thursday. Then he will start from the headquarters of the New York Press Club Athletic Association, and, carrying a greeting from it to the Boston Press Club, will undertake to make the round trip—434 miles—within twenty-four hours.

Polo for Meadow Brook Cups.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., June 21.—Two polo games were played in excessive heat this afternoon for the Meadow Brook Club cups, at Westbury. The second team of Meadow Brook played against Great Neck in the first game and won out handily by a score of 7 to 8¾. Morgan Grace had to withdraw owing to the heat. His position was filled by C. B. Beadleston.

The Meadow Brook Free Booters and the strong quartet from the Rockaway Hunt Club played a one-sided match in the second of the series for the cups. Rockaway won by the score of 16 to 5, with an allowed handicap of four goals. Meadow Brook scored only one additional goal, which was made by J. A. Burden. The line-up and the summary of both games:

BIG MORGAN LOAN TO FLAGLER ROAD

PERKINS MAY BE A DIRECTOR

Probability of an Alliance Between the Southern Railway and the East Coast.

J. P. Morgan & Co., it was learned yesterday, have taken an issue of $10,000,000 first mortgage bonds of the Florida East Coast Railway, which was built by H. M. Flagler. The actual cost of the railroad has exceeded $33,000,000, all of which was supplied by Mr. Flagler personally, this being the first public issue of securities against this railroad, the construction of which has attracted wide interest among railroad men.

The first mortgage bonds represent about one-third of the cost of the road, while Mr. Flagler has taken income bonds and stock against the remaining two-thirds cost of the road. The whole line is about 520 miles long, all of which, with the exception of about forty-five miles, has been completed. The line from Knight's Key, Fla., to Key West, a distance of forty-five miles, is now under construction. The $4,000,000 being put into this extension is being supplied by Mr. Flagler, who is taking for this money new common stock of the company at par.

In connection with the purchase of these bonds by J. P. Morgan & Co. it is learned that George W. Perkins will probably be made a Director of the Florida East Coast Railway. Reports were in circulation yesterday, but not confirmed, that an alliance would likely be formed between the Florida East Coast Railway and the Southern Railway Company. In this connection it was pointed out that the Florida East Coast is the natural continuation of the Southern Railway, as well as of the Atlantic Coast Line and the Seaboard Air Line, and that the proposed car-ferry system from Key West to Havana would probably attract to the new line traffic which now moves by steamer. This line, when the extension to Key West is completed and the car ferry established, will make it possible to travel in Pullman cars all the way from New York to Havana.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

BOSTON, June 21.—Under the lead of Amalgamated, which recorded a further decline to 78⅜, the whole local market was lower all around. North Butte lost a couple of points, Calumet & Arizona declined to 102½, Copper Range to 80, Butte Coalition to 24⅜, and the balance of the copper shares sold off in proportion. The close was weak and at about the lowest point of the day.

CHICAGO STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 21.—Trading on the local Exchange was largely confined to the Booth Fisheries issues. The common declined ⅝, and then recovered ¼ before midday, and the preferred showed a loss of ½, to 48½, during the same period. Title and Trust was easier and sold off to 132½, a net loss of ½. Street's and Swift's were fractionally lower. Edison recovered ½, to 118, and Brick ⅝, to 42⅞, at noon.

THE COTTON MARKET.

Strengthens on Undesired Rain—Closes Steady 6 to 12 Points Up.

Cotton was higher yesterday as a result of further rains in the eastern and central belt. Trading was light and irregular during the middle session. The close was steady at a net advance of 6 to 12 points. The market opened steady at an advance of 4 to 10 points, and sold 9 to 13 points net higher shortly after the call. The best point was reached during the last half hour.

The weather map showed rather general rains in sections which had been complaining of excessive moisture—preventing necessary farm work—and a great many complaints were received regarding the condition of fields in the Mississippi Valley, but some advices are that crop complaints are being exaggerated. Contract prices were as follows:

THE COFFEE MARKET.

Coffee was very quiet again yesterday, with the tendency still toward a reduction in the near month premium. The close was quiet, net unchanged to 10 points lower. Sales were reported of 5,000 bags.

The market opened quiet at unchanged prices to an advance of 5 points. June was relatively easy as gauged by the closing bid, while other months were unchanged to 5 points lower. The French market was unchanged to ¼ franc higher, and Hamburg showed a similar gain at the New York opening, while the only change in the Brazilian markets was a decline of 25 reis at Rio. Santos was barely steady at recent prices. The movement is increasing rather more rapidly. Very cold weather continued in the State of Sao Paulo.

Spot coffee was quiet; 7⅞@8c for Rio No. 7. Total warehouse deliveries in the United States for the week were 55,049 bags, against 73,115 last week and 101,869 last year. Of the former amount New York had 55,049 bags. Receipts at Rio and Santos for the week totaled 137,000 bags, against 75,000 last week, 93,000 last year, and 269,000 two years ago. Contract prices were as follows:

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—The Daily Consular and Trade Report for to-morrow notes the following trade opportunities. Further information regarding these can be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufacturers, care of Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C.

PANAMA CANAL SUPPLIES—Sealed proposals, in triplicate, will be received at the office of the General Purchasing Officer of the Isthmian Canal Commission, Washington, for furnishing the following supplies: (1) Bids will be received until June 22, 1909, for supplying electrical supplies, including fixtures, fittings, lamps, cable, wire, line material, sheet copper, hardware, cross arms, solder, tape, &c. (2) Tenders will be received until June 30 next for furnishing car, engine, and valve oils.

PORT WORKS AND NAVIGATION CANAL—Consul Gen. R. M. Bartleman of Buenos Ayres reports that sealed tenders will be received by the Ministry of Public Works of Argentina until Sept. 1, 1909, for the enlargement of the port works of the City of Buenos Ayres and of the navigation canal for ocean going vessels from that city to the river Parana de Las Palmas. Copies of the specifications, costing $84.92 each, may be obtained from the direction of Gen. de Obras Hidraulicas, Ministerio de Obras Publicas, (General Superintendency of Hydraulic Works, Ministry of Public Works,) Buenos Ayres, Argentina.

AMERICAN PLOWS—A report has been received from an American Consul in Latin America stating that an agricultural bank in his district, which is a Government institution, has just placed an order for 120 American plows. Several plows of the type recently ordered were purchased about a year ago, and have proved so satisfactory that the bank decided to secure a quantity for distribution among native farmers.

STEAM WAGONS FOR GENERAL CARTAGE WORK—An American consular officer, in response to an inquiry from the United States, has forwarded a copy of a letter received from a local business man relative to the market in his district for steam wagons or trucks for general cartage work. There appears to be an excellent opportunity for the introduction of American manufactured goods of this class. The name of a local business man, who desires to hear from manufacturers in the United States, is also given in the report.

TENDERS FOR POLICE UNIFORMS—Consul F. W. Goding of Montevideo reports that the Uruguayan Government has called for proposals for supplying 2,400 canvas uniforms, composed of coats and trousers for the city police; 2,400 pairs of leggings, 4,000 blouses and bloomers for the rural police, and 3,200 Summer helmets, all to be according to the specifications on file at the fiscal general inspection of police, in Calle Cuareim 254. Proposals must be presented on or before July 23.

LEEDS & CATLIN CO. FAILS.

Makers of Phonograph Records Have Liabilities of $1,000,000.

A petition in bankruptcy was filed late yesterday afternoon against the Leeds & Catlin Company, manufacturers and wholesale dealers in discs and cylinder records for talking machines and phonographs at 53 East Eleventh Street, whose factory is at Middletown, Conn., by Leonard Bronner, attorney for these creditors: Charles Goldstein, $1,033, on an assigned claim of the Sackett & Wilhelm Company, and Leo Wise, $12, on an assigned claim of L. J. Murray. It was alleged that the company is insolvent, made preferential payments of $10,000, and transferred assets of $5,000.

No receiver was appointed yesterday, but it is expected that one will be appointed to-day. The company is one of the largest and best known in this line of business, and is capitalized at $1,000,000. The business was started in 1892 by Leeds & Walcott, who were succeeded by the present company in July, 1899. The capital stock originally was $10,000, and has been increased at various times up to August, 1907, when it was put at $1,000,000.

The officers were Frank P. Byrne, President; I. Allen Sanberg and Louis P. Wilson, Secretaries; Henry Leeds, Treasurer. The company's statement of Aug. 21, 1908, showed liabilities of $661,120 and assets of $2,003,000, the principal items of which were real estate, $375,000; machinery plant at Middletown, Conn., $779,169; cash, $26,466, and patents and special processes, $710,000.

Leonard Bronner said yesterday that the bankruptcy petition was occasioned by an adverse decision of the United States Supreme Court for an infringement of patents given in April last. It was said that the company infringed on the Victor talking machine patents. The result was that numerous records had been previously sold and the purchasers would not pay for them now for fear of being involved in litigation. The stock on hand was largely of the same kind, and is practically valueless as they cannot be disposed of. Liabilities are estimated at over $1,000,000. The value of the assets is hard to estimate as a large part of the property at Middletown is incumbered by mortgages to secure bond issues.

GRAND JURY ON SUGAR LOAN.

Investigation of the Case Is Now Under Way in Earnest.

The United States Grand Jury started in earnest yesterday on the investigation of the Segal loan by the American Sugar Refining Company, and before the end of the day was burrowing deep into documentary evidence furnished by Secretary Heicke of the Sugar Trust, under subpoena.

The investigation by the Grand Jury will probably be in progress for some time, inasmuch as there is a lot of ground to be covered. It is made for the purpose of finding out whether the Segal-Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company loan was made in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust act. If such is the conclusion of the Grand Jury not only will individual prosecutions be in order, but the trust will be subject to a dissolution suit under the Sherman act as a combination in restraint of trade.

Other witnesses who will appear before the Grand Jury will be Receiver Earle of the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company, H. Snowden Marshall and ex-Gov. Black of the New York counsel for the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company in its recent $30,000,000 suit; Gustav Kissel, the broker who acted as dummy for the trust in making the loan, and Adolph Segal. The latter has been subpoenaed in Philadelphia.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Paintings for Harper & Brothers Are Held to be Undervalued 46 Per Cent.

According to a decision reached yesterday by Judge Waite of the Board of United States General Appraisers, paintings sent from London to Harper & Brothers of this city are undervalued more than 46 per cent. The paintings, of which there are eleven, are by A. Castaigne and illustrate the River Rhone.

The publishing firm entered the paintings as having a value of $375. Appraiser Wanmaker, however, took a different view, and held that the canvases had a value of at least $550. Collector Loeb accordingly exacted the increased duties. In view of the action of Judge Waite in sustaining the imposition of duty on a higher valuation than that invoiced, it is probable that Harper & Brothers will ask a board of three General Appraisers to review the single General Appraiser's decision.

Judge Waite handed down a decision affirming the customs officials in exacting a high duty on a statue of "Faith" from S. A. MacFarland & Co. of Carrara, Italy. Alabaster statuary from Ferdinand Vichi of Florence was also held by Judge Waite to be undervalued.

TRUST CO. DIVIDEND INCREASE

U. S. Mortgage and Trust Puts Rate Up from 20 to 24 Per Cent.

The United States Mortgage and Trust Company has increased its dividend rate from 20 per cent. to 24 per cent. annually by the declaration of a semi-annual dividend of 12 per cent. payable June 30. In his report to the Directors, President Cornelius C. Cuyler announced that during the last six months deposits have increased over $10,000,000, to $40,000,000.

Secretary Carl G. Rasmus has been elected a Vice President along with Calvert Brewer, who has been Treasurer. Frank J. Parsons succeeds the former in the Secretaryship and Joseph Adams has been made Treasurer. Both were assistants in the offices they now occupy. The new Assistant Secretary, Victor Erlicher, was formerly manager of the company's Seventy-third Street branch. Henry W. Hadley, who has been many years with the company, is the new Assistant Treasurer.

Rumson Wins and Draws a Bye.

PHILADELPHIA, June 21.—The Rumson polo team of Sea Bright, N. J., defeated the Devon second team in the second game of the Country Cup series to-day at Bala by the score of 13¼ to 3¾. The players and their handicaps were:

Rumson.—W. S. Jones, 2; Walter McClure, 2; H. S. Border, 3; C. H. Sabin, 1.

Devon Second.—T. Stokes, 1; G. Dougherty, 2; A. M. Collins, 1; J. S. Knight, 1.

The schedule was readjusted to-day, and Rumson drew a bye in the semi-finals, enabling them to compete in the final game of the series on Saturday next without playing any more preliminary games.

Rhodes Victor at Wimbledon.

LONDON, June 21.—D. F. Rhodes of Boston has won one match in the first round of the lawn tennis championship now being contested at Wimbledon, having beaten R. B. Gurney, 9–7, 6–4, 6–3. Mr. Rhodes is the sole American entry.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Warm weather continues generally in the Atlantic States, the Mississippi Valley, and the Southwest. In the extreme Northwest the weather has become cooler.

There will be considerable cloudiness with scattered rains in the eastern and southern States and the Ohio Valley during the next forty-eight hours. The temperature in these districts will continue high. Fair weather with moderate temperature is indicated for the Northwest.

Winds along the New England Coast will be light to moderate west; Middle and South Atlantic Coast, light to moderate south.

Steamships departing Tuesday for European ports will have moderate west winds and generally fair weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND WEDNESDAY.

Eastern New York and Eastern Pennsylvania—Partly cloudy and slightly cooler Tuesday. Showers Tuesday night or Wednesday; light to moderate southwest winds.

New Jersey—Fair Tuesday. Wednesday, showers; light to moderate southwest winds.

New England—Tuesday, partly cloudy; showers in north portion. Wednesday, showers; somewhat cooler in interior; moderate west winds, becoming variable.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Break Sharply—Call Money Rates, 1½@1⅞ Per Cent.

PRICES CLOSE AT LOWEST

Trading Dull in Early Dealings, Very Active on Decline—Exchange Nearer Gold Point.

Following dullness, accompanied by moderate strength in the early trading on the Stock Exchange yesterday, the market became decidedly active on selling which brought about declines, which were precipitous enough to show net losses at the end of the day of from 2 to 3 points or more in a number of active stocks. Losses within this range were recorded in Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Reading, and Wabash preferred among the railroads, while the industrials contributed such losses as 2½ points in United States Steel common and 2¾ in the preferred, 3¼ in Amalgamated, and 2⅞ in American Smelting. That the position of the market was such as to make possible a sharp decline in prices with relatively little provocation was shown by the fact that most that was offered to explain the severe losses recorded in the leading issues yesterday was a report which later met denial that severe illness had overtaken Mr. Harriman abroad. Southern Pacific and Union Pacific were both heavy losers by the afternoon operations, but their losses were no heavier than some recorded in other parts of the list. Having started early in the afternoon, the selling movement continued in full sway for the rest of the session, the final prices of the day, when not actually the lowest, being only small fractions above the lowest. Up to noon, when the market was showing reasonable firmness, the trading had not exceeded 175,000 shares, but on the decline the market became so active that the sales for the day totaled 843,000 shares.

The actual developments of the day included a further advance in foreign exchange rates, which brought the market so close to the gold export point that several inquiries for gold bars were made, although no engagements were actually closed during the day. With call money still quoted at 1¾ per cent., there was no reason for a resumption of the gold export movement at this time exerting any greater influence upon market sentiment than was exerted by the exports which have already taken place, but with the market declining as it was yesterday it was natural that the prospect of a further loss of gold should be included among the factors contributing to the weakness of the stock market. The day's routine returns were not lacking in further evidence of continued growth in industrial activity. Among the statements of railroad earnings published yesterday were the Kansas City Southern for May, showing an increase for that month of $173,861 in gross and $110,446 in net, and several reports of weekly gross earnings showing substantial increases.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Directors of the Bank of Washington Heights have declared an initial dividend of 2 per cent., payable July 1 to stock of record June 24.

Bertron, Griscom & Jenks of New York and Philadelphia are offering 4½ per cent. general mortgage bonds of the New Orleans Railway & Light Company, due July 1, 1935, at 87½ and interest, which yields 5.40 per cent. The company controls the entire electric railway and gas business of the City of New Orleans, and practically all the electric light and power business of the city.

Directors of the Texas & Pacific Coal Company have declared a 2 per cent. stock dividend instead of the regular quarterly 1½ per cent. dividend, payable June 30 to stockholders of record June 19.

Baruch Brothers have printed a monograph by Frank Fayant under the title "Some Thoughts on Speculation," which is a concise analysis of the service performed by modern speculation. Mr. Fayant treats in the form of excerpts from the world's leading authorities the economic view of the necessity of speculation, of the utility of the methods on the world's leading exchanges, and of the dangers of State regulation. He also reviews the efforts to prevent or restrict speculation. A valuable part of the monograph is a complete bibliography of the subject, covering the leading works in English, French, and German, more than a hundred titles.

The meeting of the stockholders of the International Mercantile Marine Company has been postponed until June 30.

The Stock Exchange firm of F. W. Graves & Co. will soon open a new branch office at 2 East Forty-fourth Street, under the management of P. J. Kelliher.

Application has been made to the Stock Exchange to list $21,333,000 additional development and general mortgage 4 per cent. bonds, due 1956, of the Southern Railway Company; $4,200,000 first mortgage 5 per cent. bonds, due 1955, of the Spokane International Railway Company, and $4,327,000 additional consolidated mortgage 5 per cent. bonds, due 1936, of the South & North Alabama Railroad Company.

N. W. Harris & Co. and the National City Bank have sold the $5,000,000 Chicago Railways first mortgage 5s recently purchased by them.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 21.—The local market was dull until midday, with interest concentrated mainly in street railway, Lake Superior Corporation, and arbitrage shares. Traction stocks and Lake Superior were decidedly strong during the forenoon, but prices began to sink in the afternoon, and early gains were wiped out and in many cases turned into losses. United Gas Improvement dropped nearly to 88, compared with 89½ at the close on Saturday. Lehigh Valley lost over a point, and Cambria Steel sank back to 40. The market closed very weak.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

London 'Change Cheerful, with Americans Quiet—Paris Prices Heavy at Close.

LONDON, June 21.—Money was in quiet demand on the market to-day and discounts were steady. The Bank of England secured the sum of about $2,250,000 in gold available.

Trading on the Stock Exchange was cheerful, but apathetic, owing to the nearness of the settlement. Kaffirs were still stimulated by bear covering. Foreigners were idle, while home rails showed slight improvements.

American securities opened quiet at irregular price changes. Trading was light during the first hour, and at noon the market was steady and from ⅛ below to ½ above Saturday's New York closing. There was little doing in this section until near the close, when a demand for Erie common, Union Pacific, and Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé caused a hardening tendency.

Bar silver steady, 24 1-16d per ounce.

Money, ¾@1 per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 1 11-16@1¾ per cent.; for three months' bills 1 11-16@1¾ per cent.

PARIS, June 21.—Prices on the Bourse to-day were firm until the close, when they became heavy.

Exchange on London, 25f 20c for checks.

BERLIN, June 21.—Trading on the Boerse to-day was weak and prices were inactive.

SILVER QUOTATIONS.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

An Old-Time Deal Story.

There is an impression in Wall Street that "deal" rumors never thrive in a bear market. If this is so, one would be driven inevitably to the conclusion that the declines witnessed last week, and again yesterday, were a mere flash in the pan, a little blinding at first, perhaps, but not calculated to obscure the vision of the bulls, or divert them from their purpose. At intervals Wall Street has been hearing for years that the Pennsylvania Railroad was going to take over the Atchison, and now it hears so again. To be sure, there are many good authorities who now insist, as they did on former occasions, that there is one chance in a million, or less, that such a deal will ever be put through. Nevertheless, the idea itself, irrespective of whether it was well founded or not, seemed to please the bull contingent yesterday—at least, until something more real happened in the stock market which led them to pay more attention to facts than to theories. The Pennsylvania absorption yarn did some service in the early trading, while Atchison was also bought by very good people on the belief that the next dividend would be at the rate of 6 per cent.

Belated Discovery in Wabash.

Things were going nicely, even if rather slowly, yesterday, until some one began to offer fairly big blocks of real stock in the Wabash crowd. Heavy selling was credited to two parties known to have been prominent in the recent bull activities in the Wabash shares. After the preferred stock had dropped about three points, it was suddenly discovered that the Lackawanna, or the Canadian Pacific, or the United States Steel Corporation, or any other big concern, might not, after all, be going to take over the Wabash and guarantee 4 per cent. on the preferred stock. At yesterday's lowest price, Wabash preferred was about 9 points under the figure reached a week ago.

Liquidation in Reading.

Reading closed yesterday about 10 points lower than it did last Wednesday, when the Directors failed to increase the dividend to 6 per cent. Those who have been watching the transactions since that time assert that a much larger bull following in Reading was disappointed by the declaration of the regular dividend than was generally supposed. At least one or two big accounts in Reading have since been liquidated, it is said, and the peculiar thing about it is that those alleged to have been the heaviest sellers are popularly believed to be very close to the Reading management. How they could have been deceived into believing that anything out of the ordinary was going to happen at last week's Directors' meeting is hard to explain, when outsiders experienced no great difficulty in foreshadowing what was going to take place. In any event, some large accounts in other stocks, according to current reports, were badly crippled by the heavy fall in Reading shares, some of the holders of that stock being compelled to sell out large lines elsewhere because of the break.

Break on Harriman Rumor.

American stocks in London as well as other securities there were under some pressure early in the day, and it was perhaps not surprising therefore that the chief "news" of the day, effective on our market, should have come from that quarter. When the market had begun to pick up a bit in the afternoon suddenly some one was reported to have received a cable from London telling of the serious illness or death of Mr. Harriman. Previous to that time, the market had been sufficiently unsteady on its pins to be easily bowled over by a scare of this sort. Within five minutes of the time that the first intimation of the rumor was given, everybody in Wall Street had it, and from the way the market acted immediately after that, it would seem that nearly everybody immediately began to sell stocks. Although denials were quickly forthcoming from Mr. Harriman's associates here, it was hard for the market to recover. The bulls said that it was a characteristic bear manoeuvre to break the market.

Gold Export Prospects.

Sterling exchange rose to the highest point of the year, and international bankers admitted that there was a very good prospect of a resumption of gold exports to Europe before the end of the week. In spite of the fairly large offerings of loan bills which have been made exchange rates have been steadily advancing for a week, and at yesterday's high level some bankers said that gold might be shipped to any one of the three leading European centres, London, Paris, or Berlin, upon slight inducement. The belief obtains in some quarters that the liquidation of American securities for foreign account, which has been going on lately, was nearly sufficient to offset the amount of exchange created through our borrowings in London and on the Continent, chiefly at the former place. No one seemed to be worrying very much, however, about the possibilities of gold exports, and no one is likely to do so while money remains so easy here.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

THE PRICE GOES TO 24⅛

Advance Is Not Held and the Close Is 1 Point Below High Level—Other Mining Shares Weak in Later Trading.

After rising to a new high record, Nevada Consolidated yesterday sold down to 23, ¼ below the opening price, and closed at 23⅛. Transactions totaled 10,500 shares, and the highest level reached in the trading was 24⅛. The mining list in general showed small losses at the close after a day of minor activity. Cumberland-Ely lost ⅛ on the day's transactions, Miami ¼, Bay Central 1-16, and United Copper ⅝. Trading in the bond list was also in limited volume, and the close was in several instances fractionally below opening figures.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT—There was a steady advance yesterday, continuing to the close. Late positions showed the greatest strength at Chicago. The significance of this was not apparent, as the crop outlook, especially in the Northwest, appeared very favorable. Likewise there was a tendency to increase estimates of the Kansas crop. Liverpool closed ¼@⅜d net higher. St. Louis wired that cutting had commenced in St. Louis County, the heads being heavy and grain plump. Cash wheat in New York was quoted: Old No. 2 red, $1.50, nominal, in elevator and free on board, afloat; new No. 2 red, $1.19⅝, end August; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, $1.33⅝, and No. 2 hard Winter, $1.33¼, free on board, afloat, both nominal.

CORN—Offerings were light yesterday. The visible supply increased 309,000 bushels. Receipts at Chicago were less than the estimate, but 319 cars are expected Tuesday. Liverpool closed ¼@½d net higher. No. 2 corn in New York was quoted 84c, elevator, and 82c, free on board, afloat, for old, both nominal; No. 2 corn, new, 66½c, Winter shipment; other grades nominal.

General Mortgage 4½% Gold Bonds

Dated July 1, 1905. Due July 1, 1935.

Redeemable in whole or in part, after 60 days' notice, on any coupon date at 105 and interest.

Coupon bonds of $1,000 denomination, with the privilege of registration of both principal and interest or of principal only.

Coupons payable January 1st and July 1st at the New York Trust Company, or at the offices of the New Orleans Railway Company in the City of New Orleans.

NEW YORK TRUST COMPANY, TRUSTEE.

BONDS:

General Mortgage 4½% bonds, authorized		$30,000,000
Held in reserve to retire underlying bonds of constituent properties	$12,491,000
Outstanding		17,509,000

(Closed Mortgage.)

$13,643,000 of these bonds have been listed on the New York Stock Exchange, and application has been made to list the remaining outstanding bonds of this mortgage. They are also freely dealt in on the New Orleans Stock Exchange.

EARNINGS AND EXPENSES:

For the year ended December 31st, 1908, the earnings of the Company were as follows:

Operating Revenue	$5,968,498 26
Operating Expenses	3,364,984 64
Net Operating Revenue	$2,603,513 62
Other Revenue	10,497 40
Total Income	$2,614,011 02
Income applicable to interest on General Mortgage 4½% Bonds and Notes	$1,480,399 45
Interest on General Mortgage 4½% Bonds and Notes	909,905 44
BALANCE	$570,494 01

All the notes have been paid off, with the exception of $1,268,000 due in 1912, and it is expected that these will be paid during the present year.

The General Mortgage 4½% Bonds herein offered are secured by a lien on the entire railway system of the city of New Orleans, on all the gas properties of the city, and on all the electric light and power properties of the city, with the exception of the property of one small independent electric light company which is now in the hands of a receiver, either by direct mortgage lien or by deposit under the mortgage of practically all the stocks of the companies owned or controlled by the NEW ORLEANS RAILWAY & LIGHT COMPANY.

The population served is estimated at 375,000.

The only bonds outstanding on the property of the New Orleans Gas Light Company amount to $76,000. These have been called for payment on July 1st, 1909. When paid the General Mortgage 4½% Bonds herein offered will, through the deposit under the mortgage of practically all the stock of the New Orleans Gas Light Company, become a first mortgage lien on all the property of that company, which controls the entire gas business of the city of New Orleans.

FRANCHISES:

The franchises are either perpetual or extend for a long period of years, with the exception of two unimportant ones which expire 1915 and 1917. The franchises of the New Orleans Gas Light Company and of the New Orleans Lighting Company are perpetual, while that of the former is exclusive until 1925, its exclusive feature having been confirmed by the United States Supreme Court.

Having purchased the General 4½% Bonds above referred to, and having sold a large part of them, we offer the unsold balance

We recommend these securities to discriminating investors. Descriptive circular, containing full particulars, accompanied by a map of New Orleans showing the railway lines, will be furnished on application.

Land line from Kings Bend to Genesee River.

Length, 5.63 miles. Sheets 1 to 107 inclusive, and Sheets 78-A and 78-B.

Plans may be seen, and detailed specifications, engineer's estimate of quantities, proposal blanks, form of contract and bonds required and other information for proposers may be had at the office of the Superintendent of Public Works at Albany, N. Y.; at the office of the Assistant Superintendent of Public Works for the Middle Division at Syracuse, N. Y.; at the office of the Assistant Superintendent of Public Works for the Western Division at Rochester, N. Y.; and at the canal office, Spaulding's Exchange, Buffalo, N. Y.

Copies of detailed plans or drawings may be obtained from the State Engineer and Surveyor at Albany, N. Y., upon payment to him of the cost of producing them.

Monthly estimates will be paid of ninety per centum (90 per cent.) of the work done at the contract price. Every proposal for said work must be accompanied by a money deposit in the form of a draft or certified check upon some good banking institution in the City of Albany or New York, issued by a National or State bank in good credit within the State and payable at sight to the Superintendent of Public Works for five per centum (5 per cent.) of the amount of the proposal.

The person whose proposal shall be accepted will be required to execute a contract and furnish bonds within ten days from the date of notice of award delivered to him or them in person or mailed to the address given in the proposal.

Upon execution of the contract and approval of bonds, the certified check or draft will be returned to the proposer unless the same shall have been presented for collection prior to such time, in which case the amount of the deposit will be refunded by the Superintendent of Public Works.

The deposits of bidders other than the one to whom the award of contract shall be made will be returned immediately after the award has been made.

The amount of bond required for faithful performance will be ten per centum (10 per cent.) of the amount of the estimated cost of the work according to the contract price, and an additional bond, known as the labor bond, in the sum of ten per centum (10 per cent.) of the amount of the estimated cost of the work according to the contract price, will be required as security that the contractor will pay in full at least once in each month all laborers employed by him upon the work specified to be done in the contract.

Each proposal must be addressed to the Superintendent of Public Works, Albany, N. Y., and must be indorsed on the envelope with the name of the construction for which the proposal is made.

Award, if made, will be made to the person or persons whose proposal shall be lowest in cost to the State for doing the work, and which shall comply with all provisions required to render it formal. Before any award shall be made the lowest bidder will be required to satisfy the Superintendent of Public Works of his ability to provide suitable equipment and materials for the proper performance of the work.

The right is reserved to reject all proposals and readvertise and award the contract in the regular manner if, in the judgment of the undersigned, the interests of the State will be enhanced thereby.

F. C. STEVENS,
Superintendent of Public Works.

LONG ISLAND—FOR SALE OR TO LET

"HAVE YOU SEEN BELLE TERRE?"
This is the only place we know of where you can attain the things you would aim at if money were not a limiting consideration. There is no reason why a $4,500 Bungalow (a home and an acre of ground) here should not be as healthful and attractive as a country house costing $50,000. Remember, these Bungalows are within Belle Terre's gates—and its beauties, surroundings, and advantages are as great as a magnificent country estate.

Belle Terre

A section of this 1,300-acre private park, fronting on Port Jefferson Harbor, has been devoted to a Bungalow Colony, where there are now erected a number of moderate-priced Bungalows and Cottages. These stand at an elevation of 175 feet on heavily wooded plots of about one acre each, affording excellent views of Harbor, Long Island Sound, and Connecticut Shore.

Full privileges of Belle Terre Country Club, golf, tennis, motoring, yachting, boating, yacht anchorage and landing, livery, garage, five miles of clear sandy beach.

About one acre of land with Bungalow ready for immediate occupancy, $4,500 to $5,500.

BUSINESS TROUBLES

SCHAEFFLER BROTHERS.—Schedules in the assignment of Schaeffler Brothers, waists, 59 Grand Street, show liabilities of $3,362 and assets $2,212 in claims for fire insurance.

JOHN E. RATHBUN.—John E. Rathbun of 160 Franklin Street has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $5,066 (contracted in Albany in 1894) and assets of $8 cash.

PETER STREIFLER.—Peter Streifler, mason and builder, of 200 West 143d Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $7,717 and no assets. He went through bankruptcy on Jan. 6, 1902.

GEORGE C. RYAN.—George C. Ryan, one of the partners of T. A. McIntyre & Co., stock brokers, applied for his discharge from bankruptcy yesterday. Three creditors appeared in opposition, and the matter went over for two weeks.

ROEBUCK WEATHER STRIP AND WIRE SCREEN COMPANY.—Schedules in bankruptcy of the Roebuck Weather Strip and Wire Screen Company of 207 Broadway show liabilities, $108,372, and assets, $152,137, consisting of real estate at Thirteenth Street and Hamilton Avenue, Brooklyn, $82,000, heavily mortgaged; stock, $4,116; material, $20,930; machinery, $5,858; horse and wagon, $550; accounts, $38,907, and cash, $186. Among the creditors are the Clinton Wire Cloth Company, $70,894, partly secured; Frank W. J. Bursch, $3,650, secured; Frank Reynold's estate, $3,537, secured, and James Cotterell, $2,000.

WALTER DUNN.—Walter Dunn, wholesale dealer in oysters and clams, at the foot of Gansevoort Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $9,787 and assets of $9,366, consisting of accounts, $7,914; note, $300; oyster boat, baskets, &c., $480; horses and wagons, $300; cash, $72, and real estate at Pine Grove, L. I., $300. He has been in business twenty-five years. Inability to collect outstanding accounts and the close of the oyster season are ascribed as the causes. Among the creditors are George A. Schmalek, Canarsie, $2,000; Adolph H. Haack, Canarsie, $727; George H. Abbott, Inwood, L. I., $1,466; Westerbeke Brothers, West Sayville, $1,329, and J. T. Rowley, Chincoteague, Va., $943.

AUGUST R. OHMAN & CO.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against August R. Ohman & Co., (corporation,) publishers of maps and charts at 97 Warren Street, by these creditors: Nellie N. Reynolds, $500 on notes; Irene M. S. Kelly, $825 on notes, and William Watson, $238. It was alleged that the corporation is insolvent and on June 16 allowed John McKown to obtain preference by a judgment for $1,262, on which the Sheriff has levied on the place. The business is an old one, having been established over fifty years ago by Colton, Zahn & Robert, afterward succeeded by G. W. & C. B. Colton, and by the present corporation on Feb. 26, 1907, which is capitalized at $30,000. Robert C. Kelly, the President, has been ill for some time and unable to attend to business. His daughter, who was an actress in Maxine Elliott's company, looks after his interests.

WILLIAM G. SMITH.—Deputy Sheriff Murray has received two attachments against William G. Smith, formerly President of the By-Products Fuel Company of 299 Broadway, in favor of Anna H. P. Goodrich and Florence E. Poillon, $300, for rent of an apartment in the Poillon, at 13 Central Park West, and George W. Welsh's Son, $815, for jewelry. It was alleged that he had left the city about June 17. The Sheriff levied on some furniture in his apartments, 13 Central Park West. Mr. Smith resigned the Presidency recently and also as a Director in the By-Products Fuel Company. At the company's office it was said that Mr. Smith had not involved the company in any way, and does not owe it a dollar. The difficulties are on account of personal liabilities. He had not called at the office since Tuesday last, and they did not know where he had gone.

WILLIAM PORTER SONS COMPANY.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the William Porter Sons Company, manufacturer of marine lamps and lanterns, 29 Vandewater Street, by these creditors: Giles C. Gardiner, $500; H. W. McCandless & Co., $39, and Stanley Fletcher Company, $30. It was alleged that the company is insolvent, transferred part of its property to a creditor to prefer him, and suffered Theodore E. Conklin to obtain a preference by putting the Sheriff in the place. The business is a very old one, having been started sixty-six years ago by William Porter, and was incorporated in December, 1898, with capital stock of $100,000. On Sept. 10, 1902, a petition in bankruptcy was filed against the company, which was dismissed on Nov. 17, 1902, as the creditors had been paid in full. Since then the company has been reorganized and several changes have been made in the officers. Business, it was stated, had been dull for a long time and collections slow.

KNOWLES BROTHERS COMPANY.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Knowles Brothers Company, manufacturers of saltpetre, of 181 Pearl Street, this city, with a factory at 98 to 104 Vandyke Street, Brooklyn, by these creditors: Percy H. Knowles, $1,650; Eleanor C. Knowles, $1,300, and Reuben L. Haskell, $750, all on notes of the company to Percy H. Knowles, who was formerly President, and resigned in December last. It was alleged that the company made preferential payments to all the creditors of the company except the petitioners. It was stated that several months ago Hamilton H. Salmon took charge of the assets and liquidated them for the creditors, realizing about $20,000, which was distributed on April or May in disregard of the claims of the petitioners. Among those who received payments were: H. H. Salmon & Co., $7,000, and William R. Grace & Co., $8,000. Margaret W. Knowles has been President since December last. The company was incorporated in 1900 with a capital stock of $10,000.

Bankruptcy Suit Dismissed.

Judge Hand has dismissed the petition in bankruptcy filed on June 17 against Harstn & Co., (corporation,) dealers in moving picture supplies, 138 East Fourteenth Street. The claim of the Film Importing and Trading Company, which filed the petition, has been paid, and Robert Spiegelthal, Secretary of Harstn & Co., stated to the court that all other liabilities are only $1,648, while the assets are over $75,000.

Settles with Creditors.

Judge Hand has confirmed a composition of S. Grayboys, Incorporated, manufacturer of women's underwear at 14 Wooster Street, with creditors at 20 cents on the dollar; liabilities are $19,886.

Discharges From Bankruptcy.

Judge Hand, in the United States District Court yesterday, granted discharges to these bankrupts:

EDWARD C. WEYBURN, known as Ned Weyburn, theatrical producer, actor, and sketch author, of 1,133 Broadway; liabilities, $28,282.

POLICEMAN ON TRIAL FOR SHOOTING BOY

Court Takes Steps to Prevent Comrades from Plotting to Save Dillon.

PLAIN CLOTHES MAN HALTED

Justice Maddox Hauls Him Up for Attempting to Follow the Jury Out.

Extraordinary precautions to prevent possible collusion in the testimony of persons appearing as witnesses were taken yesterday when the case of Patrolman James F. Dillon of the Adams Street Station, charged with the murder of nineteen-year-old Louis Probber, came up for trial before Justice Maddox in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court, Brooklyn. The court ordered that all witnesses be excluded from the courtroom until their names were called. This was a disappointment to the fellow-policemen of Dillon, who have been complained of as having been unduly active in efforts in his behalf. The accused policeman's wife and others of his relatives who were on hand also were excluded from court. The aim was to prevent the witnesses from hearing each other testify.

It is apparently the District Attorney's plan to put the witnesses for the defense through a severe examination as to what occurred immediately after the shooting of young Probber, particularly as to how Dillon's uniform coat came to be slashed as if cut with a knife.

The trial was adjourned until to-day after the jury box had been filled and two witnesses for the prosecution had been heard.

An incident which caused a stir in the courtroom, and indicated to those present how strict the court intends to be in the conduct of the trial, occurred as the adjournment was taken. In dismissing the jury for the day, Justice Maddox ordered that all others present keep their seats until the jurors had passed out.

As the jury was filing out into the corridor, attended by court officers, a plain-clothes policeman attached to the Adams Street Station, who had not been called as a witness, but was in court watching the proceedings, arose and started to follow the jurors. Justice Maddox banged sharply on the bench with his gavel.

Ignored a Court Order.

"Don't you know enough to obey an order of the court?"

The policeman, much confused, said he had no intention of disobeying the court, but thought that the jurors had all passed out. He said he had jumped up to get out before the crowd. He was dismissed with a warning to be more respectful of court orders in the future.

The shooting for which Dillon is on trial occurred on Sunday, May 2. Isaac Probber, the father of Louis, has a small grocery at 217 Myrtle Avenue, Brooklyn. On the Sunday in question, at 10:30 o'clock in the morning, Dillon appeared at the Probber store and informed Isaac Probber that he was under arrest for keeping his store open on Sunday.

The Probbers allege that Dillon appeared to be under the influence of liquor and that he held his revolver in his hand. At the request of his mother young Louis Probber called up Police Headquarters to report Dillon's behavior. In his ante-mortem statement later he said as he turned from the telephone, seven or eight feet from Dillon, the latter shot him.

At the Coroner's inquest evidence was brought out to the effect that while Dillon was on the way to the station house after the shooting one of his fellow-policemen slashed his coat with a penknife, apparently for the purpose of making it appear that Dillon had been attacked with a knife by one of the Probbers.

It was alleged at the time of the shooting that the police of the Adams Street Station were so busy fixing up a case for Dillon that they neglected to inform the Coroner that young Probber was dying in a hospital until more than four hours after the boy had been shot.

Dillon's story of the affair has been that he was attacked by the Probbers while making the arrest, and that he accidentally shot Louis Probber in the struggle. The Probbers have asserted that Dillon was grafting on them in a petty way, and that he got angry when they refused to supply him with more duck eggs, which seemed to appeal to his pampered palate.

In his opening address to the jury yesterday afternoon District Attorney Clarke said that "this drunken policeman" had shot the Probber boy as "the culmination of a malicious hatred toward the lad."

"We propose to show," continued Mr. Clarke, "not only that no one had interfered with this policeman, but that the boy was at least five feet away from him when he fired. We propose to show that four policemen of the defendant's precinct conspired with him to make an appearance of a state of facts that would seem to help the defendant out of his dilemma.

Says Comrades Helped Him.

"I propose to make the statements of these policemen a part of this case. Not only did they protect him in their statements, but on the way to the station Policeman Stapf—what you call a plain-clothes man—made slashes in the back of this defendant's coat, so it would seem that the Probber mother had slashed this defendant. In other words, this defendant had to appear mussed up a bit, and his brother policemen arranged it for him."

In his ante-mortem statement young Probber said that Dillon was drunk, and that he drew his revolver when he entered the store. The boy said he was at the telephone, and that Dillon, after striking his father and mother, shot him. The policeman, he said, had got angry at him because he had refused to give him more duck eggs.

The first witness called by the prosecution was Clarence A. Van Buskirk, a civil engineer. He was asked to show a diagram which he had drawn of the interior of the Probber store, showing the respective positions which the Probbers and Dillon are supposed to have occupied at the time of the tragedy.

He was followed by Max Probber, the 12-year-old brother of the dead boy. Max testified that he had known Dillon for about six months. The policeman was in the habit of coming into the store for duck eggs, which were given to him, usually. On the night before the shooting, Max said, Dillon called at the store and asked for some duck eggs. He was told that there were no more in stock and went away muttering something about getting even. The next morning he reappeared and placed the father under arrest.

Describing the shooting, Max declared that his brother Louis made no attempt to attack Dillon, and that he was near the telephone, about seven feet distant, from the policeman, when the policeman fired the shot.

It is probable that the prosecution will call Mr. and Mrs. Probber to the stand to testify to-day.

A. P. HEINZE TRIAL TO-MORROW

Judge Ray Opposed to Further Delays—F. A. Heinze and Robinson Part.

Counsel for the various defendants in the Federal prosecutions growing out of the disappearance of a number of books of the United Copper Company, which United States District Attorney Wise wanted in his investigation of the doings of F. A. Heinze in the Mercantile National Bank in 1907, appeared once more before Judge Ray, in the United States Circuit Court, yesterday afternoon, to argue demurrers to the indictments. It was the case against A. P. Heinze that brought the lawyers together yesterday, and William Rand, Jr., his counsel, besides seeking to cut the ground out from under the Government's charges of obstructing justice, fought hard to get delay.

Judge Ray, however, stated plainly that as at present advised, he was disposed to overrule the demurrers, although he admitted that the points raised on the first count of the indictment against A. P. Heinze and Attorney Sanford Robinson made the decision a close one. Accordingly, United States Attorney Wise declared his intention to move the trial of A. P. Heinze on this indictment to-day, whereat Mr. Rand made a new struggle for delay. It was finally decided that Judge Ray should announce his decision this morning and that the A. P. Heinze trial should proceed to-morrow.

Mr. Wise sails for France a week from to-morrow, to take some testimony of French witnesses in the libel case against The World growing out of stories printed about the Panama Canal purchase. He proposes to get through with the A. P. Heinze and Sanford Robinson trials before he starts for the other side. The conspiracy indictment against F. A. Heinze, A. P. Heinze, Carlos Warfield Robinson, and a clerk in A. P. Heinze's office named Geer, will not be tried until Fall.

It was learned yesterday that F. A. Heinze and Attorney Robinson have definitely parted company. The latter has returned whatever retainers he had received from Heinze not exhausted hitherto, and in the preparations for trial, it is understood that the interests of Robinson and the Heinzes will be somewhat in conflict with each other. The first evidence of this came the other day, when Joseph Cotton, Jr., counsel for Robinson, disagreed with the course that has been followed by the defense in pressing for delay, and announced his desire and that of his client to have his case called for trial at once.

CONEY AUTO IN CRASH.

Girl's Leg Broken and Many Others Hurt as Big Car Hits Tree.

A big sightseeing motor car belonging to the Knickerbocker Observation Company, Broadway and Forty-first Street, smashed into a tree on the Ocean Boulevard, Coney Island, on its last trip back to Times Square early yesterday morning, and the fifty or more occupants were thrown out. Eight of them had to be taken to the Coney Island Reception Hospital for treatment, and one of them, Miss May Emery of 549 West 144th Street, is still there, suffering from a broken leg.

The car, driven by Chauffeur William Loch, was running at pretty high speed along Ocean Boulevard, the passengers singing and calling out to the occupants of other vehicles as they passed.

Just as the big auto swung around a bend on the hard road at Avenue Y, the rear wheels skidded and the unwieldy car swerved violently, throwing the passengers all to one side. The next moment the auto, now headed sideways, smashed hard against a tree amid the screams of the women passengers. The jolt of the impact threw the passengers in a heap to the road, many falling head first, the others pounding down on top of them.

Passing automobiles pulled up, helped to extricate the injured, and hurried them to the hospital. In the meantime a call was sent in for an ambulance, and Drs. Wesenberg and Babbitt arrived. By this time most of those seriously injured had been taken away to the hospital or to private residences, but practically every one left needed treatment for cuts and bruises, and several women were overcome by shock and fright. The most seriously injured were:

EMERY, Miss MAY, 549 West 144th Street, right leg broken.

BRITTON, WILLIAM, Hotel Imperial, bad bruises.

MACALLISTER, JAMES, 117 West Sixty-third Street, bruises and shock.

MILLER, ROSE, 38 West Ninety-eighth Street, bruises and shock.

SULLY, JAMES J., 121 West Sixty-third Street, cut and bruised.

WINSON, DAVID, Hotel Imperial, cut and bruised.

WILLIAMS, LOTTIE, 38 West Ninety-eighth Street, bruises and shock.

WILLIAMS, MARIE, 38 West Ninety-eighth Street, bruises and shock.

All these were able to leave for their homes after treatment except Miss Emery. None of the passengers were inclined to blame the chauffeur for the accident.

EX-LAWYER SUES A PRIEST.

Wants $100,000 Damages on the Charge That He Induced Wife to Leave Him.

Richard F. Price, a disbarred lawyer, formerly of 26 Court Street, Brooklyn, who admits that he has served a sentence in Sing Sing for larceny, and another on the same charge at Blackwell's Island, and is at present in Raymond Street Jail, awaiting trial on a third charge of grand larceny for alleged irregularity in a real estate transaction, has brought suit for $100,000 damages in the Supreme Court of Kings County against Father Ambrose P. Dunnigan of the Church of Our Lady of Loretta, at Hempstead, L. I., charging that the priest induced his wife to leave their home.

According to Price, the priest, who had been his friend for several years, learning that Price had kept his past record and prison sentence secret from his wife when he married her in Jersey City on Aug. 15, 1908, upbraided him in her presence during one of his visits to their home some time last November, and finally persuaded her that it was her duty to leave her husband and return to her mother. Since then she has been living with her mother, Mrs. O'Connell, in Fifth Street, Jersey City, and Price says he has been unable to induce her to return to him.

Father Dunnigan, through his attorneys, Dykman, Oeland & Kuhn of 189 Montague Avenue, in his answer to the summons filed in the Supreme Court of Kings County, enters a general denial of the charges made by Price.

ANIMALS FOR MRS. ROOSEVELT

Two African Antelopes Supposedly Sent to Her by the ex-President.

Two little antelopes, consigned to Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, arrived here yesterday on the Red Star liner Vaderland from Antwerp and Dover. They were sent aboard at Dover by the German East African Steamship Company, and for that reason are believed to be either the gift of ex-President Roosevelt himself or of some of his African friends.

The apartments for the antelopes were 4-foot boxes under the navigating bridge, close to the quarters of Chief Officer William Paradies, who was the only man aboard who could control them. To every one else they were warlike. One of them stood 18 inches high, the other 24 inches. Their appetites, however, were in disproportion to their dimensions. Six times a day they ate turnips and boiled rice.

The larger animal proved a particularly high hurdler, and on one occasion made a leap to go over a 10-foot rail. He missed by only a few inches. The consigning labels for the antelopes read: "To Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, care of the Bronx Zoological Garden."

Messrs. Robinson, Sulzberger, Fuller, and Felix M. Warburg Send in Resignations.

NEW MOVE FOR FUSION

Republican Club Appoints a Committee of Five to Confer with Other Anti-Tammany Bodies.

Four members of the Committee of One Hundred sent their resignations yesterday to Gustav H. Schwab, temporary Chairman of that organization. All are prominent. It was learned that in some quarters fear was being expressed that the newly formed anti-Tammany organization would be dominated by the radical element, which might get control through the large representation given to organized labor.

The members resigning are Allan Robinson, President of the Allied Real Estate Interests; Cyrus L. Sulzberger, who was a candidate for Borough President of Manhattan in the second Low campaign; Felix M. Warburg, a banker, and Paul Fuller, a prominent lawyer.

Mr. Robinson gave out for publication yesterday his letter of resignation. In it he said:

> Circumstances have arisen since the naming of the Committee of One Hundred which make it desirable and imperative that I sever my connection therewith. I regret to say that the conclusion has been drawn in some quarters that the taxpayers' organizations with which I am officially connected have, as a result of my membership on your committee, identified themselves with that political movement. Obviously, these organizations, in order properly to perform their functions, must not be connected or affiliated with political movements.
> I had cherished the expectation that in joining your committee my action would not be misconstrued, but that it would be understood as the action of an individual only. In this expectation, however, I have been disappointed, and I am forced to one of two courses—either to retain my membership on the Committee of One Hundred and resign as President of the Allied Real Estate Interests or to resign from the Committee of One Hundred. After conferring with my associates, I am convinced that my first duty and obligation is to continue the work of the Allied Real Estate Interests, which has already laid out a definite programme in the interest of the taxpayers of this city, from which it is impossible at this point to withdraw.

It was reported yesterday that six of the seven members appointed on the Committee of Seven which is to report to the next meeting of the One Hundred nominations for officers and an Executive Committee of twenty-one, had accepted the places assigned to them. The seventh appointee has not yet consented to serve. The six members reported to have accepted are Raymond V. Ingersoll, Dr. Henry Moskowitz, Winifred T. Denison, Michael J. Fitzgerald, C. C. Burlingham, and E. P. Stratton.

The hundred will meet again on Thursday afternoon.

With anti-Tammany organizations springing up on every side, the Republican Club is the first of the organizations opposed to Tammany Hall to take positive steps looking toward fusion. At the regular monthly meeting held last night the club appointed a conference committee of five members to discuss the subject with other organizations in the field to beat Tammany.

The conference committee will consist of Robert C. Morris, President of the club; Perley Morse, Chairman of its recently formed Campaign Committee; Henry D. Estabrook, ex-Judge William A. Keener, and J. Van Vechten Olcott.

Expect to Hear from the Hundred.

It was said yesterday by Chairman Morse of the Campaign Committee that the appointment of the committee should not be construed as an indication that the Republican Club intended to take the initiative in a general fusion movement, but merely that it desired to be prepared for any fusion proposal that might originate with other anti-Tammany bodies. It is generally expected that the initiative will come from the Committee of One Hundred.

"Of course, we believe that there should be fusion as the only means of beating Tammany Hall," said Mr. Morse. "Members of the club are displaying the greatest interest in the activities of the Campaign Committee, which will be focused in an educational propaganda that will continue throughout the Summer."

Two Democratic anti-Tammany organizations opened headquarters last night. One of these organizations, the Jefferson Hall Democracy, will conduct its operations from the Hoffman House. The leaders of this movement are Thomas Gilleran and Timothy F. Driscoll, both until a couple of years ago actively identified with the Hearst movement. In a declaration of principles promulgated last night the Jefferson Hall Democrats came out for good government, home rule, liberal Sunday laws, New York administrative offices for New Yorkers only, direct nominations, and an independent Democrat for Mayor. Incidentally the declaration contained some choice denunciation of Tammany Hall.

The other organization which entered the arena of municipal politics last night is the so-called Cleveland Democracy. This organization will have its headquarters at 272 West 125th Street.

FIND MOTHER STABBED.

Curb Broker Casey Held on Suspicion of Wounding Wife.

Two girls, one fourteen, the other a year older, the daughters of Thomas C. Casey, a curb broker of 602 West 135th Street, ran across the street early this morning and up to No. 601, and, in their dressing gowns, rang the bell for Dr. Charles Bolduan. They said their mother was very ill.

When he entered their apartment on the ground floor, he found lying there, covered with blood, all but unconscious, the mother of the girls, Mrs. Mary Casey. She was in her night clothes. There were three dangerous stab wounds in her body. Over her leaned Thomas B. Casey, the father.

Dr. Bolduan instantly notified the West 125th Street Station and sent for an ambulance from the J. Hood Wright Hospital, and, on her request, for Father Penny of the Church of the Annunciation. He administered the last rites just as the woman lapsed into unconsciousness. She was hurried to the hospital. Detective Hump from the Harlem Detective Bureau arrested her husband. He said he had come in about 12 o'clock, had found his wife there in that condition on the floor, and had sent his children for a doctor. He said that was all he knew.

The neighbors in the house say that the little girls graduated from the Parochial School of the Annunciation last night, and that about 6 o'clock in the evening their father and mother were heard to quarrel regarding flowers for them, he refusing to buy any.

POWDER WORKS GO UP; 2 DEAD

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, June 21.—Two men were killed and three badly injured to-day in an explosion at the Du Pont powder works at Pompton Lakes. The victims were:

DEAD.

WILLIAM CULLER, 35 years old, married, leaves a widow and five children.

JAMES WEATHERWALKS, 32 years old, married, leaves a widow and one child.

INJURED.

THEODORE WEATHERWALKS, brother of the dead man, 30 years old.

WILLIAM COFRER, 40 years old.

THEODORE MONKS, 27 years old.

The works are in a gorge of the Wynockie River, and consist of a series of small frame buildings about 15 by 20 feet each, covered with corrugated iron. They are about fifty feet apart. The explosion took place in what is known as the priming house, at the head of the gorge, and a short distance from the drying house.

ROEBUCK PAINTED HORSE.

Witnesses Tell of Manufacturer's Antics and Attempts to Kill His Wife.

The contest over the three conflicting wills of the late Samuel Roebuck, the millionaire weather strip and screen manufacturer, who died at his home, 175 Seventeenth Street, Brooklyn, in February, 1909, was begun before Surrogate Ketcham yesterday. A dozen lawyers represent the contestants.

It was brought out yesterday that Roebuck had acted queerly from February, 1908, until he died. David McKenna of 518 Fifty-first Street, a friend of Roebuck, declared that on one occasion Roebuck locked himself in a room in a house fancying that his family would murder him.

Mrs. Tillie Burns of 175 Seventeenth Street, maid to Mrs. Roebuck, testified that Roebuck tried to asphyxiate her and Mrs. Roebuck in the house one morning by turning on all of the valves in the gas range. He said he wanted to kill both women.

Andrew Purtell, a florist of Eighteenth Street, near Fifth Avenue, another witness, said he called at Roebuck's house one day in July of last year to deliver three bags of soil. He rode to the house in his wagon drawn by a white horse. He said when he came out of the house Roebuck had his white horse half painted green, and was standing beside the wagon with a pot of green paint and a dripping paint brush in his hands.

ARTIST LANGTON A SUICIDE.

Special to The New York Times.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., June 21.—Daniel W. Langton, a landscape artist with offices at 341 Fifth Avenue, New York, committed suicide last night at his home at Hoyt's Corner, three miles from this place. Dr. George L. Johnson, a Coroner, was called on the telephone at 11 P. M. and went to the Langton home. He found the man dead in a chair in the sitting room with an empty bottle in one hand.

The physician was informed, so he says, that Mr. Langton had taken poison about 7:30 o'clock. The bottle, he said, contained cyanide of potassium. No information could be obtained at the man's home, an effort being made to keep the suicide secret.

The last seen of the man by his neighbors was about 6 P. M., when he came home in a hack. He had been to New York all day, returning to Morristown on the train reaching here at 5:20 o'clock. He appeared to be in good spirits at the time, saluting several of his acquaintances on the road home.

Mr. Langton was 50 years old and had lived in this vicinity for ten years. He leaves a wife and two children.

WAR IN THE BUILDING TRADE.

Carpenters Repudiate Arbitration and Open Shop for 18,000 Possible.

A peremptory order by the General Arbitration Board, directing the New York District Council of the Brotherhood of Carpenters to send union carpenters who are on strike at fifty buildings back to work yesterday morning, pending arbitration, was ignored by the District Council, and the strike was still on yesterday. The General Arbitration Board will hold a special meeting to-morrow to take action in the case of the refractory unions.

The strike is against the members of Independent Master Carpenters' Association Local No. 1 of the Master Carpenters' Association, which is represented in the arbitration plan.

The situation was regarded as very serious yesterday, as if the rules of the arbitration plan are carried out in this case the open shop will be declared against about 18,000 carpenters. A number of the members of the Master Carpenters' Association are indignant at the defiant tone of the carpenters, and will move for strong measures at the meeting of the board. Some of the others are in favor of giving the carpenters one more chance before taking action which would precipitate a building trades war just at a time when the building trade began to be active.

ANOTHER DUFFY CONFERENCE.

Mayor, Mr. Crowell, and Inspector Kelly Discuss the Case at Length.

Mayor McClellan and Assistant Corporation Counsel Crowell, who is attached to his office, held a long conference yesterday with Police Inspector Thomas Kelly and several members of his staff on the Duffy matter. Neither the Mayor nor any of the others in the conference would discuss the case after it was over.

There is little chance of a final decision in the case until the latter part of the week, and it is possible that Inspector Kelly will not be ready to submit his report on the special investigation he is conducting for the Mayor until later.

WOULD LYNCH NEGRO FOR SHOOTING A BOY

Mob of 2,000 Attacks Police and Threatens Also to Kill a Citizen Who Protested.

SHOOTER BADLY BEATEN

Reserves in Harlem Have a Hard Time Getting Their Prisoner to the Station—Boy Not Badly Hurt.

It took all the reserves that could be mustered from the West 125th Street Station and all the other policemen within hearing in the neighborhood to get two negroes, William Simmins of 506 West 125th Street and Edward Ashford of 558 West 125th Street, to the station house when Ashford shot a white boy, Joseph Hughes of 551 West 125th Street, in the right leg with a revolver at 12:30 o'clock this morning. Many in the crowd of 2,000 tried to get at the negroes and one was badly beaten. It was the nearest thing to a lynching New York has seen in years.

According to the wounded boy's story, he and William Shields of 1,482 Amsterdam Avenue had just reached the corner of Amsterdam Avenue and 126th Street on their way home from the recreation pier at 129th Street and the river when the two negroes came along.

Ashford said, "Hello, kiddo," and, according to the boys, immediately drew a revolver and began to fire. Shields was then in the middle of the street. He said he saw Hughes start to run, then stumble as a ball entered his leg, and crawl behind an ash barrel, the negro still firing.

By this time people were jumping off crowded trolley cars from Fort George by the hundred and hurrying to the spot at the same time the Olympic Athletic Club, near Amsterdam Avenue on 126th Street, turned out about 1,000 spectators of the evening bout.

Hearing the shots and uproar, Policeman John P. Shay of the West 1[illegible]d Street Station, who lives on the corner of Amsterdam Avenue and 126th Street, opened his window, and to attract attention emptied his revolver into the air. Then he pulled on some clothes, and as Patrolmen Feudner and McGinnis, on duty, hurried up he ran to the street.

Simmins had broken loose from the crowd which has borne down on him, and made off up 126th Street. The crowd, a couple of thousand strong, was almost upon Ashford when Policeman Shay burst through and got him. People on all sides, shaking fists and brandishing sticks, crowded around crying, "Lynch him! Lynch him!" Shay with his trembling prisoner could hardly move on. Suddenly near the corner of 125th Street two large men plowed through the crowd to Shay. "We're plainclothes men," they cried, and one hauled off, struck Ashford in the face and felled him, and the other snatched his revolver from Shay.

Ashford once down, the crowd kicked and beat him; Shay was pushed aside. It seemed hopeless for the negro. Just then another big man pushed in and stood over Ashford's cowering body. It was Charles Collis, who says he is a son of ex-Charity Commissioner Collis, of 530 West 123d Street.

"We don't lynch here," he cried. "This is not the South; this is disgraceful."

"Lynch him! Lynch him, too!" cried the mob, and several struck at Collis.

By this time the reserves were out with their heavy nightsticks laying about them. They guarded Shay and Ashford, both beaten and bruised, to the station house. Ashford was charged with felonious assault.

As for Simmins, he ran on toward Broadway, Policemen Fendner and McGinnis in pursuit. Shots came from behind, from the two big men who had assaulted Ashford it is believed. Simmins turned south on Broadway, and then darted into 504 West 125th Street. The gun shooters behind dropped off as the reserves began to circulate about. McGinnis and his comrade followed Simmins into the house, ran all the way upstairs with him a little ahead, and, coming to the roof, found him trembling behind a chimney. He struck out and fought at first, but was caught and led down, and with the help of reserves through the excited mob at the door to the station house. There, while the mob shouted and surged outside, he was locked up as a suspicious person.

Dr. Fitzgerald of Hood Wright Hospital treated both negroes, and also Hughes.

The negroes say that they were set upon by a gang of roughs, and that Ashford fired in self-defense solely.

The injured boy was taken to the J. Hood Wright Hospital. His injury was not considered serious.

The Information Value of the Telephone

NO CONCERN that serves the public well nowadays is without telephone service. Hotels, railway, steamship and all transportation lines, stores and shops of various kinds, places of amusement—in fact, practically every business establishment has telephone service.

With such complete development, information regarding any subject can be obtained by telephone. The Telephone Company does not maintain any general information bureau. It merely provides an information desk in each central office to handle what are termed "irregular" calls.

However, the fact that over 300,000 establishments in New York City have telephones makes it possible for the individual telephone user to get in touch with someone who can give him the information he desires.

By way of assisting the public to obtain certain important information regarding railways, steamships, taxicabs, hotels, baggage, express and transfer companies, restaurants, places of amusement, etc., we have placed an "Information Section" on yellow pages in the front of our New York City Telephone Directory.

Telephone subscribers are invited to use this new convenience. We believe they will find it to their advantage to consult this section frequently, for it contains convenient information relating to lines of business activity of very general interest.

To business establishments desiring representation in this section, we shall be glad to send our schedule of rates. The cost of representation in this section is relatively low.

JUDGE ACQUITS HALLEN.

Declines to Let the Case Go to the Jury on the Evidence.

When both sides were ready to go to the jury yesterday in the case of James D. Hallen, who has been on trial before Judge Malone, in General Sessions, charged with the theft of $11,000, which was supposed to have been expended on cartridges for a Central American revolution, Judge Malone instructed the jury to bring in a verdict of not guilty, in view of the fact, as he said, that the evidence was not sufficient to justify a conviction.

The original complaint was made by Ramon Echazerreta, ex-Nicaraguan Consul at New Orleans, who said that he had intrusted Hallen with $11,000 for the purchase of 1,100,000 cartridges. When the cartridges, after being packed and shipped by Hallen, reached Bluefields they were discovered to contain nothing but copper waste.

John F. McIntyre, counsel for Hallen, made a motion to acquit, on the ground that insufficient evidence had been presented. Judge Malone said it was the province of the court to decide whether or not the evidence was sufficient to convict the prisoner.
